NEW HOOVER ARMS CUT PLEA FOR FIVE-POWER PACT LOOMS IN WORLD RADIO TALK TODAY

President Expected to Go Beyond Congratulation on Past Work.

FRENCH AND ITALIAN AGREEMENT HOPED

Hastening of Application of Treaty to All Major Nations Sought.

ESCALATOR CLAUSE ANXIETY POINTED TO

Rivalry of Two Countries Might Nullify Effects of London Document.

Tokyo, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—The Associated Press learned in authoritative quarters tonight that President Hoover, Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Hamaguchi, celebrating in an international radio broadcast tomorrow the deposit of ratifying instruments for the London naval treaty, will go beyond formal congratulations on past accomplishments and attempt to push forward the cause of naval limitation.

Theer is strong reason to believe that diplomatic exchanges recently between Washington, London and Tokyo have sought unanimous expression of the hopes of the United States, Great Britain and Japan that France and Italy should soon be able to compose their naval differences.

Tomorrow's addresses to a worldwide radio audience would thus be in the nature of an effort to hasten application of the London naval treaty to all five major naval powers.

New Impetus Expected.

How definitely this hope will be expressed, and how emphatically Prime Minister MacDonald and Premier Hamaguchi will support President Hoover's initiative could not be ascertained here.

Authoritative quarters, however, expect the President's speeech to give an impetus toward a renewed peace effort, which may take a more definite form at the seventh session of the league's preparatory disarmament on November 8.

It is even possible, according to some observers, that Hugh S. Gibson and Hugh R. Wilson will offer concrete proposals at next month's Geneva meeting for a solution of the Franco-Italian difficulties.

As evidence in support of these expectations is cited the obvious anxiety of Washington and London lest the Franco-Italian rivalry partly nullify the effects of the London Treaty by compelling Great Britain to increase its navy by invoking the so-called escalator clause.

Washington Interest Pointde Out.

Washington's apparently unusual interest in the preparations for the coming session of the disaramament commission is also pointed out. Some observers believe the administration desires to present the electorate before the November elections with evidence of its continuing efforts to make the London Treaty fully operative.

Japan, having spent the last week in contemplating its navy as an instrument of war during grand maneuvers on an unprecedented scale off its southern coast, turns tomorrow to contemplation of the navy's place in the scheme of world peace.

Marking the completion of the maneuvers this morning, the emperor formolly reviewed the fleets off Kobe. About 165 warships and nearly 100 airplanes participated.

High naval authorities have told the press that the maneuvers indicated weakness in Japans' defense against an invasion by sea and that it would be necessary to provide all the defensive craft possible within the limits of the London treaty.

Ponta Grossa, Brazil, Oct. 26 (A.P.). Getulio Vargas, generalissimo of the Brazilian revolutionary armies, was invited today to assume the presidency of Brazil. The invitation was from the military junta controlling the federal government at Rio de Janeiro.

Vargas was the Liberal candidate for president in the national Brazilian elections early this year, but Dr. Julio Prestes was declared the winner. Prestes, who made a preinaugural visit to President Hoover in Washington, and also was received by high officials in England, France, Spain and Portugal, was due to take office November 15. Since the downfall of the Washington Luis government last week, he has been held virtually a prisoner in the state executive palace at Sao Paulo.

Col. Goes Monteiro, chief of staff of the insurgent army, informed the Associated Press correspondent today that "the revolutionary movement is ended."

Federal Colonel Surrenders.

"The order for cessation of hostilities has been given and the revolution has won a complete victory," he said.

Insurgent troops are advancing without interference on the city of Sao Paulo, Brazil's commercial metropolis.

Col. Paez Andrade, commander of the federal soldiers in the Itarare region, today signed a paper surrendering the territory and placing his soldiers under the command of the revolutionary generals. Announcement of the federals' surrender was made yesterday, today's events being a formal confirmation of the fact.

Costa Commands City.

Gen. Miguel Costa, commanding the insurgent vanguard, has become military commander of the city of Itarare. Gen. Flores da Cunha has taken command of all air forces in the region.

Rebel soldiers under Gen. Joao Alberto have taken possession of the town of Capella da Ribeira and its vicinity. Other forces are concentrating at Apiahy, southeast of Itarare.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Organization of a provisional cabinet proceeded slowly today under the direction of the new military junta, composed of Gen. Tasso Fragoso, Gen. Menna Barreto, and Admiral Isaias de Noronha.

To Disband Reservists.

Afranio Mello Franco, formerly Brazilian delegate to the League of Nations, has been appointed foreign minister. Ariosto Pinto, a former deputy, has been given the portfolio of justice.

Monteiro Andrade, former president of the Banco Credito of the insurgent state of Minas Geraes, has been named president of the Banco Credito do Brasil. Telegrams of support for

NATION URGED TO AID EMPLOYMENT DRIVE

Chairman of Hoover Board Declares That Emergency Situation Prevails.

HOME REPAIR STRESSED

New York, Oct. 24 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Picturing the unemployment situation as a "widespread and deep-seated emergency," Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of President Hoover's emergency committee for employment, tonight in a radio speech over WJZ asked the people of the Nation to "work together—each according to his means and opportunities" toward its solution.

Col Woods, who arrived here Saturday night for conferences tomorrow with industrial leaders, spoke from 8:15 to 9:15 o'clock. He said today he would return to Washington probably Tuesday night, after several addresses on the plan of the President's committee before women's clubs here. He did not name the business and financial men he expected to interview, but he will carry back to Washington their views and plans.

"We are engaged in a battle against human suffering," said Col. Woods, "and I am here tonight, as chairman of the President's committee, to talk over with you some of the ways in which all can help."

"The ways in which the people of the county as householders and home owners, can help," he said, "are 'to spruce up our homes—make the repairs that are needed—do that little job of jainting we thought about so long—fix up the odd corners of the yard—replace worn-out or broken parts that halt the smooth running of the household.

"Let us do the same thing in our communities," he continued. "We can give work to hundreds of thousands by improving shabby playgrounds, unsightly vacant lots, dirty streets and by clearing up all those community black spots that have annoyed us as conscientious citizens so long.

"In the aggregate, if 24,000,000 families followed this program as far as their means permitted, it would help eliminate the present condition.

"Savings bank deposits show increases. Certainly America has not become a hoarding Nation, afraid of its own future. In this matter of an attitude toward life at this time, the Nation needs the leadership of its millions of citizens—each an example to the other.

"This problem should be solved. It will be solved. There can be no compromise in its solution."

The solution of the problem will be found in a Nation-wide attack upon it by every man, woman and child," said Col. Woods. "No one can do it for us. We must do it ourselves. We must recognize the fact first of all, just as President Hoover recognized it in efforts made during the past year.

OIL LANDS QUIZ FINDS KELLEY'S CHARGES FALSE

Department of Justice's Report Is Submitted to Wilbur.

ATTORNEY GENERAL UPHOLDS SECRETARY

Inquiry Reviews Each of Accusations Brought in Detail.

FILES ARE DISCOVERED TO BE IN GOOD ORDER

Complainant Brands Report Ridiculous Whitewash in Making Reply.

(Associated Press.)

Charges by Ralph S. Kelley that the Interior Department had permitted oil companies to get wrongful possession of valuable oil shale lands in Colorado were said yesterday by the Department of Justice to have been unsubstantiated by a study of Government files and testimony of persons named in the accusations.

Meanwhile Mr. Kelley issued a statement characterizing the Department of Justice report as "a ridiculous whitewash" and asserting that it "reeks with misstatements and misrepresentations."

Mr. Kelley, for six years in charge of the Denver field division of the Interior Department, charged Secretary Wilbur and former officials with permitting oil shale lands to be illegally taken under Government grant.

Resignation Was Refused.

Mr. Kelley resigned on September 29, he said, in protest against the administration of the oil lands. Secretary Wilbur refused to accept the resignation and suspended Mr. Kelley pending an investigation which the Cabinet members requested the Justice Department to make.

The investigation of Mr. Kelley's charges was made by Seth W. Richardson, an Assistant Attorney General. His report was transmitted to Mr. Wilbur yesterday by Attorney General Mitchell.

In an accompanying note to Mr. Wilbur the Attorney General upheld the Interior Department's administration of the oil shale lands.

"In looking through this report and the attached documents," he wrote, "I should say that there is more evidence to support the conclusion that you and your department have been exceedingly strict and exacting in resisting claims for patents than that you have been too liberal."

Each Charge Reviewed.

Richardson reviewed in detail each charge made by the former field agent and said records showed that only about 3 per cent of the oil shale lands owned by the Government had been patented and that oil shale had no commercial value and would not have until the supply of petroleum in this country was exhausted. What its ultimate value would be, he said, was problematical.

"The investigation, therefore, which has been made by the Department of Justice has been unable to substantiate in any material particular the complaints and charges made by Kelley," Mr. Richardson reported. "As he states, the records and files should disclose the existence of the evils of which he complained, but they do not.

"The cases to which Kelley has directed specific attention present, in the files and records of these cases, no evidence of improprieties or irregularities, and certainly no basis for a charge of either wrongful or corrupt administration.

"The condition, therefore, presented by such files and records is

NEW YORK WET HOPES REST ON TUTTLE'S RACE

FIGHT WAXES HOT FOR GOVERNORSHIP

1932 CONVENTION ROW MAY RESULT

State Republican Split Is Predicted by Some Observers.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

New York, Oct. 26.—The gubernatorial fight in this State this year, ordinarily just a walkaway for the Democratic candidate, is really of most serious moment to the wet cause.

If Charles H. Tuttle, of whom the Republicans like to say "he came out courageously as a wet," and the Democrats say smirkingly he was simply showing a little political sense, should win, the Republicans will be faced with a most serious wet and dry fight in their 1932 convention.

If he loses, which is more likely, and which I shall discuss later, some of the wind, to say the least, will be taken out of the sails of the New York wets. As to just how much will be is a matter of conflicting opinion.

There are observers in this State who believe that the party will be definitely split, that the dry Republicans will drift off definitely into a prohibition party, that the regulars can't turn the pages back. Others believe that the drys will come back and say to the wets: "You had your chance in 19930, now let us have another try at it," and will get somewhere with their argument.

Compromise Held Likely.

My guess is that there would be sort of a compromise. If Tuttle loses, the New York delegation to the 1932 National convention will be split on the question of prohibition, the wets having the majority. But they will not be in a mood to force the issue.

If Tuttle should win or make an unusually close race it is doubtful if there will be any stopping of the wet movement in the 1932 delegation. The wets will have, so to speak, the better of the argument.

T wets may crow about the gains they will make in this election to their heart's desire. It is such a gain the Republican party as is afforded in the success of Tuttle that

H. P. Whitney Dies Of Short Illness

Family Reaches Bedside in New York Home Before End Comes.

New York, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Harry Payne Whitney, sportsman and capitalist, died tonight at his Fifth avenue home, after an illness of several weeks. He was 50 years old.

Before Mr. Whitney died his wife, the former Gertrude Vanderbilt, and their three children reached his bedside.

In spite of his illness, his death was unexpected and its announcement brought widespread expressions of surprise and grief.

Cassiday Reveals Rum Dealings In U. S. Senate Office Building

More Dignity Demanded By Senators in Barter With Bootlegger

Liquor Seller Attended Caucuses of House, Found Buyers

By GEORGE L. CASSIDAY.
("The Man in the Green Hat.")

When I moved over to the Senate Office Building after being barred from the House side in 1925, I immediately found a big difference in the conditions under which I had to work.

While I received a welcome in as large a percentage of the offices I visited on the Senate as on the House side, I soon discovered doing business with a senator is quite another proposition than dealing with a Representative.

In most cases in the House, and particularly in the early years, I dealt direct with most of my customers. Perhaps it was because prohibition had been in effect for a longer time by 1925, but anyway I found the senators more cautious and a shrewder class of people, generally speaking.

For instance, most of the senators would order their liquor through their secretaries. In delivering the order you would not see the senator at all in some cases. But when a young girl or a committee clerk receiving a salary of $150 or $200 a month ordered a case of stuff that sold at a price of from $100 to $160 a case, you could be pretty sure you were dealing with a go-between.

There was one big difference in the Senate as a whole when you compare it with the lower branch of Congress, and that is that you find a more general spirit of good fellowship and conviviality in the House.

For instance, starting in 1921, after the Harding administration came in, I used to attend the caucuses in the House when the members were selecting candidates for Speaker for a new session. It always meant a busy night for me when a caucus was being held. The members who knew me would arrange in advance to have me get on the job, and I would stay around until midnight.

When I got over to the Senate there was never anything like that. I found you had to deal with a senator as an individual, not in a group with his colleagues.

Senators and representatives had one thing in common as customers, as I observed them. Nearly every member would take a lot of pains to work up a little system for giving orders and getting them filled and seemed to enjoy watching it operate.

A representative would often fix up a drawer in his desk and arrange for me to leave fresh sup-

ARMED POSSES SEARCH

Galva, Ill., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Earl Yocum, bank president and Galva's wealthiest citizen, was believed kidnaped last night from his baronial estate on the outskirts of the town in a daring coup that has aroused this staid farming community to fever pitch.

Although his disappearance was veiled in mystery, Sheriff Carl Nash, of Cambridge County, when told the banker was last seen leaving the grounds in the company of two strange men who had lurked about the estate through the evening, pronounced it a kidnaping for ransom.

Scores of armed citizens, accompanied by officials combed the prairies, towns and highways of Henry County, but were unable to find a trace of the banker or his purported abductors.

Mrs. Yocum, the banker's wife, told police her husband had driven his two small daughters to a moving picture show in Galva about 7 o'clock. He returned alone shortly after 7, she said, and as he left his garage was accosted by two men who asked the direction of a home in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Yocum said her husband volunteered the information and led the men down the driveway toward the

Indians Kill Dry Agent In Raid During Fiesta

Banning, Calif., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Death joined the solemn dance to the dead on the Morongo Indian reservation 4 miles from here today and brought a week of fiesta to an inglorious end.

Condideo Hopkins, Federal prohibition agent, and Oscar Olsen, a special officer, invaded the fiesta, walked past the grotesque effigies of departed ancestors, and went to Indian John Hyde's house in search of liquor.

A dozen Indians were in the house. They resented the intrusion of the white men. Olsen backed out. A shot was fired and Olsen dropped, shot in the heart. Several Indians were arrested as material witnesses while the Department of Justice took charge of the investigation.

Campbell Murder Trial to Go On, Although Defense Chief Is Ill.

PHOTOS WILL BE SHOWN

Modification of the Government's challenge to have Col. Calvin Goddard demonstrate the infallibility of ballistics will be sought today by Lucien H. Vandoren, who is aiding in the defense of Herbert M. Campbell, accused of the murder of Mary Baker.

Charles Henry Smith, chief defense counsel, is ill at his home and will not be in court today, according to Mr. Vandoren, who will direct the defense. His illness will halt only the cross-examination of Col. Goddard, and the trial will continue, said Mr. Vandoren.

Meanwhile, the Government today plans to produce photographs of the fatal bullets and of test bullets from the Campbell weapon.

These pictures have been made at the Bureau of Standards with a newly developed lens which gives great magnification; according to Assistant United States Attorney William H. Collins.

The photographs were made under the direction of Dr. Wilmer Souder, another Government ballistics expert. They differ from the Goddard photographs in that they were made through microscopes.

These prints, according to Mr. Collins, are so clear that "they will convince any jury that Campbell's gun fired the mortal buullets."

Goddard's pictures, which were presented to the jury on Friday, were separate pictures of the Campbell bullets and the mortal ones. Segments of pictures of the Campbell bullets were superimposed on the

Second Brokerage Partner Ends Own Life, Police Say

Philadelphian Found Shot Three Days After Another Member of Firm Dies Same Way; Each Leaves $1,000,000 Insurance to Company.

Philadelphia, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Sidney F. Tyler Brock, member of the brokerage firm of Reilly, Brock & Co., committed suicide today, police said, by shooting himself in the head.

His senior partner, George K. Reilly, took his life in a similar manner last Thursday.

The authorities expressed the belief that business worries had led both men to take their lives and were seeking to determine whether the double tragedy was the result of a suicide pact.

Brock shot himself through the brain in the bathroom of a suite he had rented only a few hours earlier in an apartment house.

The day after Reilly committed suicide at his home in a fashionable suburban section, Brock made a general assignment to officials of the Pennsylvania Company for the purpose of liquidating the assets of the brokerage concern.

The petition for the assignment gave the book assets of the firm as $5,723,573 and the book liabilities $5,353,280, but after a preliminary investigation the Pennsylvania Company issued a statement saying the Calvin Coolidge Says: The law of action and reaction does not work anywhere more certainly than in our system of self-government. We get out of life exactly what we put into it. Surely the people can get out of their government only what they put into it. In a republic the people are sovereign. They can manifest their sovereignty from day to day through the avenue of public opinion. That will have some influence on their government.

But their greatest opportunity and their gravest responsibility are on election day. With a careless, indifferent, uniformed electorate a republic will deteriorate into a very bad form of government. It will fall into the hands of the incompetent and the vicious. Good government under our system depends on the ballot box.

A general election comes on November 4. All the voters should plan now to be at the polls. It is the highest patriotic duty. The great sacrifices made to establish self-government will have been in vain unless this responsibility is discharged. It is a time when the serious second thought of the people is needed. We can not receive what we do not give. Put good government into the ballot box.

Pastor's Talks Over Radio Blamed for Church Bomb

Methodist Institution in Los Angeles Damaged by Black Powder Blast; Minister Has Been Active in Politics.

Los Angeles, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—A black powder bomb was thrown against the side of Trinity Methodist Church South early today and broke several windows in the church and surrounding rooming houses.

Police said the bomb apparently had been hurled from an automobile. Skid marks on the pavement in front of the building showed the car evidently had been traveling fast, had slowed suddenly until the bomb was thrown, then speeded up again.

The bombing, police believed, was retaliation for radio statements made by the pastor, the Rev. Robert P. Shuler, whose utterances have caused him considerable notoriety. Last week the Radio Commission granted Mr. Shuler's station, KGEF, a 30-day permit pending an investigation.

Mr. Shuler has been active in city and State politics. On several occasions he was cited for contempt of court, and twice convicted. On his second conviction he served fifteen days of a twenty-day sentence in the county jail, then paid a $100 fine.

On January 14, 1930, a dynamite bomb was planted under the southwest corner of the church in an apparent effort to wreck the radio towers. The explosion shattered two windows and wrecked a small automobile.

Every section of the universe is to hear the addresses made simultaneously with the depositing in London of Japan's instrument of ratification. The instruments of the United States and Great Britain, accepting the terms of the treaty, which for the first time limits all types of naval vessels, already have been deposited.

Premier Hamaguchi is scheduled to speak first, at 9:50 a. m., and if this hookup is successful, it will be the first time Japan has been linked in on an international broadcast in this country.

Following the Japanese premier, President Hoover will speak from the Cabinet room of the White House at 10:02 o'clock. A group of notables will surround him as he delivers his 6-minute address. Premier MacDonald is to speak next, at 10:08, from London, and he is to be followed by Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese Ambassador to London.

FIGHT TO BALK PANIC LOOMS IN PALESTINE

Financial Interests May Call Conference; Criticism of British Gains.

SESSION IN BALTIMORE

Jerusalem, Oct. 26 (A.P.). — The Jewish Telegraphic Agency reports that a conference of representatives of all Jewish economic and fiancial institutions in Palestine to take measures to avert a financial panic in the Jewish community as a result of the new British statement of policy, is being seriously considered, by the executive of the Jewish agency.

A heartening effect has been created by messages t othe executive from Felix M. Warburg, of New York, former chairman of the administrative committee of the Jewish agency, and Lord Melchett, former chairman of the council of the Jewish agency.

Mr. Warburg cabled "we are continuing our work bravely." Lord Melchett has given his Palestine office the reassuring message that he does "not see any reason for the situation to influence our rebuilding work."

Resolution of Protest.

"I request you to continue the entire plantation program," he messaged. "I hope shortly to extend my Palestine work."

Reports are current that the attorney general's office is drafting two laws to give effect to the labor "White Paper's" recommendations on immigration and labor transfer.

London, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—The chorus of Jewish protests against the Labor government's statement of policy in Palestine was swelled today by a condemnatory resolution passed by the Jewish Board of Deputies, the most important and representative organization of British Jewry.

Opinion of Lord Rothschild.

The board unanimously put on record "its profound conviction that the government's policy outlined in the White paper on Palestine is contrary to the spirit of the mandate and of public pledges made in the name of England by successive British governments."

The board will send a copy of its resolution to every member of Parliament.

Lord Rothschild, a prominent member, said: "It looks very strongly—I don't say it is—as if the government were trying to upset the mandate by roundabout means."

For the first time in many years the Belasco Theater last night entertained a musical show—and if the usual peace and quietude of Sunday night along Lafayette Square were disturbed it must all be blamed on Ed Wynn. 'Twas his tomfollishness responsible for all the rollicking laughter in the vicinity of the White House. "Simple Simon" stands the test as the perfect Ed Wynn vehicle because it gives him all the opportunities he wants to make of himself the perfect fool.

It happens that Mr. Wynn now owns his own show. He bought it from Mr. Ziegfeld. The fine Italian hand of that old master is still seen in the array of lovliness surrounding the clown of clowns. In fact, the "Simple Simon" that Washington saw in the Belasco Theater last night is the same "Simple Simon" that New York enjoyed during a long run at the new Ziegfeld Theater.

By this time almost everybody who frequents the theaters knows Mr. Ed Wynn and his particular brand of comedy. There is probably nothing like it in the realm of amusements. Mr. Wynn is simply Mr. Wynn. There is no other, never was, never will be—and when he ever gets to the point that he tires of all this nonsensicality, if ever he does, the world will be a sadder world for his removal.

The only character absent from the rigmarole that they call "Simple Simon" is the pie-man. All the other folks are there—for this develops rather early into a dream-fantasy that carries out a Cinderella story, with an Aladdin's lamp in it, and Peter Pan, and a host of Mother Goose characters, including a goose itself.

With all the fan-fare and flurry, it simmers down to Ed Wynn and the premiere dansuese, probably of the world, Miss Harriet Hoctor. She was last seen here in another Ziegfeld show, "The Three Musketeers, and remains, now as then, about the loveliest exponent of poetic motion extant.

Of course, Ed Wynn has a lot of new inventions—and some of them are so absolutely ridiculous that they throw an audience into spasms of laughter.

A goodly company surrounds the comedian, getting funnier with age—though age has yet to touch him—and there is one outstanding tune, Wini Shaw has two splendid specialty numbers. In one, Mr. Wynn accompanies her on his strolling piano; another innovation.

It should be sufficient to say that Ed Wynn is in town.

Rio Back to Normal.

Life in Rio de Janeiro followed virtually its normal course today. Most of the cafes and bars opened this morning after the new chief of police had permitted the sale of beer. Strong alcoholic drinks are still barred.

Porto Allegre, Brazil, Oct. 26 (A.P.). Col. Kinghelofo today assumed the presidency of the state of Sao Paulo. Reports here said Getullo Vargas had started north from Ponta Grossa after receiving a call from the Rio de Janeiro Junta asking him to assume the presidency of the republic.

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—For the past two weeks masters of all ships leaving the harbor here have been ordered either to signal or to pass close to Fort Santa Cruz, Senhor Costa Pinto, captain of the port, said today.

Origin of Shelling Censored.

The "closed port" signal has been flying from Fort Santa Cruz, according to the commander, Capt. Affonso de Carvalho.

The shelling of the German steamer Baden by one of the Rio harbor forts has been explained as due to her captain's having disregarded signals to stop.

Officials of the Hamburg-American Line in Germany have expressed strong doubts that Capt. Rolin, one of their most experienced officers, would have run the risk of disregarding such orders, or of leaving port without hoisting his colors.

Censorship in Rio de Janeiro has cloaked the true account of the origin of the shelling, which killed 27 persons and injured 35 others.

Hamburg, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Official information received today from the German legation at Rio de Janeiro said that 27 persons were killed when a Brazilian fort shelled the German steamer Baden last week. The dead included one German citizen.

Scores Are Injured.

Twenty-five persons, including three German passengers and three German members of the crew, were seriously injured. Thirty-three others were slightly injured. Most of the others aboard were Spanish.

The German killed was a stoker.

The rear mast of the Baden was shot away by the guns of the fort. The ship will remain in Rio de Janeiro for repairs and then continue to Buenos Aires.

Hamburg-American Line officials were still without direct word from the ship's officers tonight, and assumed that all private and commercial messages were being held up by censorship.

Errand Boy, 16, Claims Junior Altitude Mark

Roosevelt Field, N. Y., Oct. 26 A. A.).—Paul Clough, 16-year-old errand boy at Roosevelt Field, today soared to what he claims to be a junior altitude record for light planes.

In a tiny monoplane with a 30-horsepower motor—a craft which is really a power glider—Clough climbed until the plane would go no higher. His altimeter read 11,800 feet. He also carried a barograph, which will be sent to Washington for calibration. It is believed no record had been established previously for such a flight.

Clough, who recently obtained a flier's license, is the son of a Garden City real estate man. After school he works at this field, his chief task being to hop on his bicycle and obtain the names of occupants of planes taking off and landing.

Stocks or Commodities

Every business has something to sell, and present conditions are all in favor of the buyer. You may choose to invest your funds in stocks or bonds, in real estate or real estate securities, or to take advantage of present low prices on clothing, foodstuffs, furniture, automobiles or other items. The choice in expenditure must be your own, but in any case it will prove to your advantage to buy now . . . The Washington Post is advocating a program of judicious spending, in relation to every business, because of the present advantage conferred on the general public.

BRAZILIAN FEDERAL TROOPS DISBANDING

Street and Park Names in Sao Paulo Are Being Canged Generally.

PRISONERS ARE FREED

Sao Paulo, Brazil, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—The new revolutionary government here and in Rio de Janeiro already has begun to disband the federal armies that three weeks ago took the field against the rebels.

Troops have reached this city from the Minas Geraes sector, where the federals claimed most of their gains. They are being brought in quietly and demobilized.

Rioting here on Friday and Saturday caused the wounding of 50 persons during street fighting. Most of the injuries were not serious.

The change in government was celebrated here by a general change in names of streets and parks. Many of the old names were replaced with placards bearing the names of the successful revolutionary leaders. A street was named after Joao Pessoa, former governor of Parahyba, who was assassinated last summer in Pernambuco.

The Commercial Association of Sao Paulo today published an appeal to commercial houses and banks to reopen tomorrow and carry on business as usual.

The revolution in Sao Paulo had its own Bastille in the shape of the Cambucy Prison, which was stormed by a mob and destroyed yesterday morning.

Political prisoners were held in the prison and rumors of torture and mistreatment inflicted upon them began to circulate among the excited populace early in the day.

Crows collected around the walls and as the excitement grew, speakers exhorted the mob to storm the prison and release the captives.

The mob surged forward and with little resistance burst into the prison, released the prisoners and set fire to the building. Only the walls were left standing today. Many whips and wooden instruments alleged to have been used in third degree treatment were taken away as souvenirs.

Air Record Try Set for Navy Day

Schoenhair to Attempt New 1,000-Kilometer Mark at Akron.

Akron, Ohio, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—An official assault upon the world record for airplane flight of 1,000 kilometers, or 625 miles, over a closed course will feature observance of Navy Day here tomorrow.

Lee Schoenhair, noted distance flier, who has held several transcontinental airplane marks, will try for the 1,000-kilomtter mark in a monoplane owned by the Goodrich Co. He will cover an officially charted triangular course of, roughly, 50 miles, touching Akron, Massillon and Canton.

Frdinand Lasne, of France, holds the world record for 1,000 kilometers, made in France in 1925, at 184.793 miles per hour.

Urging of Cardinal Forced Luis to Resign Presidency

Ruler Defied Advisers Three Hours Until Prelate Said Loudly, So Chief Could Hear, That Time for Vacillation Had Passed.

Sao Paulo, Brazil, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—The story of how President Washington Luis was forced to retire from the executive office to prison before the urging of a cardinal, a bishop, and military officers, was made public today for the first time.

In a setting such as Dumas might have drawn for one of D'Artagnan's exploits, Senhor Washington Luis defied his advisers for three hours. He finally yielded when Cardinal Leme said in a loud voice, which the president could not help overhearing, that the people were aroused, the time for vacillation had passed, and the president should retire to a fortress.

The bishop then gained the president's ear and persuaded him to submit.

After receiving an ultimatum from the military junta on the morning of October 24, the president declared positively he would not resign. He was taken in the library of Guanabara Palace at Rio de Janeiro surrounded by his entire cabinet. Mayor Prado Junior and other personages also were present.

When informed that rebel generals had arrived, President Luis first said he would not receive them. He retired to an adjoining room and shut the door. Gen. Tasso Fragoso, president of the military junta, walked into an adjoining room. Both he and the president could be heard walking back and forth with agitated footsteps.

Presently the general strolled into the library and said he did not wish to intrude but must insist on knowing where the president was. Those in the library pointed to the door of the room in which the president was walking.

Thereupon Gen. Fragoso and several other officers entered and had a short conversation with the president. At Senhor Luis' request, the general and his aids retired. Military officers, however, requested the cabinet and others in the library to leave and posted sentries at the doors after they departed.

This was about 2 p. m. Until 5 p. m. the president remained alone. Finally Cardinal Leme, entering the room next to where the president sat, said in a loud voice that the occasion did not permit of vacillation. He added that the people were tremendously stirred up and the president should retire to a fortress or barracks.

The cardinal, addressing his words to the minister of foreign relations, requested that Bishop Benedicto be allowed to speak to the president in his name before it was too late. The bishop was allowed to enter Luis' room and very shortly he appeared, saying the president would retire.

The news was immediately communicated to the junta. A closed car was prepared and the president, accompanied by the cardinal and bishop, went to Fort Copacabana. Officers rode on the running boards of the car, which was followed by another machine carrying Gen. Fragoso. Fragoso silenced the hissing with which the crowds greeted the captured president.

A new chief of police was appointed and efforts to restore order under the revolutionary government began at once.

TWO WOMEN HELD IN BUCKLEY KILLING

Pair, Who Visited Man Accused of Murder, Expected to Face Grand Jury.

PHONING IS RECALLED

Detroit, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Police announced today that two young women who visited Angelo Livecchi at the Wayne County jail Saturday were arrested and are held incommunicado in connection with the slaying of Jerry Buckley, radio political commentator.

Livecchi is awaiting trial on a murder charge and is accused by police of being one of the "trigger men" in the Buckley assassination.

The women held are Dorothy Allen, 24, and Dorothy Eckert, 24. They probably will be taken before the 22-man grand jury which is investigating the Buckley slaying tomorrow. Police indicated they were detained on orders of I. A. Capizzi, assistant prosecutor assigned to the grand jury prosecuting staff.

An hour before Buckley was shot at 1:55 a. m. on July 23, he received a telephone call from a woman. Detectives have expressed the belief that the call drew him to the lobby of the LaSalle Hotel, where three gunmen poured eleven bullets into his body.

Police Commissioner Thomas C. Wilcox said today he expected an invitation to appear before the grand jury tomorrow to gain further information on the recommendation of the jury that three high police officers be removed from the detective division.

Last Friday, the grand jury issued a statement which said that Inspector Robert A. MacPherson, acting chief of detectives, Inspector Norval Marlett, head of the black hand squad, and Lieutenant Detective Max Waldfogel should be removed immediately. Commissioner Wilcox said today, "I merely want direct assurance that their charges are made on a basis of fact."

"Then I will act immediately," he added.

HUNDREDS IN INDIAN RITE HURT BY POLICE

Mounted Police at Bombay Cane Crowd at Ceremony by Gandhi's Backers.

HAD BEEN PROHIBITED

Bombay, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Repeated charges by mounted police across the Maidan, a 20-acre sport field, today broke up a flag salutation ceremony by the Congress Party, which had been prohibited by the authorities.

Officials of the Congress party said 265 persons had been injured, some gravely. The police estimated that fewer than 200 were hurt and fewer than 20 seriously. The majority of the injuries were inflicted by the canes of the white sergeants and staves wielded by the Mahratta foot police. Fifty-seven persons were arrested, including 22 women.

Tens of thousands of Ghandicapped white-robed sympathizers of the Congress Party had assembled at the field to witness the flag demonstration. For nearly two hours the bearded, khaki-clad mounted police dashed back and forth across the field, swinging their clubs in an endeavor to clear the place.

It was the most spectacular demonstration by the mounted police witnessed by Bombay since the civil disobedience campaign started.

CLIMAX IN POLITICS IS NEARING IN SPAIN

Portugal May Be Drawn Into Revolution Expected in Ten Days.

SINGLE TOPIC IS REVOLT

By ALBIN E. JOHNSON.

Lisbon, Oct. 26 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Political developments are rapidly approaching a climax in Spain which may even precipitate a revolution in Portugal, which has remained reasonably calm since Gen. Oscar Carmona supervised the 1926 elections so effectively as to firmly ensconce himself as military dictator according to the style of Primo de Rivera and Pilsudski.

The crash in the Iberian Peninsula may come within ten days or be delayed pending a more opportune moment. Over the length and breadth of Spain Antimonarchists and Republicans have been counting heads for the last three months. Strikes have already been held at Saragosa, Cadiz, Barcelona, Malaga, Salamanca, Grenada, Seville, San Sebastian, Valencia, Bilbos, Coruna and in the industrial centers of Alcoy and Lugo.

On the surface there is no plausible economic reason for the walkouts observable. They were called unexpectedly and called off overnight.

Single Topic is Revolution.

Having crisscrossed Spain, this correspondent everywhere found the single topic of conversation to be a "revolition." The upheavals in South America are having incalculable psychological effects in both Spain and Portugal, although the Carmona regime has restored normal conditions economically since the establishment of the Portuguese dictatorship five years ago.

Nearly a score of revolutions swept the country between 1910 and 1926, but now the censorship, the suppression of Parliament and the attempts by Carmona to create a national union along the lines of Primo de Rivera's "Union Petriotica" has caused great apprehension.

For the first time since the dictatorship was established Carmona's intention of returning to constitutional parliamentary government was announced by Fernando Branco, foreign minister until a few years ago. The interview was permitted to be printed in Lisbon newspapers which accepted it with reserve.

Troops Surround Lisbon.

On October 6 the government was so jumpy that troops were bivouacked overnight at all strategical points around Lisbon. The opening of the universities has aggravated the conditions. Students at the universities are starting agitation for a revolution.

Spanish students in the universities at Madrid, Barcelona and other centers are agitating, and even the Catholic colleges at Escorial L'Uesto and Bilboa are seething with republican agitation despite the fact that the church is the strongest pillar of the monarchy. The fact that the monarchists are intriguing is of the greatest significance.

At the court, cliques are seeking to speed the marriage of Crown Prince Jaime with the daughter of a non-royal Spanish aristocrat as a rallying point of the conservatives should Alfonso be ousted. The court physicians believe that Don Jaime has overcome a malady which is transmittable only through the female line, and could produce a healthy heir apparent which would justify a regency. Monarchists are pinning their hopes upon some such medical experiment.

CAPT. T. A. GREEN, WAR VETERAN, DEAD

Man Shot At During Raid by John Brown Dies of Long Illness.

FOUGHT AGAINST SPAIN

Capt. Thomas A. Green, 83-year-old veteran of the Spanish-American War, died yesterday at Walter Reed Hospital following a long illness.

Capt. Green was born in Harpers Ferry, Va., now West Virginia, in 1847. During the noted raid he was shot at a number of times by John Brown's men and he witnessed Brown's execution at Charles Town, W. Va. While attending a military school near Philadelphia, he helped organize a regiment, was commissioned as a colonel by the Governor of Pennsylvania, and his regiment stopped a riot among strikers. In 1869 he moved to Lynchburg, Va., and became a dealer in leaf tobacco. In 1884 he came to Washington as secretary of the late Senator Daniel, and later became law librarian of the Interior Department, remaining in that position until he retired, about nine years ago.

Capt. Green served in the Navy during the Spanish-American War. He was prominent in the activities of many veteran organizations, serving as past commander of the Admiral George Dewey Camp of Veterans, as secretary emeritus of the Military Service Legion and as a member of the Henry W. Lawton Camp and council of administration of Spanish War Veterans.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Emma F. O'Brien, of Bramwell, Va., and a son, Clarence H. Green, of this city.

Funeral services and interment will be held on Wednesday in Lynchburg, Va.

Wheeling Capitalist Dies.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—I. M. Scott, president since 1920 of the Wheeling Steel Corporation, has announced his retirement, effective immediately.

Lecture on Parks Scheduled.

An illustrated lecture on the subject, "National Parks of the East," will be given tomorrow night at the Arts' Club, 2017 I street northwest, by Dr. Harold C. Bryant, assistant director of the National Park Service.

BUGS MORAN SEIZED TO BLOCK GANG WAR

North Side Leader Reported Gathering His Mob for Al Capone Attack.

AEILLO GUNMEN SOUGHT

Chicago, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Spurred by recurrent reports of the mobilization of a new force for a war against the regime of "Scarface Al" Capone, police struck twice today at the remnants of the decimated Moran-Aiello gang.

George "Buggs" Moran, who alone of the leaders of the North Side entente rode through the six-year vendetta with the Capone gang and who is reputed to be prime mover in the marshaling of the new mob, was captured by police at a roadhouse in Bluff Lake, Ill.

Simultaneously detective squads combed the Aiello domain in Chicago, raiding the bullet-scarred headquarters of the clan whose pistols supported Joe Aiello in his insistent efforts to gain control of the local Union Siciliana. No gunmen were found in the district nor were any located before the $11,000 bier of Aiello, who fell Thursday with 135 bullets in his body.

The raiders learned that many peace-loving Italians have been hurriedly moving from the district. This, investigators said, is certain evidence that the Aiellos plan a fight to the finish.

Dominic Aiello, dubbed "the sharpshooter," will succeed to the Aiello clan leadership, police said. He has been tried for murder several times but acquitted each time.

Moran was taken as he sat reading newspaper accounts of the lavish funeral planned for the man who shared with him the leadership of the North Side gang since the slaying of Dion O'Banion in 1924—also the man, police said, who was to march with Moran in the plotted campaign against their common enemy, "Scarface Al."

A double-barrel shotgun was within arm's reach of Moran but he made no attempt to use it. He was rushed to court and charged with vagrancy and with conspiracy to defeat justice in concealing Leo Mongoven, his will o' the wisp bodyguard who has eluded authorities for months. A $20,000 bond was set. Moran was unable to provide it and was taken to jail.

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—It looked like a Republican victory for a while the other day. I attended a luncheon given by the women's division of the New York Republican county committee.

All the candidates were there, Mr. Tuttle, Mr. Baumes, the dry-wet candidate for lieutenant governor; Mayor Conway of Oswego, candidate for comptroller, and Mr. Isadore Bookstein, candidate for attorney general.

The spacious grand ballroom of the Hotel Astor was crowded and decorated. It was a gala occasion and there was no depression there at all.

* * * *

THE band played the "Star-Spangled Banner," the "Stein Song," "My Old Kentucky Home," "Dixie" and "A Little Kiss Each Morning," to signify, presumably, that they approved of all of them.

Then there was a quartette. Everybody got to be in a good and optimistic mood.

Then, lo and behold, the lights were dimmed. A spotlight focused on a corner entrance to the room. All eyes were, of course, turned that way.

There appeared Max, the head waiter, dressed simply in a dinner suit, but whose majesty his bearing would not deny.

* * * *

MAX stopped and surveyed his crowd but just for a second only. Then he advanced. And behind him came two other men bearing a cake, a huge cake fashioned after the capitol at Albany. Poles were run under the platter which contained it and the two carriers bore it on their shoulders.

Following them came girls holding candles, seemingly 200 of them, maybe a million. Anyway all the waitresses in the hotel must have been mustered for the occasion.

They marched in silently and wended in and out of the diners, with Max at the head and no general leading his field forces could have appeared more grand.

* * * *

NEVER has the desire to be a head waiter and be at the head of such a parade taken such a hold upon me. It was impressive. It was not a matter of a few minutes.

Max led his cake and candle bearers all around the room, down this way, back that way, in and out of the tables and back again.

The crowd broke into a voluminous cheer. Involuntarily I observed: "It looks like victory."

"Victory nothing," said an unfeeling fellow next to me. "That's the loudest cheer Tuttle has received in the whole campaign."

And another one remarked cynically:

"Every one of those waitresses and Max himself is a Tammanyite."

That is, of course, what the Republicans are up against in this State.

MARYLAND YOUTH SERIOUSLY INJURED BY HIT-RUN DRIVER

Thought From Baden, He Is Found in Road and Brought to Hospital.

WRECKED CAR NEARBY; VICTIM MAY SUCCUMB

Woman Caled to Hospital in Attempt to Identify Him as Her Son.

A youth believed to be Weaver Davis, 19 years old, of Baden, Md., is in a critical condition at Casualty Hospital as a result of what police think was a hit-and-run accident last night on the road between Brandywine and Baden, Md.

The injured youth was found lying on the road by Randolph R. Latimer, of Silver Hills, Md., and Catherine Dove, of Forestville, Md. They saw the form in the road by the headlights of their automobile.

Doctors at Casualty Hospital held little hope for his recovery. His injuries were diagnosed as a fractured skull and multiple fractures of the legs, and possible internal injuries.

Wrecked Auto Near.

Nearby was a wrecked machine. Police had not determined whether the automobile is the property of Weaver, or whether it had been abandoned after it knocked the man down.

There is a possibility, the police said, that he was thrown from the automobile before its abandonment.

Mrs. Davis, the mother of Weaevr Davis, was summmoned late last night to atempt to identify the youth as her son. At midnight she had not arrived at the hospital.

Youth Remains Unconscious.

Police were unable to say whether the youth had ben knocked down by an automobile, whether he had been thrown from a car, or whether he had been driving a car.

From the time of his admittance to the hospital he remained unconscious.

Police wer waiting for him to regain consciousness in the hope that he might explain the accident.

195,159 ILLITERATES IN VIRGINIA IN 1920

Prevalence Largely Rural, but Richmond Has 7,931 in Report.

GROUP SEEKS SOLUTION

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Figures confronting the Virginia advisory committee on illiteracy, recently appointed by Gov. Pollard, show there were 195,159 illiterate persons in the State of Virginia at the time of the 1920 census.

This number the committee was informed was greater than the combined illiteracy of Arizona, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Oklahoma, Washington, South Dakota and Wyoming.

The 1920 census placed Virginia 41 percentage of native white illiterates, with a total of 70,473 in the State. The same census placed the Old Dominion fortieth from the top in total percentage of illiteracy. There were 162,736 illiterates of voting age—86,819 miles and 75,557 families.

Illiteracy, the committee was told, was largely rural but there were 7,931 illiterates in Richmond, the capital, and 458 in Charlottesville, the seat of the University of Virginia.

The committee of which Dean Charles G. Maphis, of the University is chairman, is now at work in an effort to formulate a practical plan for the solution of the illiteracy problem.

TUTTLE FORCES DRY ISSUE IN NEW YORK

G. O. P. Wets Pin Their Hopes to His Victory in This Campaign.

SOME SEE PARTY SPLIT

really counts. Yet Tuttle is not as wet as Gov. Roosevelt, at that. For one thing, Roosevelt has the wet tradition of the New York Democrats behind him and he has not advocated the counties having enforcement acts as Tuttle has. But Tuttle is wet enough and from the national wet standpoint is more important than Roosevelt.

Tuttle Supported Here.

At present the national administration at Washington seems to be giving Tuttle full support. Secretary of War Hurley has made a speech here for him, Under Secretary of the Treasury is making several speeches and Secretary of State Stimson, a New York Stater, is expected to appear.

But the parade was rather forced, observers here say. No assistance came out of Washington until Roosevelt's supporters began to capitalie the lack of it, it is said. Roosevelt's supporters were going around saying that Washington was not keen about Tuttle, so Washington had to make some move to quiet this attack.

There is no question that factional leaderships are involved. If Tuttle should win, the now pretty much down-and-out Hilles' faction, anti-Hoover, would again be in the saddle.

Hilles Was Against Hoover.

Hilles was against Hoover in the preprimary campaign of 1928, and he represents the group that never has and probably never will warm up to Hoover.

And yet, while Tuttle is looked upon as Hilles' candidate, Tuttle is said to have been acceptable to the President until he took the bit in the teeth and, coming out for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, demanded a plank in the State platform upholding him. Since that time the President is believed to have been lukewarm to his candidacy, to say the least. It is a commentary on politics that the turn of events has brought Ogden Mills, original Hoover supported in New York in 1928, into the State campaigning in Tuttle's behalf when his election would do the Hoover cause no good at all.

Now as to just why the administration was willing to accept Tuttle, a Hilles man, without the wet platform, is hard to explain, unless it is that as a dry he would not have had a chance in the world. But his forcing the convention to adopt a wet platform not only gives him a better chance but, more important, constitutes possible serious trouble for the administration on the wet and dry question in 1932.

His Issues for Campaign.

Tuttle is a forceful fellow, a typical district attorney type, with a positive and accusative aggressiveness that gives him a good campaigning presence. He suggests, in action, a red-head though his hair is more nearly pumpkin-colored. He is square-jawed and has a ready comman d of speech, as a district attorney should have.

And he has issues in this campaign. Having eliminated the prohibition handicap which the Republicans have heretofore had to face, he must have issues of attack. He has them. He has the selling of judgeships by Tammany and other things which should arouse an electorate and cause it to kick the Democrats out on their necks, not that Roosevelt is personally involved, but he is an inescapable part of the Tammany power. He is dependent upon Tammany for reelection.

But this is not the only scandal upon which Tuttle has to work. The New York newspapers seem to be gleefully turning other municipal stenches up every day without regard to partisanship.

Will they be sufficient to elect Tuttle? One might say emphatically that they should. But will they? I'll discuss that later.

McPete, Soccer Coach, Success at Haverford

Special to The Washington Post.

Haverford, Pa., Oct. 26.—Haverford College's soccer coach, James McPete, is again living up to the admirable record which he has built during his nine years of coaching at the Main Line Institution. McPete came to Haverford in 1923 after a long and successful record with the Pennsylvania Railroad teams. In his fourth season he produced an undefeated aggregation, which ranked as one of the outstanding intercollegiate soccer teams. He has always had successful teams here. McPete's coaching is a hobby to him, as he is an official of the Pennsylvania Railroad. His good results are due to his personality as well as to his knowledge of the game. The style of play which he coaches is the short passing game used in Great Britain.

Culpeper Woman Dies Of Pneumonia Attack

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 26.—Miss Josie W. Johnson, of Rixeyville, Culpeper County, died last night at University Hospital, following an attack of bronchitis and pneumonia.

Miss Johnson was born and reared in Loudoun County. She was the daughter of the late Richard Johnson, and was 63 years of age. The body was taken today to her former home, where the funeral and interment will take place.

POLICE OF DENVER DON'T FIT INTO JOKE

One About Irishman Falls Flat; Many Johnsons on the Force.

ONE NAMED LAWLESS

Special to The Washington Post.

Denver, Oct. 26.—Will Rogers or some other comedian once suggested that we should annex Ireland and raise our own policemen, the assumption being that all policemen are Irish or that all Irishmen are policemen.

The rule (or rules) applied to Denver's force disproves itself in short order by a simple reference to the directory of the city's 400 or more bluecoats.

For instance, if all were drawn up in one inspection and the chief shouted "Johnson!" an even squad of Johnsons would respond.

Eight Johnsons can hardly be called Irish. If one Johnson were by himself and he were a small Johnson one might refer to him as an Hibernian and get away with it. But these eight Johnsons are all big Johnsons and they're seldom alone.

The Johnsons lead the force in numbers. There are, however, three Andersons, two Lindquists, two Olsons, Nelson, Nielson, Nilson and Swanson sprinkled through the ranks.

The Irish policeman idea gains some support from the four O'Donnells, the two Ryans and the two Dillons.

But their lead is lessened by four Campbells and a long string of McAuliffes, McCaslands, McDonalds, McLeans, McKinneys, McKinnons, McCoys and McPhails.

They come back with Laheys and a fine bunch of names like Callaghan, Doty, Dowd, Duffy, Finnie, Finnelly, Madden, Madigan, Mahoney, Malone, McCabe, McCarthy, McMahon, O'Connor, O'Farrell, O'Loughlin O'Brien and Sullivan.

But there are the two Kreilings and such good officers as Krisl, Kurth; Schmidt, Schneider, Schumacher, Schwab and Steiger.

The common names that occupy long pages in the city directory are missing on the police department. There are only three Smiths, one Jones, no Browns and no Cohens.

The Clark family has four representatives.

One of the best law enforcers on the job is named Lawless.

And here is a list of a few more men who are decidedly not Irish and who are, in spite of the adage, good policemen:

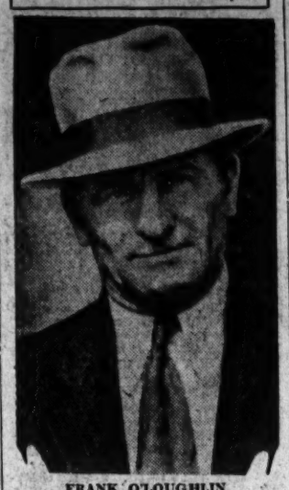

Kofsky, Spiva, Zawodsky, Kuskulis, Marcolina, Marinaro, Pizzichino, Renovato and Sarconi.

Foreign Wars Veterans Present Band to Butler

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Overseas and of Washington was formally presented to Maj. Gen. Smedley D. utler at Quantico yesterday afternoon by Maj. H. A. Miller, of the Twentieth Marines.

LABORITES ARMING FOR POLITICAL WAR

MacDonald Forces Will Fortify Position Against General Election.

UNEMPLOYMENT IS ISSUE

Londno, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Faced with the possibility of being driven in the near future into a general election campaign, Ramsay MacDonald's Laborites are beginning to fortify their positions against expected attacks from the Conservative regiments under Stanley Baldwin and the Liberal cavalry of David Lloyd George.

Word has gone out from the Conservative headquarters to attack the Laborites on all sides and especially to drive against their weakest spot, the failure to solve the unemployment problem.

That is one thing that the MacDonald men can not get away from. Not only have they failed to find a remedy for unemployment, but they have had to stand by and watch the number double since they took office.

Drive Out Conservatives.

When they drove the Conservatives out of the latter's parliamentary trenches sixteen months ago, it was largely on that issue, for the army of the idle then numbered 1,100,125. Now it is at the highest figure since just after the war.

Many voters are bound to hold the MacDonald administration responsible for this, but the government is loading up with ammunition designed to shatter that argument by showing that no party could have stopped the onward march of unemployment in England in the face of opposition offered by world-wide economic conditions.

And Labor will use another of its weaknesses, too, as a talking point. It has been dependent for existence as a government upon Liberal support, so it will urge that it must have an absolute majority in the next Parliament if the people want to see real action.

On the question of the situation in India the MacDonald men will make a similar plea, asserting that as a minority government they have been handicapped in dealing with the disturbing movement engineered by Mahatma Gandhi.

Sources of Strength.

On the positive side the administration has a number of achievements behind which to take shelter from the political bomb-throwers. A fortress in itself is the London naval conference, in which MacDonald and his colleagues recaptured the good will of America and held on to the confidence of Japan.

Another bulwark is the brilliant debt settlement at The Hague wangled out of France, Italy and Belgium by Philip Snowden, the Labor party's chancellor of the exchequer.

A third source of strength to both the Liberal and Labor parties is the rift in the Conservative forces at the moment on the question of "empire free trade."

When Parliament reassembles, some of the Liberals are going to vote for the Conservatives and some for Labor. If the former element predominates, MacDonald will be forced into an open fight before the country, and when that occurs it is thought that the Liberals, under Lloyd George's guidance, will play an active part in the campaign, dashing in to raid either or both of the other organizations whenever they see a chance to get in a telling blow.

Rigler Calls Earnshaw 'Best Since Mathewson'

Cleveland, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—George Earnshaw, says Charles Rigler, veteran National League umpire, is the greatest righthander since Christy Mathewson.

Rigler, who was one of the National League umpires in the world's series between Earnshaw's club, the Philadelphia Athletics, and the St. Louis Cardinals, said Earnshaw in addition to his speed had an assortment of curves that equaled anything in the National League.

"In one game," Rigler said, "eight out of ten balls Earnshaw pitched were curves. It was not until the last game that he really cut loose with his speed.

"The sun went down after the first two innings, and the big pitcher actually had the Cards swinging in self-protection."

assets would fall short of the total liabilities.

Brock's home was in Bryn Mawr. He leaves a son and two daughters. Reilly was a bachelor. Each man was said to have been insured for approximately $1,000,000, all payable to the brokerage firm.

Mr. Brock was 46 years old.

Francis A. Lewis, his brother-in-law, in a statement tonight said:

"Brock had been under a serious strain, undoubtedly caused by the sad death of his partner, George K. Reilly, and his recent business worries."

Rock's Shock Troops Out in Carnegie Tilt

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—For the first time in several years Rockne abandoned his "shock" troop gridiron strategy when he kept his first-string men in most of the game against Carnegie Tech. Notre Dame won, 21 to 6.

Toward the close of each half Notre Dame made many substitutions, but only when the enemy seemed to be well in hand. In virtually all of the big games of four or five years Rockne has used two or more complete teams.

In 1926 Carnegie rudely shocked the shockers, quickly piling up 19 points to win by that margin.

JUSTICE QUIZ HOLDS OIL CHARGES UNTRUE

WILBUR GETS REVIEW

entirely harmonious to the physical computations which have been presented in the figures with respect to oil shale acreage. The Government oil shale lands have not been lost or dissipated. Approximately 97 per cent of them still belong to the Government.

"In the Colorado fields 87 per cent of the oil shales are still owned by the United States and the overwhelming majority of the acreage already granted has been granted on the recommendation and with the approval of the Applicable Field Division." (Kelley's office).

The department said the investigation showed that after being summoned to Washington last July Mr. Kelley contracted with the New York World to furnish it with a "story containing charges against the Department of the Interior and various officials thereof."

The Denver field agent, it continued, did not report to the department until August 5, where he remained until September 1, when he "absented himself without permission" until he resigned.

The report revived Mr. Kelley's refusal to aid in the investigation, said papers Mr. Kelley charged had been destroyed were in the department files, that a case Mr. Kelley said had been decided for the Government really had been a decision against the Government and that former Secretary Work, former Assistant Secretary Finney and other officials had acted properly and in good faith in handling the oil shale patent cases.

Makes Charges Readily.

Mr. Kelley's charges that politics influenced the department in its decisions were described as unfounded and Mr. Richardson said Mr. Kelley's allegation that Secretary Wilbur favored oil companies was untrue. He cited a number of suits filed against Mr. Wilbur by oil companies to compel the Secretary to relax orders pertaining to them.

"The record and the files in the department, together with Mr. Kelley's correspondence," the report said, "together with the language used by Mr. Kelley in his newspaper story, indicate fairly that he makes extreme charges readily, carelessly and excitedly; that he is prone to believe people who disagree with him venal and dishonest, and that he, and he alone, possesses the proper amount of knowledge and judgment to correctly decide oil shale matters. * * * At his work at Denver, most of the lawyers and claimants, including their witnesses, were charged with bad faith and worse, and a considerable group of reputable lawyers found it necessary to formally protest to the Department of Interior against Mr. Kelley's conduct."

Finds No Merit in Charge.

The report said Mr. Kelley's method of computing the value of oil shale land by multiplying the theoretical ultimate production by the theoretical value shows "the basic lack of judgment in controversial matters possessed by Mr. Kelley."

"The department finds no merit or substance in the Kelley charges made against the Department of the Interior," the report concluded. "It has been unable to find any evidence of corruptness, irregularity or wrong doing in connection with the administration of the Interior Department of oil shale lands in the past, and, there is every evidence, under the present administration of Secretary Wilbur, that oil shale lands of the United States have been fully, fairly, adequately and lawfully protected, conserved and administered."

Mr. Kelley said in his statement that "after a hasty, superficial, so-called investigation, the Attorney General has only praise for his fellow Cabinet member, Secretary Wilbur, though the fact remains—because not even the Attorney General can escape it—that the oil companies have the Colorado oil lands. The public, to which they belong, has lost them."

Says Whitewash Applied.

"I refuse to have anything to do with the Department of Justice inquiry," he added, "because Assistant Attorney General Richardson, even before it began, made statements in the press showing that he had prejudged the case. How thoroughly justified I was in taking that position is now self-evident from its predetermined coat of whitwash applied under the guise of an 'investigation,' but still too thin to conceal the real facts."

Mr. Kelley denied he had been absent without permission, saying he was on sick leave "attested by doctor's certificate and communicated to the supervisor of the General Land Office."

"The insinuations and guesses as to my association with the New York World, while untrue," he said, "are nevertheless amusing, but inconsequential. The report is essentially a partisan brief in behalf of the Interior Department and the oil companies and a violent attack on me. * * *.

"In a word, the Department of Justice finds that the Department of the Interior has put up a noble though losing fight against the oil interests in a vain struggle to save for the public the Colorado oil lands, which it finds to be worthless anyway."

Painting Presented To Virginia Church

Mrs. F. H. Quarles Executed Copy of Famous Work by Raphael.

Special to The Washington Post

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 26.—An impressive ceremonial occurred at the First Methodist Church this morning, when a reproduction of Raphael's celebrated painting, "The Transfiguration of Christ," by Mrs. Fred Hundley Quarles, a local artist of recognized ability, was presented to the church in memory of her father and brother.

Dr. Thomas F. Carroll, presiding elder of the Charlottesville District, Methodist Episcopal Church, presided at the service. Dr. Henry C. Pfeiffer, a former pastor of the church, now stationed at Washington Street Church, Petersburg, presented the painting to the church in memory of the Rev. John T. Payne, for years a member of the Virginia conference, and Capt. E. V. Walker, of the local American Legion post, presented it in memory of Corporal Maurice L. Payne, who was killed in France during the World War.

Mrs. Quarles began the reproduction of Raphael's masterpiece in January, 1928. The Metropolitan Museum of Art, in New York, is authority for the statement that Mrs. Quarles' copy is the only oil reproduction of "The Tranfiguration" in existence.

Leesburg Council Faces Pumping Supply Issue

Special to The Washington Post

Leesburg, Va., Oct. 26.—The Leesburg town council will meet on Monday night, when the matter of purchasing new pumping equipment for the town's water supply system will again be taken up.

It is expected that a representative of a Richmond company will be present to give information on the operation of a centrifugal pump it is proposed to purchase and install in well No. 1, most important unit in the town's water system. Delegations probably will appear before the town council to urge prompt action.

COUNT TO GET ORDER OF GOLDEN FLEECE

Otto, Hungarian Pretender, to Honor Son-in-Law of American.

ZITA HOPES FOR THRONE

Budapest, Hungary, Oct. 26 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Golden Fleece, the highest distinction a Hapsburg is still able to confer, is to be given to Count Antoine Sigray, son-in-law of the late Marcus Daly, Montana copper magnate, by Prince Otto, pretender to the Hungarian throne, according to Reggeli Ujsag, Budapest newspaper. The honor will be confererd, it is understood, on November 20, Otto's eighteenth birthday, when he attains his legal majority.

Count Sigray is championing Otto's claim to the Hungarian throne, and it is as leading Legitimist in the lower house of the Hungarian Parliament that he is receiving the golden collar with the golden sheep pendant, a most coveted honor since the order of the Golden Fleece was founded by Philip the Good of Burgundy. Since 1477 Hapsburg descendants in Austria and Spain have had the right to confer it.

Sigray, combining his own wealth with the great fortune inherited from Daly, is one of the most powerful influences upon which former Empress Zita, Otto's mother, is counting to place her son on the Hungarian throne. Two others upon whose support she relies, Count Zicky and Ivom Scekonios, are also to receive the Golden Fleece.

The right of Otto to confer honors is not disputed by other members of the Hapsburg family, but his claim to the Hungarian throne is not unanimously supported.

Former Empress Zita asked all members of the Hapsburg family several months ago to express themselves on Otto's claims. The archdukes who are living in Austria acquiesced in them. Those living in Galicia, and hence in Poland, refused. Those in Hungary, former Field Marshal Archduke Joseph and his son, Josef Francis, avoided taking sides by saying that the laws of Hungary forbid renewing the oath of allegiance.

This will not prevent the Hungarain legitimists from preparing a celebration of Otto's birthday next month. The cathedral which dominates Buda, the part of the Hungarian capital in which coronations traditionally take place, will be the scene of a solemn mass and at least several legitimate discourses. The Horthy regency, it is expected, will oblige the legitimists to confine their enthusiasm to the cathedral.

GODDARD GRILLING WILL BE HALTED

prints of the death bullet and Col. Goddard pointed out the similarity.

In making the Souder pictures, a test bullet is placed under one microscope and a death bullet is placed under anothe. Then, by means of reflections, it is possible to view both bullets through the one eye-piece. The Souder phoographs were taken through the eye-piece and both the bullets appear on one photograph.

Mr. Collins says that the photographs to be introduced today show clearly that the scratches on the test and death bullet coincide perfectly, and are visible on the one photograph.

Photographs Scouted.

The defense attorneys have described the Goddard photographs as "anything but convincing." It was pointed out that all the scratches on the Campbell bullets do not coincide with the fatal projectiles. This fact was admitted by Col. Goddard, who said that the discrepancies were caused by powder, rust and other matter. He added that there are sufficient underlying traces to demonstrate that Campbell's gun fired the death shots.

Mr. Smith became ill Saturday night and has since been in bed. At his home it was said that he has a severe cold, but probably will be in court tomorrow. Mr. Vandoren said that the defense will request that other Government witnesses be placed on the stand.

Mr. Collins intends to call Dr. Souder and Lieut. John Fowler, ballistics experts, and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Turnbull, of 1424 R street northwest, who, on the night of April 12, saw the girl's car parked at the point where it was found on April 2. A photographer from the Bureau of Standards may also be called.

Court Is Adjourned.

When the defense accepted the Government's offer to have Col. Goddard demonstrate by tests that ballistics is infallible, Justice Jesse C. Adkins, the presiding judge, adjourned court so that opposing lawyers could agree on the details of the test.

So far no agreement has been reached because, Mr. Collins said, the defense attorneys wished to revise their acceptance. Instead of having several guns, selected at random, as the instruments of the tets, the defense will ask that the Campbell gun be included in the group and asked that the jury be permitted to determine whether Campbell's gun fired the death shots.

Mr. Collins opposes a single test of the Campbell pistol on the ground that Col. GoGddard has already demonstrated that Campbell's gun fired the mortal bullets.

Decision Due Today.

The determination will be made today whether the defense lawyers will hold to the original proposal, whether Mr. Collins will accept the alternative porposal, or whether the tests will be dropped entirely.

In regard to the proposed tests, the defense has taken the position that it is not interested in any display of ability by Col. Goddard, but is concerned with the determination whether Campbell's gun is or is not the death gun.

Measuring to Be Asked.

Under the new proposal of the defense, Col. Goddard will be asked to measure the widths of the scratches on the death bullets and on the bullets from Campbell's revolver. It is the defense contention that scratches on the mortal bullets show a width of 9 and 10 one-thousandths of an inch, alternately, about the circumference.

Bullets from the Campbell gun, the defense says, show that the width of the scratches varies from 8 to 11 one-thousandths of an inch. This fact, the defense says, demonstrates that Campbell's gun could not have fired the bullets that killed the girl.

Dr. Albert H. Hamilton, defense expert, and his son, Robert H. Hamilton, yesterday made a tour of the probable route of Mary Baker's car from the poin in the Ellipse, where she was seen attacked to the point where her car was found.

They said they made some discoveries which would show that the crime was not committed in the District.

MAN IN GREEN HAT REVEALS SENATE OFFICE RUM DEALS

plies when I could see the stock was getting low. A few times I was given a key to a member's desk so I could take care of his needs even though he should not be in when I called.

Senators Asked Dignity.

I would say that the senators usually asked for a little more dignity in the proceeding, but there was not much variety in the system in use. I recall one senator who wouldn't have the stuff left in his desk. He made it a rule to store it on the top shelf of a bookcase in his private office which was reserved for bound volumes of the Congressional Record.

He never mentioned liquor to me, but occasionally he would say he could use some "new reading matter."

I would then come around when he was out and slip a couple of volumes off the shelf, put in the supplies and put the Congressional Record back in place. This customer always referred to me as his "librarian."

Frequently I would have a close shave when a member might receive an unexpected call from a dry constituent or from some member of his family, who disapproved drinking.

Cassiday's Tact Appreciated.

Sometimes I was right in the midst of a transaction when some one would break in, but I always managed to pull my brief case together and get away before any damage was done. The senators and representatives were not, as a rule, very quick in such cases and sometimes got flustered, but I found they appreciated my doing whatever the situation called for.

As a matter of fact, the general run of the constituents, with whom I came into contact from all parts of the country, had no objections to taking a drink. They often relied on their senator or representative to help them out when they were attending conventions or stopping off to see the sights at Washington. Some of them got a real thrill out of having a drink right under the shadow of the Capitol dome—it was something they could tell about when they got home. In this way, I got to know many members who never drank themselves, but who asked me to take care of constituents of theirs who were visiting in Washington.

It may be that the difference in office quarters in the two houses of Congress has something to do with the contrast between the average senator and the average representative which I noticed from the start.

Senators Have More Privacy.

They have 435 members packed into the House Office Building, with only one room to each Representative except the chairman of committees. The representative doesn't even have a reception room or an anteroom and he has to see folks as they come in without any formality.

There are only 96 senators in the Senate Office Building and every senator has at least two large rooms and some of them draw an extra office in the Capitol. These are furnished with big mahogany desks and leather upholstered chairs. A senator can get in or out of his office or whisk a visitor into his private room without even his office staff knowing it.

I believe that is one of the reasons why members of the House have been less successful in getting by with violations of the prohibition laws than the senators.

Easier to Watch Representatives.

The prohibition agents who get up on Capitol Hill occasionally find it a great deal easier to watch a representative and his visitors than to shadow a senator's office. The cases of Representative Denison, of Illinois, who had a trunk load of liquor taken out of his office, and Representatives Michaelson, of Illinois, and Morgan, of Ohio, who were accused of smuggling in suitcases of liquor, are the kind of thing I am talking about.

Whether or not these congressmen were guilty of the things they are charged with, I do know all of them had the full sympathy of most of their colleagues. They felt that these men had just been unfortunate enough to get caught doing what many other members were getting away with. But you will notice that no senator has been arrested for violation of the prohibition law since the eighteenth amendment went into effect.

When I got to know a member well and met the friends who came to see him from his own State or congressional district, it was only natural for me to get interested in his campaign for renomination or reelection. It cut me up considerably when one of my friends in the House or Senate was defeated.

Guide for Constituents.

I got interested in the big debates that were going on in the House and Senate and when I had time I would spend a few hours in the gallery listening to the speeches. Sometimes a member would ask me to accompany constituents of his who would not know their way about in the winding corridors of the Capitol and needed some one to get them to their seats to watch the proceedings.

I have sat in the gallery and heard one of my customers deliver a rattling good prohibition speech. On other occasions I have heard members of the House and Senate making strong arguments on the floor that prohibition was being well enforced when I knew good stuff was being regularly delivered at their own offices for use by their secretaries or clerks.

I also got interested in the big fights on the tax bills, farm relief and other questions that came up over this period. Being a former service man I naturally was interested in the soldiers' bonus legislation and other bills for care and compensation for veterans, and I followed them closely.

Gave Lawmaker Advice.

On one occasion, before an election, I remember a customer of mine in the House was anxious to let his constituents know what he had been doing in Congress to help the soldiers. He didn't know what kind of an appeal would be most effective with the former service men in his district and he put the matter up to me. I gave it a good deal of thought, and finally succeeded in getting some good letters written at Washington reviewing this representative's record on the bonus and other legislation, which he circulated among the American Legion posts in his district. He told me later he believed I had done him a lot of good in helping him to come back to Congress.

There was one case where I did all I could to help reelect a United States senator. This senator had done no business with me, but I had met him several times and some of his friends were good friends of mine.

The senator I am speaking of was a dry and he had a hard fight on his hands in a Middle Western State. He had helped to get a friend of mine appointed to a Government position and this friend suggested I come out West and help in the campaign.

Congress wasn't in session and there was nothing for me to do in Washington, so I went out there and worked hard for some weeks.

I put up at a hotel in the principal city in the State and was assigned to do organization work in certain wards where they figured I could do the most good. I made a few "curtain raiser" speeches at ward meetings and circulated around generally, helping out with organization work and taking charge of distribution of posters and campaign literature. Toward the end of the campaign they also had me go to some of the outlying cities to help out in the same way there.

While out in the Middle West I attended the State fair in that State. I expected to see different conditions than I had grown used to at Washington, at that kind of a gathering. After a few days I found I was mistaken and that when folks get away from home or out for a good time they are no different from members of Congress when they get down to Washington.

Tomorrow: "The Man in the Green Hat" will tell what brands of liquor enjoy the highest favor and widest use among senators and representatives on Capitol Hill.

DANVILLE STRIKERS MAKE PARLEY OFFER

Textile Mill President Fails to Respond to Letter From Employes.

UNION SEEKS ACTION

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Oct. 26.—A definite movement toward settlement of the Danville textile strike was admitted by union officials when they issued the text of a letter sent O. H. R. Fitzgerald, mill president, on October 20, informing him that Carl Houck and L. G. Nunn, union members, had been appointed a committee to confer with him at his office in Schoolfield last Wednesday. The conference never took place because no answer to the letter was received, union officials said.

Announcement of the step, withheld for almost a week, became public property only after the attempt to secure a conference had shown itself abortive. The letter to Mr. Fitzgerald called to his attention an advertisement in the local press on October 14, paid for by stockholders, in which Mr. Fitzgerald was quoted as saying that he would at any time "meet his own employes to discuss any grievances they might have with the mill management."

Employes Signed Letter.

Houck, in commenting on the failure to receive an answer, stated that the letter also bore the signature of several mill employes at work when the strike was declared and that he and fellow members of the committee were not certain whether or not the letter had been permitted to reach Mr. Fitzgerald.

The new peace move reopened channels of speculation in Danville today. One view was that the union was making a strategic move to compel the mill president to discuss the strike with employes and thus break what is considered a cagey silence on the part of the mill management, leaving union officials uncertain as to whether the mills desire to work on account of market conditions and hence, whether it is worth while prosecuting a strike against a corporation which is willing to remain closed during a dull time.

Another thought was that while promises of adequate support have been received from unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, this is a difficult task at a moment when industrial stagnation throughout the country is establishing a primary need of relief among members of these affiliated unions.

Fitzgerald Message Cited.

The Fitzgerald statement that he was willing to treat with "our own peoples," was first contained in his message to Gov. Pollard declining the services of a mediation committee. It was taken to mean that he would meet a committee of industrial democrats or active members of the company union with the same readiness that he had met other committees in years past but that he would not treat with representatives of the union.

The action of the union, in admitting the movement looking to a conference, failed to change the adopted policy of the mill's management which vouchsafed no comment on the incident either through the mill president or other officials of the corporation.

Two cases in which rules and regulations surrounding the distribution of motion pictures are attacked will be argued before the Supreme Court today.

Watched with keen interest by producers, distributors and exhibitors who operate the approximately 25,000 motion picture theaters in the United States, the suits charge conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce on the part of some of the leading pictures corporations.

They were brought by the Government under the Sherman antitrust law and were tried in New York City. The Government lost one and won the other.

In one suit the three-judge court held that the First National Pictures, Inc., and nine other leading corporations engaged in the distribution of motion picture films; the film boards of trade, located in 32 large cities; the officers and members of these boards, and the motion picture producers and distributors of America, were operating under lawful credit rules for the rental of motion pictures for exhibition purposes which did not violate the Federal antitrust law.

The same defendants were parties to the other suit which named the Paramount-Famous Players-Lasky Corporation first instead of the First National Pictures, Inc., the two cases being differentiated by the name of the first defendant.

The trial court found that the agreement between the distributors to impose compulsory arbitration on every exhibitor of all disputes under the standard contract under which motion pictures are rented, and the enforcement by the distributors of arbitration and arbitration awards, constituted an unlawful conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce.

The arbitration provisions of the contract were found to be unfair and unjust to the exhibitors. The Government charged that the contract was being enforced over the protest of a majority of those operating motion picture theaters not controlled by the producers or distributors.

20 Killed, Many Hurt In Smyrna Flood Waters

Istanbul, Turkey, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Twenty persons have been killed by floods in Smyrna, delayed dispatches announced today. Hundreds were injured. Train service has been discontinued, bridges having been destroyed. Ambulances were unable to operate owing to the condition of the streets. The rain, which had continued since Friday, ceased this morning. But torrents continued to pour down from the upper city and flood the crowded lower districts.

The American University, situated on high land outside Smyrna, was believed undamaged. The population of the city, however, was suffering from shortage of drinking water, all wells being filled with mud. Officials said it would take fifteen days to clear the streets of wreckage.

British Goods Boycott Asked in Hindu Prayer

Bombay, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—A slogan calling for a boycott of British goods has been made part of the Hindu early morning prayer.

The idea originated in this city and leaders of the Congress party are endeavoring to spread it throughout the country as part of their program to gain independence. In their prayer the Hindus include "let boycott of British goods be my creed," and "let not my body be polluted by anything foreign."

Premier of Greece Hailed in Turkey

Venizelos Reaches Istanbul on Way to Sign Amity Pact With Nation.

Istanbul, Turkey, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—The arrival of Premier Venizelos of Greece here, en route to Angora to sign a treaty of commerce and amity with Turkey was hailed today as a new departure in Balkan diplomacy. The premier is the first head of a Greek government ever to visit Istanbul.

He disembarked at Haidar Pasha, an Asiatic suburb of Istanbul and found Greek and Turkish flags waving together in token of the good feeling which the people expect to replace the bitterness existing since the Turks captured this city in 1593. He remained here only a short time before taking a train for Angora, where the treaty will be signed tomorrow.

At Angora a triumphal arch has been prepared in honor of the distinguished visitor. Observers said it was the first time the Kemalist party had erected such an arch for any one except Mustapha Kemal Pasha himself.

Never Ending Search

For better ways to cut food prices

As food merchant to a nation, A&P bears a responsibility greater than that demanded of a mere trader in food. Selling food to great numbers of families involves the well-being of millions of people. Reducing the nation's food bill calls for more than the slashing of grocery prices.

It calls for everlasting watchfulness for better methods of food growing and producing, of shipping, of handling and storing, of marketing and retailing food—command of every invention and every means known to man for assisting the flow of food from its sources to the store counter.

Because A&P assumes the entire task of bringing food from producer to consumer, its responsibility to the public is greater than if it performed but a small part. Its search for better methods must be never-ending. Its way of lowering the cost of food to the consumer must be the best.

A&P makes food prices low by the best methods of Today. A&P will keep food prices low by the best methods of Tomorrow.

TOWN SEEKS VOTE ON WATER SYSTEM

Falls Church Outlines Plans to Relieve Drought Situation.

BOND ISSUE PROPOSED

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 2324-W-2.

The citizens of the town of Falls Church may have a chance to vote in the near future on the question whether or not bonds will be issued for the construction of a municipal water system within the incorporated limits of the town. Each day the water situation is becoming more acute, with most of the wells dry or so contaminated that the water is unfit for drinking purposes. The council realizes that an emergency now exists due to the continued drought.

A meeting of the joint water committee, which is composed of the members of the council's water and sanitation committee, and several representative citizens met in the town hall Saturday night to consider the opinion of Attorney John S. Barbour as to what could and what could not be done in regard to the matter. A peculiar condition exists in the town, as its incorporated area lies in two counties—Arlington and Fairfax. The residents of the Arlington County portion of the town are now supplied by the Arlington County water mains.

The water committee members are of the opinion that the most practical plan would be a bond issue to care for the installation of a water system. According to the town charter, it would be necessary to bond the entire town. If this is done the residents of the Arlington County section would be reimbursed for money paid to Arlington County when the mains were installed. The committee discussed the engineering features of installing the system which are dependent on the source of the water supply. The members of the town council plan to confer with the Arlington County officials and the War Department to discover whether water can be purchased from Arlington County for resale to the residents of Falls Church.

A petition will be circulated among the property owners for the bond issue. When this is signed by the necessary number, an ordinance will be adopted by the council and submitted to the circuit court for its approval. Under the town charter, a twenty-day notice must be given to the property owners following the court's approval before an election can be held. Two elections will be necessary. First, the bond issue must be approved by a majority of the free holders of property owners. If the voters at the first election approve of the bond issue, a second election will be held, at which time the same question will be submitted to all qualified voters. Mayor L. P. Daniels stated yesterday that this peculiar town ordinance has complicated the situation more than it as first anticipated, as it will take a longer time to meet the emergency.

Mayor Leonard P. Daniel, of the town of Falls Church, announced yesterday that he will appoint several special officers for Halloween night so that the streets will be patroled more thoroughly. He states that he does not object to the harmless pranks of youths, but judging from the past, property and life of the people must be protected. Persons caught carrying away gates, tourning over outbuildings, piling poles across the highways and endangering lives, will be prosecuted, he declared. He cited an incident last year in which several youths placed a large boulder in the middle of the highway and covered it with leaves. A man returning home hit the pile with his car, causing him to run into the ditch and wrecking the machine. This or similar pranks will not be tolerated of any one, the mayor stated.

Bradley Shear has been elected president of the Epworth League at the Floris Methodist Church. Other officers elected were: Jack Patton, vice president; Miss Helen Presgraves, secretary-treasurer, and Miss Hilda Peck, social service president. The entire league will compose the membership committee.

The Women's Circle of the Presbyterian Church at Herndon, will hold its meeting tonight under the direction of Mrs. William Eads Miller, circle leader. The members will study the Book of Romans.

County Agricultural Agent H. B. Derr, is making a series of tests of soils in the various sections of Fairfax County in order to determine that he will make these tests on the requests of the farmers, with the idea of saving them money. By this method the farmer will know what kind of fertilizer he should purchase and the proper proportion to apply to his farm land.

Piedmont Chapter of American War Mothers will hold its meeting tonight in the social room of the Crossman Methodist Church at Falls Church.

There will be a meeting of Old Glory Council, Daughters of America, at McLean tonight. Miss Minnie McLeroy, of Richmond, State councilor of the order, will pay her official visitation, at this time.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Brown's Chapel will hold its meeting tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Theodore Utterback on the Georgetown pike.

The Woodlawn Circle, King's Daughters and Sons, will hold its meeting tomorrow at the home of Mrs. George R. West at Mount Vernon. The Bible study will be conducted by Mrs. S. E. Anthoney and one hour will be devoted to sewing for the Fairfax County Welfare Bureau.

Miss Cleo Driver was elected president of the Young People's Society of the Church of the Brethren at Oakton. Miss Irene Moser was elected vice president; Miss Blanche Miller, secretary and treasurer, and B. O. Wakeman, chorister.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Volunteer Fire Department at McLean will hold its meeting tomorrow at the home of its president, Mrs. Grace Magarity.

The Volunteer Fire Department at Falls Church willl meet tonight in the engine house. The proposed plans for the construction of a new engine house will be considered at this time. The building committee will make its report.

The Centerville School and Community League has reelected Mrs. George R. L. Tuberville as president. Mrs. Fannie Harrison has been elected vice president and A. J. Robey secretary-treasurer. The president has appointed John T. DeBell, Mrs. Fannie Harrison and Mrs. Franklin Compton as members of the entertainment committee, and Mrs. J. Carrico, of Legate; Miss Margaret Jeffries, of Centerville, and Miss Hilton, of Bull Run, as emers of the membership committee.

The Robert E. Lee Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will hold its meeting tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Harry Payne in Falls Church. Mrs. Harry A. Fellows and Miss Etta Everett, delegates to the State convention, which was recently held in Staunton, will give their reports.

The Young Women's Auxiliary of the Columbia Baptist Church at Falls Church will meet this evening at the home of Miss Alice Hutton. The principal speaker will be a missionary who has just returned from the Philippines.

The Centerville District Sunday School Association, which held its semiannual meeting in the Presbyterian Church at Clifton, reelected C. L. Fleming as president. Miss Ruth Pyles was elected vice president, and Miss Katherine Doak, secretary-treasurer. H. F. Myers was made superintendent of the adult department, Mrs. Fannie Harrison, superintendent of the young people's department, and Mrs. C. L. Fleming, superintendent of the children's department. The Rev. S. Y. Craig was made superintendent of teacher training, and Mrs. W. B. Doak, superintendent of the home department.

ALEXANDRIA SCHOOL DELEGATES CHOSEN

Congress of Parents and Teachers in Lynchburg Opens Tomorrow.

AWARD WILL CONTINUE

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The various public schools of Alexandria have elected delegates to the tenth annual convention of the Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers, to be held in the Virginia Hotel, Lynchburg, for two days, beginning tomorrow:

Mrs. Stephen H. Field will represent the Washington School unit, Mrs. C. B. Kerns, the Lee School; Mrs. Edwin L. Brawner, the Maury School; Mrs. Edwin E. Carver, the Jefferson School, and Capt. Monroe L. Briker, the George Mason High School and the Mount Vernon School. Visiting members of the association who expect to attend are Mrs. J. Owen Lynch and Mrs. Joseph Reynolds.

State Superintendent of Education Harris Hart will address the convention, as will Dr. Rice R. Anderson, president of the Randolph-Macon Women's College; Dr. Julian A. Burruss, president of Kentucky Wesleyan College; Mrs. J. P. Buchanan, former president of the Virginia Federation of Music Clubs; Dr. F. H. Scott, pastor of the First Christian Church, Roanoke; Mayor J. Tanner Kinnear, of Lynchburg, and Miss Kate Wheeler, of Emory, who will respond to the mayor's address.

The Alexandria Kiwanis Club will continue to award its medal for distinguished service rendered by some citizen of Alexandria to the community, according to a decision reached by the board of directors of the trade body at a recent meeting. The medal is to be given when, in the judgment of the committee, service of a distinguished character to the city makes the award worth while.

In the eleven years of the existence of the commerce chamber only three medals have been awarded, it being the policy of the club to make such awards only when the service rendered is of a particularly outstanding character. The awards made were to Charles H. Callahan, for conspicuous service to the community in locating the George Washington Masonic National Memorial Temple here; to Leopold Ruben for a donation which made the municipal swimming pool possible, and to Charles C. Carlin for his untiring work in behalf of the Mount Vernon Memorial boulevard now in course of construction.

The Rev. Hugh J. McFadden, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Catholic Church, will be in charge of a bazaar in the armory November 19 to 22, inclusive, for the benefit of that church.

Work was started last week on the foundation for the new postoffice, the buildings toward the west end of the block being razed and the ground cleared for the steam shovel to start the foundation, while the old postoffice building, to the east, is practically down and the ground being cleared now. The new building will face west on Washington street.

Miss Margaret Young, who has been ill in the Alexandria Hospital for several weeks past, died Saturday evening, and the funeral will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from her home, 10 Rosemont avenue, and burial will be in Ivy Hill Cemetery. She was the daughter of the late Lewis Young, and besides her mother, Mrs. Georgianna Young, is survived by two sisters, Miss Mary V. Young and Mrs. Nettie Young Lipps. The deceased had been employed at Burke & Herbert's bank for a number of years.

Mrs. Virginia Wade Ryder will present a group of comedies on November 3, under the auspices of the Young Women's Auxiliary of the First Baptist Church. Those who will participate are Miss Mabel Florence, Miss Margaret Akers, Miss Florine Brown, Mrs. Margaret Riker, Miss Pauline Brown, Miss Evelyn Bowie, Miss Marian Sutton and Miss Elsie Deavers.

Mexican Army Pays No Attention to Deserters

Mexico City, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—The Mexican army pays little attention to deserters. Most of them rejoin the service any way, and the fact that there were several thousand desertions last year is not viewed as serious. Besides recruits are to be had in abundance.

STATEMENT ISSUED ON COUNTY MANAGER

Varney Explains Proposal to Alter Government in Arlington.

W. K. HANDY REELECTED

ARLINGTON COUNTY
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Walter U. Varney, chairman of the Arlington County Bar Association committee, which made a study of the question of a change in the form of county government, as a result of which it recommended the adoption of the county manager form of government with a board of five members to be elected at large, last night issued the following statement:

"The law provides that the voters shall determine which form of government shall be adopted and which plan of election shall be followed. Those are questions which I think were wisely left for the voters to determine themselves, and I feel sure that all citizens of the county will accept with the best of grace the decision which the voters make on election day.

"The Bar Association committee which studied the question was of the opinion that the county manager form is preferable to both the present form of government and the proposed modified commission plan. It was also of the opinion that the members of the board shall be lected at large raher than by districts."

As to the wisdom of separating the legislative and administrative powers of the government, vesting the former in the county board and the latter in the county manager, who is to be appointed by the board and need not be a resident of the county or State, Mr. Varney said:

"It is the practice now in all city manager cities to vest all administrative authority in the city manager, leaving to the council elected by the people sole authority in the determination of policies. It is a well-known fact that several hundred American cities, including twenty in the State of Virginia, now have the city manager plan, and it is a form of government which is still on the increase in popularity among cities for the reason that it is giving such highly satisfactory results.

"The present board of supervisors has the option o fappointing any of its administrative employes from outside the county or State, and they have availed themselves of that discretion. The present directing engineer, C. L. Kinnier, was appointed from Fairfax County, and the health officer, Dr. P. M. Chichester, was appointed from another part of the State. The State government follows the same practice. The present chairman of the State highway commission, H. G. Shirley, was a resident of Baltimore County, Md., at the time he was appointed by the Governor of Virginia to his present office, an office in which he expends annually millions of dollars of the taxpayers' money, although he is not elected by the people.

"It is not a mandatory provision of the county manager plan that the county manager be selected from outside the county or State. It is merenow with the present board of sury optional with the board, as it is pervisors. It is a wise arrangement, because it gives the board a wider field of selection in its appointment of administrative employes.

"The county manager would have nothing whatever to do with the determination of policies. All such questions would be determined by the board, which is to be elected by the people. The county manager's only power and duty would be to execute the policies which have been determined upon by the board.

"It is a well-known fact that there now exists a highly trained profession known as that of city manager. These men have adopted it as their life work, and the all-controlling motive in their administration of government is to make a goo drecord in order that they may be reemployed at the end of their terms of service, or that some larger city, hearing of their record, may offer them a position at a higher salary. This is precisely what happened in the case of Paul Morton, whose splendid record in setting the city of Alexandria on the road to progress when he was city manager there induced the city of Petersburg, Va., to offer him a higher salary as manager of that city. Any county manager who conducted his office in such a manner that the board would refuse to reemploy him at the end of his year's term of service would have a slim chance, with such a record, of obtaining an appointment elsewhere.

"The virtue of the county manager plan is based upon this arrangement, which throws around the office every inducement for the incumbent to give a good administration."

Walter K. Handy was reelected president of the Arlington County Council of Religious Education at the second annual convention held yesterday at the Clarendon Baptist Church. Other officers are: A. B. Smith, first vice president; the Rev. John H. Pearson, second vice president; Charles W. Roberer, secretary; Phillip E. Merrill, assistant secretary; Thomas E. Gilbert, treasurer; C. P. Heines, chairman of the finance committee, and the Rev. Ira P. Harbaugh, chairman of the executive committee.

The executive committee consists of the aforementioned officers and Dr. E. M. Blackwell, Miss Elizabeth Beale, Monroe H. Stockett, Mrs. William M. Seligman and the Rev. Elmer Lucas.

The finance committee consists of C. P. Heines, chairman, the Rev. Edward G. Latch, Charles P. Kincheloe and W. H. Leigh.

The president's report shows that the total registration of pupils attending weekday religious education classes was 432 pupils. This number was divided among the following schools from the fifth and sixth grades: Patrick Henry School, 53; Woodrow Wilson School, 56; Cherrydale School, 85; James Monroe School, 40; Ballston School, 126, and Clarendon School, 72.

The Rev. Minar C. Miller, State secretary of the Council of Religious Education, addressing the convention, stressed the value of the training resulting from religious training in the public schools.

Miss Ethel Morrison who has been chosen as the director of weekday religious education for both Arlington and Fairfax Counties, spoke on the method of teaching religion in the public schools.

Miss Morrison announces the following schedule for classes which will begin today in Arlington County and include Fairfax County.

Today, at Patrick Henry School classes held in the Arlington Methodist Episcopal Church from 9 to 12 o'clock. In the afternoon pupils from Woodrow Wilson School will attend classes at the Fort Myer Heights Baptist Church from 1 to 3:30 o'clock.

Tuesday—At Falls Church School from 8 to 12 o'clock. At the Annandale School in the afternoon from 1 to 3:30 o'clock.

Wednesday—At the Cherrydale Methodist Protestant Church pupils from the Cherrydale School will attend classes from 9 to 11 o'clock. From 11:30 to 12:30 pupils from James Monroe School will attend classes at the Nazarine Church at Park Lane.

Thursday—Pupils from Clarendon School will attend classes from 9 to 12 at the Ballston Christian Church. In the afternoon pupils from Ballston School will attend classes at the same place from 1 to 3:30 o'clock.

Friday—Classes at the McLean School from 9 to 12 o'clock. In the afternoon at Oakton School from 1 to 3:30 o'clock.

The Ballston Citizens Association will hold its monthly meeting tonight in the auditorium of the firemen's hall and not tomorrow night as previously announced.

President Grover E. Payne last night announced that at tonight's meeting arrangements have been made to give to all the citizens of the community information on the question of the change in the form of the local county government on which the voters will cast their ballot November 4.

Among the speakers who will discuss the question are, Robert N. Anderson, chairman of the legislation and legal action committee of the Arlington County Civic Federation which has spent many months of study on the question, Mrs. Florence E. Cannon, and Carlton K. Lewis also members of the committee.

Funeral services for H. C. Sparks, 73 years old, who fell dead at his work last Thursday at the Coast and Geodetic Survey office building at Washington will be conducted by Columbia Lodge, No. 285 A. F. and A. M. of which he was a member from the Zurhorst funeral parlors this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Burial will be in Congressional Cemetery.

Members of Columbia Lodge are requested by the Master Freeland F. Chew to meet at the Temple at Clarendon at 1:30 o'clock.

A book review by Mrs. Harry Hunt to be followed by a tea will feature the monthly meeting of the Fidelis Circle of St. George's Episcopal Church to be held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. W. C. Welburn at Ballston. The books to be reviewed are: "Chances," by A. Hamilton Gibbs, and the Green Pastures," the Pulitzer Prize Play, by Marc Connelly.

The Crusaders' Club for boys at St. George's Episcopal Church will hold its monthly meeting at the Parish Hall Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock.

First dress rehearsal of the comedy, "Her Step-Husband," to be presented by the St. George Players in the Parish Hall of St. George's Episcopal Church at Clarendon the nights of November 6 and 7, wil be held tonight in the Parish Hall. The play will be given under the auspices of the Men's Club of the church and under the direction of Frank Davis, who will also take one of the leading roles.

Man Instantly Killed When Struck by Train

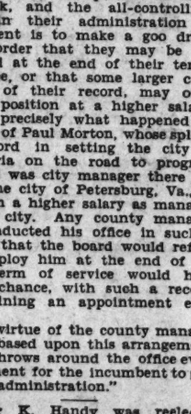

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 26.—Edward Harlow, jr., 32, of Rio, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon when struck by a Southern Railway train while crossing the tracks on his way home from work.

Mr. Harlow was in the employ of Archie E. Marsh, foreman for a local contractor, and was working in this city Saturday morning. He had gotten a ride to his home with his employer and had alighted from the car only a few minutes before being struck. Mr. Harlow is survived by his wife, formerly Miss Elsie Marshall, of Albemarle County, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harlow, sr., residents of Rio.

VIRGINIA UNRUFFLED BY COMING ELECTION

Easy Victory Conceded to Glass, but Tight Race Seen in Second District.

GARBER FACES BATTLE

Special to The Washington Post.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 26.—Virginia voters are not excited over the impending congressional election, assuming rather a normal attitude after being worked up to a high pitch in 1928, in the Hoover-Smith battle, and in the gubernatorial race last fall.

The apathy, as the campaign enters its final week, is in marked contrast to the excitement of the last two battles for ballots. At the most, only three congressional contests are involved, the other seven Virginia representatives being without opposition.

Senator Carter Glass, who was marked for slaughter by Bishop James Cannon, jr., in 1928, is conceded an easy victory for reelection. He has only nominal opposition in the candidacies of an independent, J. Cloyd Byars, of Arlington, and a Socialist, Joseph C. Morgan, of Richmond. The Republicans deemed it wise to place no candidate against Senator Glass, preferring to concentrate on the three congressional contests now held by Republicans—the Second, Ninth and Seventh. The other seven districts will elect Democrats.

Second District Toss-Up.

The Second District (Norfolk) race between Representative Menalcus Lankford, Republican, and former Democratic Representative Joseph T. Deal, is conceded to be a toss-up. In the Seventh (Valley), Representative J. A. Garber, Republican, is making a strenuous fight for reelection against Judge John W. Fishburne, of Albemarle, the Democratic nominee. Garber faces a stirring battle in that his name must be rubber stamped on the ballots. He failed to qualify in time to have his name printed upon the official ballots.

In the Ninth (Southwest), Representative Joseph C. Shaffer, Republican, and John W. Flannagan, Bristol lawyer, Democrat, are fighting to a finish. Democrats are claiming the election from 1,000 to 3,000.

The Second District result is placed in the doubtful column because of local conditions. The district normally is 4,000 Democratic. Lankford is appealing to the Democratic regulars from the standpoint of his support of the State governmental reorganization plan of former Gov. Harry Flood Byrd, while Deal opposed this plan.

Claim of Garber.

Gov. John Garland Pollard and former Gov. Harry Byrd, however, are helping the Democratic ticket in the Second, despite Lankford's claims that he and not Deal are responsible for the success of the Byrd program there. Byrd, on the other hand, maintains State issues have no place in the present campaign; that the Hoover administration and the tariff alone are involved.

Garber's failure to get his name on the ballot is responsible for some interesting developments in the Seventh. He claims his name was kept off the ballot through technicalities, inferring that the Democratic party is responsible for his having to use rubber stamps on election day.

The Democrats counter with the claim that the Republicans took advantage of every technicality in 1920, when Capt. John Paul, of Harrisonburg, won his congressional election contest over Judge T. W. Harirson, of Winchester, and served 30 days in the House of Representatives.

KELLEY'S "OIL SCANDAL."

Assistant Attorney General Seth W. Richardson has made a report covering his investigation of the charges made by Ralph S. Kelley concerning the disposition of oil shale lands. Kelley's action in refusing to cooperate with or furnish any information to the investigator, while resorting to the newspapers to broadcast his story, caused the public to lose interest in his allegations, but Mr. Richardson went forward with a painstaking inquiry into every point raised by Kelley. The investigator's report is summed up as follows:

> The department finds no merit or substance in the Kelley charges made against the Department of the Interior, it has been unable to find any evidence of corruptness, irregularity or wrong-doing in connection with the administration of the Interior Department of oil shale lands in the past, and that there is every evidence, under the present administration of Secretary Wilbur, that oil shale lands of the United States have been fully, fairly, adequately and lawfully protected, conserved and administered.

Attorney General Mitchell, in a letter to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, concurs with his assistant's findings.

The substance of Kelley's allegations, as well as the manner in which he made them and then failed to cooperate in investigating them, tend to provoke incredulity. His statement that lands worth $40,000,000,000 had been and were being turned over to private interests, unlawfully and in disregard of the public rights, was palpably absurd. The oil shale lands can not be made to yield oil profitably under present conditions; only 3 per cent of these lands have been patented, and of those patented, Kelley himself approved of a large proportion of the applications. The United States holds 97 per cent of all oil shale lands.

Kelley's statement was that officials of the Interior Department were anxious to destroy certain papers. The investigation shows that the papers are on file and that there would be no incentive to any one to destroy them.

Attorney General Mitchell advises Secretary Wilbur that it is a just inference that Kelley's "refusal to assist the Assistant Attorney General in his inquiry was merely to protect the news value of his proposed newspaper articles."

So the Kelley "sensation" evaporates into thin air. The time selected for advertising this mythical oil scandal involving the Interior Department lends color to the belief that it was intended to injure the Hoover administration and the Republican party during this political campaign. Prompt and thorough inquiry has frustrated this purpose. The Kelley oil scandal scandalizes only those who initiated and circulated it.

DECLINING BIRTH RATE.

The Department of Commerce reports a national birth rate of 18.9 per 1,000 population for 1929. This represents a continuation of the declining birth rate during the last several years. In 1915 the rate was 25.1, and only two years ago it was 20.7.

The declining birth rate causes no alarm in America. On the contrary, it is looked upon as a natural consequence of a higher state of civilization. The fact that fewer children are born does not mean a falling off in population. The death rate has been gradually receding during recent years. Fewer births and fewer deaths indicate real progress in the conservation of life.

The census study of infant mortality is particularly interesting. Of every 1,000 infants born 68 died under 1 year of age during 1929. Fifteen years ago 100 or more infants out of every 1,000 born succumbed in their first year. The record for 1929 is the lowest ever recorded, except during 1927, when the rate was 65. The infant mortality rate continues high in a few States, such as New Mexico and Arizona, but the average for the total registration area, which takes in 97.4 per cent of the total population, shows a remarkable improvement.

Medical science, according to these figures, saved the lives of 122,000 infants last year. The number of children born in the United States in 1929 was approximately 2,305,000. Since the birth rate declined only .8 per 1,000 population, the decrease in births from the previous year amounted to about 97,000. That leaves a net gain of 25,000 children in spite of the declining birth rate.

The growth of population will be slower in the future. Immigration has been virtually cut off during the economic depression, and indications are that much more strict regulations will be maintained hereafter. This is evidence of the country's maturity. The Government is wisely reserving future America for Americans.

"REGULATING" SPECULATION.

Senator Glass announced the other day that the inquiry into the banking system will get under way about November 15. Although the hearings are supposed to contemplate a survey of new trends in banking, it is certain that the investigation will degenerate into a public trial of the securities markets. The wording of the resolution authorizing the investigation leaves plenty of room for senatorial market slumming. The resolution provides that "the inquiry thus authorized is to comprehend specifically the administration of the banking systems with respect to the use of their facilities for trading in and carrying securities, the extent of call loans to brokers by member banks; the effect on the system of the formation of investment and security trusts; the desirability of chain banking; the development of branch banking as part of the national system, together with any related problems which the committee may think it important to investigate." Under the authorization to go into "related problems" there is no telling how far afield the committee may wander.

Revision of the banking laws seems to be needed at this time. Branch, chain and group banking has spread throughout the country. National banks are forced to compete with private and State banks which operate under more liberal regulations. It may also be advisable to amend the Federal Reserve act in certain particulars. But it may be doubted that the Government would help matters by attempting to regulate the stock exchanges. The security markets should be kept free. There is a more or less general demand, however, that the stock exchanges be investigated, and particularly that short selling be put under an investigatory microscope. The Senate committee probably will recognize this demand.

Recently the Chamber of Commerce of the United States conducted a referendum among its membership on the subject of commodity exchange trading. Four questions were submitted: Should commodity exchange trading be supported? Should trading in futures on the exchanges be supported? Should wisely regulated speculative trading on the exchanges be supported as a necessary factor in the economic distribution of agricultural products? Should the exchanges adopt such changes in their rules as would promote the welfare of the general public as well as of producers, merchants and manufacturers? In each case there was an overwhelming affirmative vote.

The security exchanges function under exactly the same economic laws as those that govern the functioning of the commodity exchanges. Speculation, of course, should be surrounded with regulations to prevent its abuse, but it is not the Government's duty to provide these restrictions. That is the duty of the market itself. That the Senate committee will realize this fact and shape its inquiry accordingly may, however, be doubted. The public is in a mood for investigating Wall street; a dragnet has been placed in the hands of the committee, and there never was a Senate committee yet that could refrain from going on a fishing expedition whenever the opportunity was presented.

It will be interesting to scan the committee's ultimate plan for extending Government protection to fools who persist in throwing their money away; for such a plan must be forthcoming if the committee expects its inquiry to result in Government regulation of speculation.

CALENDAR REFORM.

The American committee studying the need for and effect of simplifying the calendar and engaged in working out a scheme for such reform for presentation to the League of Nations, has not been heard from in recent months, but early next year it probably will regain the spotlight. It was recently announced that an international conference on calendar reform under league auspices will be held in October, 1931, and it is expected that an invitation for American participation will be forwarded early in the new year. It is also expected that an American will be appointed to the preparatory committee which is to meet in May to prepare proposals for consideration in the conference. Receipt of the invitation and appointment of an American to the preparatory committee will reopen a question that promises to result in acrimonious dispute and debate.

The American committee is in favor of reforming and simplifying the calendar. Unquestionably, there is a general desire that this be done among business and professional groups throughout the world. Certain interests, ecclesiastical and lay, however, are bitterly opposed to tampering with anything as long-established and as intimately associated with everyday life as the calendar.

Two schemes for simplification find most general favor. The first contemplates dividing the year into thirteen months of four weeks each and the second involves a quarterly division, each quarter containing the present number of months with only the number of days in some of them shifted so as to equalize the quarters. The first scheme is by far the better technically. The second is a compromise commended by its proponents principally in that it would require less readjustment of habits and traditions. Each scheme provides, however, for fixity of day names to dates by the insertion of an extra day in each year beyond the 52 weeks, and two extra days in leap years. The year-days, so-called, give rise to the opposition to calendar simplification.

It is held that insertion of year days interrupts the continuity of the weekly cycle. Aside from the confusion that would result in attempting to reconcile dates under the old calendar with dates under the new, opponents of simplification contend that interrupting the continuity of the weekly cycle would be attended with serious consequences. But unless this be done, there is little to be gained through calendar reform.

The man in the street thus far has remained disinterested in the dispute. Science and business, however, are interested enough to force the issue and the man in the street soon enough will become involved. A merry dispute is in the making. There is so much to be said both for and against calendar simplification that there is no hope of solving the question at an early date.

School authorities in San Francisco have installed a miniature golf course in a kindergarten "to help the children to learn to count." It's a crime to teach children of such tender years to count according to the miniature golf system.

At any rate the designation of the new plan of taxicab fares as the "flat" rate system is a movement in the direction of truth in advertising.

Wonder if the ministers who are trying to increase their church attendance have thought of advertising sessions for women only?

The Nation's birth rate is revealed to be at the lowest level since 1915. The Republican party is to blame.

Another good current simile would be: As unstable as a South American government.

WHY A NAVY MUST BE READY

By Commander Holloway H. Frost, U. S. N.

Today is Navy Day. It is a day set apart for the discussion of naval topics. On it those interested in a navy—and we assume that all Americans are interested in such an important national institution—should take stock of the naval situation.

Sir John Fisher said that there were three measures of the power of a fleet: First, sufficiency of strength; second, fighting efficiency; and third, absolute instant readiness for war.

We know that our Navy is lacking in the first essential. Our national policy is for a fleet second to none. Today we have not such a fleet. We hope that a construction program will give it to us by 1936. But we have today quite a fair amount of naval tonnage. There is no reason why we should not develop its fighting efficiency to the maximum and have it in absolute instant readiness for war.

We propose to show now why Sir John Fisher placed such emphasis upon the readiness of his fleet. Sir Julian Corbett has been the principal exponent of British sea lore in recent years. His greatest book was a masterly exposition of British naval strategy in the Seven Years War. In it he states with pleasing frankness one of the cardinal ideas of British naval strategy. "The principle," he writes, "of securing or improving your strategical position by a sudden and secret blow before a declaration of war is, and was then, well known. Almost every maritime war which we had waged had begun in that way. If precedent can sanctify any international usage, this one was beyond question permissible."

Corbett then describes the sudden blow of Admiral Boscowen at the French Quebec squadron which began the Seven Years War without a declaration. "When England," continues Corbett, "is scolded for her treachery on this occasion, as she still is, it would be more charitable to remember the temptation to which she was exposed by the incredible simplicity of her adversary. The wonder is that so great a chance was not seized with greater violence."

During the Napoleonic wars the British used surprise naval attacks with telling effect. In 1807 an overwhelming British expedition surprised the Danes and demanded the surrender of their fleet. A bombardment of Copenhagen forced them to give up sixteen sail of the line. This incident coined an expressive verb—to "Copenhagen" a potentially hostile fleet. Incidentally it was in this very year that our frigate Chesapeake was attacked by a much larger British vessel and forced to surrender after 21 of our sailors had been killed or wounded. Our captain was punished by a court-martial for failing to prepare his ship for action—though the encounter took place in time of peace.

In recent years Sir John Fisher, more than any other man, typified the British naval tradition. So it created little surprise when he admitted having urged King Edward, years before the World War, to Copenhagen the German fleet.

In naval matters the Japanese have followed British opinion. Thus they opened their war against Russia not with a formal declaration, but with two typical Copenhagen attacks. In dead of night their destroyers launched their torpedoes at the unsuspecting Russian fleet off Port Arthur. The next day their cruisers made a deliberate attack upon two Russian vessels in the neutral port of Chemulpo. Naval writers have commented much more adversely upon the "incredible simplicity" of the Russians than upon the ruthless aggressiveness of the Japanese.

It was for such reasons as these that all navies which have pretended to any degree of efficiency have made the readiness of their fleets a cardinal principle of national policy. It might be of interest to show how the United States has maintained the readiness of its fleet for war.

In 1798 Congress authorized our cruisers to attack French cruisers and privateers in reprisal for the capture of our merchant vessels. Though we had declared war, three weeks passed before our first two ships could get to sea.

In 1801 it was decided to send a squadron into the Mediterranean to act against the African pirates. But when it arrived there its vessels were in such poor material condition that they had to be repaired in neutral dockyards. This fact, together with entirely inadequate supply arrangements, prevented our squadron from accomplishing anything of moment.

In 1812 only three of our seven frigates were ready for sea. The Constitution was without a crew. The Essex was held back by material defects. The Chesapeake was delayed so long that she was blockaded in Norfolk for the duration of the war. The Congress did not get to sea for many months. The unreadiness of our ships lost us our best opportunity to accomplish anything of importance. This condition was inexcusable. For a third time our statesmen had started the war. For a third time they had neglected to take the most elementary steps of naval preparation.

At the beginning of the Civil War Lincoln decided to provision Fort Sumter. The only vessels immediately available for this important service were two gunboats and a revenue cutter. A few days later Norfolk Navy Yard was threatened with capture. In the yard were three important ships, including the Merrimac. Mr. Welles used every endeavor to obtain men to carry these ships away from Norfolk. There were no regular sailors available. Commodore Breese at New York was ordered to recruit some. But this could not be done until it was too late. To assist in the defense of the yard there were only an old sailing sloop and a small steam gunboat. In consequence, the yard fell into the hands of the Confederates. They won at a single stroke 1,200 heavy guns. They used the drydock and the facilities of the yard to rebuild the Merrimac. This vessel, which could have been brought out safely if our Navy had been in any degree prepared, defeated a whole fleet and filled Washington with consternation.

In the Spanish War the Navy was extremely well prepared. The sinking of the Maine created such an effect upon the people that the Government was able to mobilize the Navy before it declared war. The effects of this preparedness were most striking. The day after war was declared Sampson established a blockade of Havana and eight days later Dewey won the Battle of Manila Bay. The Spanish navy was both unready and inefficient. For once we were ready.

We had virtually two months in which to mobilize our Navy before declaring war on Germany. Despite the fact that the allied fleets were holding the German navy in check during this period, our politicians boasted that we entered the war unprepared. It was not until eighteen days after war had been declared that six vessels were ordered to Europe. On July 1 we had only 28 vessels in the European war zone. And it was in this period that the submarine offensive was on the point of winning the war for Germany.

If history has any lessons to teach, certainly it should convince us that a navy which is not maintained in constant readiness for war is a most expensive luxury.

IMPERFECTION.

Whoever the man, whatever his post,
Whatever his fortune may be,
The day that he longs for the sun the most
That morning his sky may gray be.

And whether he live in a cottage small
Or a castle with servants by him,
He must share this grievance with one and all;
There is something the fates deny him.

Not as we'd have it can life be made,
There is always a sigh to smother,
Today if one burden down be laid,
Tomorrow will give us another.

Great men worry and rich men fret,
And kings have care beside them,
And however arrogant mortals get
There is something that is denied them.

The Fellow Who Took to the Lifeboat a While Back.

You Never See a Hero Whose Father Wept With Fear in a Storm.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A YOUNG man of 24 years sat in his room at night and reviewed the events of the day.

He was ashamed.

His employer had asked him searching questions concerning a broken vase and he had lied to escape criticism.

A bully on the street car had threatened to slap his face and he had remained silent and motionless.

A persistent salesman had cornered him and he had signed an order for a set of books he never would read.

The pastor of his church had asked him to serve on a committee, and the incident had reminded him again that the good people who thought him one of themselves would scorn him if they knew the character of certain places he had visited after nightfall.

He glanced at his well-kept nails and was reminded that his body was unclean. Though his face and hands were carefully tended, he hadn't found time to take a bath in ten days.

"I am a coward," he confessed; "a coward, a weakling, a liar, a sneak and a hypocrite. I want to be a gentleman and a manly man, but I never got through a day free of reproach. I know how a proper man should act, and I keep trying, but I always fail in a test. I'm just common. A fellow hasn't got a chance if he isn't born a gentleman."

How do you explain his case? You must go back 20 years to find the explanation.

When he was a wee lad, soft as clay in the potter's hands, his parents resolved to instruct him carefully and make him a great and good man.

He was urged to be polite, though his parents snarled at him and at one another. He was told to speak correctly, though he never heard correct speech. He was taught the value and decency of cleanliness, but his parents bathed only once a week and often prolonged the interval in cold weather. He heard much about honor and truth, but he observed that his parents seldom acted or talked in the privacy of home as they did in the presence of guests. He was whipped for smoking, though his father smoked. He was whipped for lying, but he heard his parents lie.

In short, he received almost daily instruction in the art of being a gentleman but never was given an example.

He tried to become a gentleman after he left home, but it was much like learning a new language. He could do the right thing, if he stopped to think, but it cost him an effort.

And he and his kind must live always in shame because parents preach better than they practice.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Mrs. McCormick's Campaign.

New York Times.

From the beginning Mrs. McCormick's campaign has been lighted by an unlucky star. Because they wanted to beat Senator Deneen, Mayor Thompson and the Cook County Republican machine loaded her down in the primary with the blight of their indorsement. Because she was so eager to win, Mrs. McCormick committed the error of spending $252,000 of her own funds, imperiling her chances of being seated if she should be victorious November 4 over James Hamilton Lewis. Again, because of her eagerness for success, she, a highly vocal dry, announced that she would vote wet if Illinois so indicated in its referendum vote this fall. This latter maneuver brought a dry independent woman candidate against her, Mrs. O'Neill. Illinois has a normal Republican majority of several hundred thousands, but if the reports of precinct captains and political writers are to be credited, former Senator Lewis is within sight of regaining the seat which he once adorned.

Extra! A Vice Presidential Candidate!

Morristown Jerseyman.

Political oracles are trying to discover what motive impels the Hon. Walter E. Edge, now Ambassador to France, to return to New Jersey and make speeches for Mr. Morrow, especially as Mr. Morrow is certain to be elected anyway. The reason is as plain as the nose on your face. Mr. Edge comes back in order to retain his connection with the political activities of his State, as he has a right to do. He comes back because he desires to take a personal participation in sending Mr. Morrow to the Senate, which is perfectly proper and praiseworthy on the part of Mr. Edge. And he comes back because he hopes that in 1932 the Republican national convention will nominate him as Vice President of the United States. It will be recalled that Mr. Edge was a candidate for Vice President in 1928. The nomination then went to Charles Curtis, of Kansas, who will not seek another term. Mr. Edge may get the nomination this time. He certainly will not unless he tries, and even then he may not get it.

Raskob and Democratic Policy.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

What folly it was to assert that Raskob was taking it upon himself to declare the policy of the Democratic party on prohibition or any other question. His only authority is as chairman of the Democratic national committee, and neither the committee nor its chairman has authority to declare the policies of the party. That can be done only by the party's national convention. Until its next national convention meets and adopts a platform, the party's attitude on the prohibition issue is defined in the platform adopted by its national convention two years ago.

Raskob has no more power to declare for it a different policy than has any other man, be he national committeeman or private citizen.

Hurry Up, George!

Buffalo Courier-Express.

Well, if Chairman Wickersham delays too long a report on whether prohibition is as effective in practice as it is noble in motive, he may find that no Republican party remains to hear what his commission has to say.

It Will Find Out, Alright.

Dayton News.

After months of investigation, President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission is going to wait until after election to find out how to report.

Taking Him Literally.

Milwaukee Journal.

About a month ago Gifford Pinchot said, "I would rather have you vote against me than not at all." Many of his prominent fellow Republicans appear to be taking him at his word.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

"Young Bob" Extols "Tom" Walsh at Rally Attended by This First-Time Voter, Who Returns Home, Does Some Thinking and Decides to Root for Hoover.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Shades of my partisan, torchbearing ancestors—what a shock to my ingrained conception of the eternal fitness of things political!

I, a first-time voter; listening to that young dreamer, Bob La Follette, from out the cold, dreary northland, he a supposed Republican, extolling the virtues of Thomas J. Walsh, undeniably a Democrat! I thought of the old Persian poet who wished that he might shatter things to bits and remold them to his heart's desire. But human affairs just can not be handled that way, and so I returned to my little hallroom, to ponder and reason. The thoughts of youth are long, long thoughts and our deductions would usually surprise our elders.

I admired Young Bob for cherishing the memory of his illustrious father, but disagreed when he placed him as a historical figure alongside Jefferson and our immortal Lincoln. It was also quite apparent that he was using the prestige and magic of his sire's name to gain the sympathy and attention of his audience. Not an admirable thing to do. It affected me adversely, causing a dry palate. And when he spoke of the many useful legislative measures enacted by Congress which had been sponsored by his little band of irreconcilables, my mind swiftly traveled backward and I thought: "Yes—after the cool, reasoning heads of the major party had made those measures feasible and workable you and your erratic coworkers tried to take the credit. Had they succeeded in all their visionary plans, instability and chaos would inevitably have followed.

Feelingly he spoke of the "laboring man" and his economic problems. His was a narrow conception. How about the men who labor long hours at their desks directing the activities of thousands of humans, worrying over keeping the wheels of industry turning so all may have roofs over their heads and food in their paunches? All those who help in any way to carry on the world's work are "laboring men." Some must plow the fields, others labor at the forge. And don't forget that there must be directing heads for all human activities.

Senator La Follette spoke in sad tones of the terrible plight of our farmers and industrial workers. I thought of the facts as I had seen them in much traveling—luxuries, such as autos, radios, electrical appliances of all kinds, labor-saving machinery of many kinds, and happy faces.

Think of the thousands of these who a few short years ago were sunken in hopeless poverty in foreign climes. Further, how much more serious than ours are the economic ills of most European countries?

Would that all men could be induced to enter into the silence of their little hallrooms and just ponder and think. The harder I think, the more I am determined to cast my first vote for those only who will support the constructive policies of the Hoover administration and fight to the last ditch for our President whom I admire and trust above all living men. And may the gods confuse those irreconcilables who would obstruct his wise efforts for betterment of our economic life, and may they induce all men and women to think and reason.

MYRON DOURTE.

Missoula, Mont.

Mr. Ryan, of Kentucky, on the Pro and Con of Changing Horses in the Middle of the Stream.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is amusing to note the hue and cry raised by Republicans because Democrats lay the present depression at the door of the Hoover administration. As though this had never been done before! What short memories have Republican leaders? We are told now, through editorials and speeches, that it would be a grave mistake to elect a Democratic Congress with a Republican President in power at this critical period. What of the even more critical period of 1918? At that time President Wilson was denounced almost as a traitor because he presumed to ask for a Democratic Congress, although he had the precedent of Abraham Lincoln behind him.

Another laugh is the spectacle of the G. O. P. finally admitting that prosperity and depression run in cycles and that this can not be blamed on the Government. They did not try to blame Cleveland, did they? Oh, no—not much! Have the Republicans forgotten Mr. Hoover's speech of October 15, 1928, at Boston? Then he said: "The present issue is the well-being and comfort and security of the American home. On that issue my party presents, as proof of its capacity, the record of growing comfort and security of the past seven years." Which reminds me that you can not very well take all credit for prosperous times without expecting criticism when the lean years are on us.

Come, you Republicans, stand up for your candidates, but do not make yourselves ridiculous. Remember what the immortal Republican, Lincoln, said about fooling the people.

A. E. RYAN.

Total Abstainer Is Pleased Over the Prohibition Exposes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am a member of the W. C. T. U. and have been ever since its organization. I am a total abstainer, but am writing to congratulate you on your courage in publishing the experiences of the former prohibition administrator of New York and the articles by the Man in the Green Hat.

It is due the people of the country that they should know to what extent those in a position to enforce the laws are honest in their endeavor to do so.

OPTIMISM IS SHOWN IN BUSINESS SURVEY

OUTLOOK HELD BRIGHTER

(Associated Press.)

Optimism over the future of business, both nationally and internationally, was expressed yesterday by the National Business Survey Conference in a summary of economic conditions for the first nine months of 1930.

The organization, set up a year ago by business and financial leaders in cooperation with President Hoover, has conducted a continuous study of business conditions.

In the preparation of this summary several factors were apparent, the report, signed by Julius H. Barnes, chairman, said. "Among these were the large amount of new capital provided for productive purposes and evidences of stabilization of advancing tendencies in prices of raw materials. All such factors each business man will wish to weigh for himself."

Capital Issues Greater.

Supporting this conclusion, it was pointed out that lending operations of banks have markedly increased; that capital issues for September were 80 per cent greater than those of August, and that "a decreasing number of foreclosures and delinquencies reflected continued improvement in the field of first-lien banking." No uniform trend, either up or down, was visible as to savings deposits.

Installment selling of automobiles and other items was said to be showing no material increase in repossessions. Some betterment exists in wholesale collections, with no change in retail collections. Life insurance selling increased in September over August. Premium income of fire insurance companies has declined.

For the first nine months of 1930, the report said, residential construction declined under last year's mark by $714,000,000, but public works and public utility construction were above last year's volume by $180,000,000. Paving contracts exceeded last year's total by 7 per cent. Residential vacancies over the country were normal for September in 6 out of 17 daitricts of the United States.

Street Car Traffic Lower.

Street car traffic in September was 8 per cent under that of the same month last year, but August records of such traffic were 10 per cent under last year's. Freight traffic on railroads was less.

Seasonal increases were noted in telephone communication and in radio sales. Postal receipts showed a decline in the previous rate of recession for September.

New capital investments in utilities continued to be above last year's records in most cases, the survey continued. Output of electrical equipment was above 1928 levels, though below that of 1929. Stocks on hand of petroleum products declined. Metal prices dropped, and output rates in steel and copper were lower than the average. September automobile production was 42 per cent below that of last year, but inventories of auto tires have decreased.

Alcohol Production High.

Production of cotton seed products and industrial alcohol has been at high rates, the report said. September also "carried forward the seasonal improvement in the textile industry," with increased takings of cotton by mills. Consumption of silk markedly increased.

Export demand for apples was greater than last year, while domestic shipments of fruits and vegetables remained at 1929 levels. Stocks of raw sugar have declined and prices risen.

"A number of raw materials now show increases in price," the report noted, naming cotton, corn, wheat and coffee.

Foreign trade volume was said to have declined, but it added that abroad there "were promising signs of stable conditions and also of improvement in variety of industries, scattered through many countries."

Boy Scout Executive At Lynchburg Resigns

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 26.—C. B. Woodhead, Boy Scout executive here for four years, has resigned because of ill health and the council has agreed to permit the resignation to be effective December 31. During his stay here Boy Scout troops have increased from 2 to 14 and the membership from 50 to 306. In addition, the executive has oversight over troops at Bedford, Evington and Schuyler.

Mr. Woodhead came here from Norfolk.

D. F. Kavanaugh, 75, Dead in Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 26.—Dennis F. Kavanaugh, 75, retired railroad man, died suddenly at his home here last night after a heart attack.

He was a native of this city, lived here in early life, then moved to the State of Washington where he lived for 50 years and where he did most of his railroad work. He returned here to live when he retired ten years ago. There are no immediate survivors.

NATION URGED TO CONCENTRATE ON UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF

for public works, entailing the use of labor and materials, are now before the American people for vote on ovember 4," he continued. "If I were talking to you as business men and women, I should point out to you how much depends upon what industry does in the battle. According to information which comes to me from all sides, industry has already been bestirring itself vigorously in the effort to provide employment. It must continue to do so.

"As householders and home owners we can now, in this time of excess labor and low cost materials, do those things of permanent value to our homes and communities which we have always wanted to do—the American home, the high regard in which it has always been held by the American people, and the loyal care that has always been given it, the foundation stone of America's position in the world."

Transit Commission Helps.

Earlier in the day Jere Daly, executive secretary of the city committee on relief, told the press that William S. Fullen, chairman of the transit commission, notified Mayor Walker that the personnel of the transit commission was at the disposal of the committee. He said it was probable the tsaffs of the various transportation companies within the city would contribute to the citys' $266,000 monthly fund.

Mr. Daly said that there are 64 borough, county and judicial departments that are paid and maintained out of the city treasury which might raise quotas toward the fund. Invitations for contributions will be sent out tomorrow to all of these departments ranging from the appellate division to the zoological department.

Work was begun today by the department of public welfare on the pier at the foot of East Twenty-fifth street, which will be reconditioned to house the overflow from the municipal lodging house, seriously taxed these nights by homeless men, women and children. The pier will be fitted to take care of about 1,500 men.

Committee Meets Tuesday.

The city committee—the committee of the mayor's cabinet on unemployment—comprising the 37 city commissioners, will meet Tuesday in City Hall to discuss their progress to date. Police Commissioner Mulrooney, at that time, will lay before the committee the results of the police house-to-house census of distressed families.

In a letter to Mayor Walker today Borough President Harvey of Queens revealed that this week he would go before the board of estimate and ask for a $2,000,000 appropriation to aid the unemployed in his borough by creating new jobs. Mr. Harvey said he would coordinate his program with that being worked out by the mayor's cabinet committee on unemployment. He proposes to pay the money back to the city on a tax note system over a period of ten years.

One of the first organizations to answer Mayor Walker's call for a $266,000 fund was the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Officers and members of the clerical and nursing staffs of the society met and decided by unanimous vote to subscribe to this fund, it was announced.

Church Duties Cited.

The Rev. Len Ray Call, in his sermon today at the West Side Unitarian Church, said the modern church has "three imperative duties to perform in this period of widespread unemployment and unrest." First, he said, it must organiz to relieve human distress by offering the churches as sleeping places and by finding jobs through church members for the jobless. Next, the church must "grapple with the facts back of this situation." And, third, to point out the "moral significance of the present situation."

The Typographical Union announced today that it would this week take a referendum on the proposition that each working member take one working day off in every two weeks to give a nonworking member a day's work.

Plans of the New York Lawyers Association to aid jobless lawyers and law assistants were announced today by Mrs. Anna W. Hockfelder, chairman of the committee on unemployment. In the six weeks of the committee's existence it has had more than 60 applications from lawyers and more than 100 from young law clerks who are out of work.

Policy Change to Be Asked.

The community councils of the City of New York, formulating an unemployment program, announced they would ask the board of education to change its policy—for the ployment in the evenings and on holtime being—of giving extra-time emidays to teachers and others who already have jobs and to give those extra-time jobs to those unemployed who qualify. This will provide work for 200, it was said.

The facilities of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs Hoover today in a telegram from Mrs. were put at the disposal of President sentnig the 500,000 members of the Charles J. Reeder, president, repregroup. The use of the home-making center in Grand Central Palace was also offered Col. Woods, with the services of the personnel there.

The emergency employment committe, formed recently among Wall street men by Seward Prosser, chairman of the board of the Bankers Trust Co., to raise $150,000 a week to employ the jobless heads of families in Manhattan and the Bronx, reported progress today in the formation of the younger financiers into an administrative committee, which will be a liason organization between the parent committee and the trades committees formed for solicitation among business men.

Mrs. Ida G. Ware Dies As She Sits in Chair

Special to The Washington Post

Martinsburg, W. Va., Oct. 26.—Mrs Ida G. Ware, wife of T. Lemuel Ware, this city, died as she sat down in a chair at her home here last night to read. Death followed usual activity during the day and she had just eaten a hearty supper when stricken.

She was the daughter of Jacob and Margaret Dick, of Cross Junction, Va., and was born in Frederick County, Va. Surviving are her husband, parents, two children, six sisters and two brothers.

REGIONAL CAMPAIGN FOR JOBLESS OPENS

Croxton Arrives Today to Launch Midwestern Drive for Placse.

BUILDING IS SPEEDED

(Associated Press.)

Regional work of the President's emergency committee for employment will go forward today when Fred C. Croxton, of Columbus, Ohio, arrives to begin the campaign for jobs in the Great Lakes and Mid-Western States.

While Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the committee, was in New York, appealing for cooperation of industry, Government bodies and the public, the working organization here continued to gather information on the situation throughout the States.

When the chairman returns tomorrow, Secretary E. E. Hunt expects to be able to show some concrete results of the campaign. In the meantime offers of assistance are being accepted from welfare organizations.

In that connection, Senator Glenn (Republican), Illinois, in a statement yesterday said he had learned in conferences with President Hoover and members of his Cabinet that the Federal Government had a thorough and systematic program under way to relieve unemployment.

"It is expected that in view of the unemployment situation," Mr. Glenn said, "a vigorous effort will be made at the December session of Congress to provide for an enlargement of the $115,000,000 public buildings program."

Federal building and construction projects, Mr. Glenn said, are being speeded up to the point that the amount of Government money expended during this fiscal year, ending June 30, 1931, will aggregate more than three times the total of the money expended by the Government in the last three fiscal years.

Indicative of the help the Government is lending toward the solution of the unemployment program, is a statement being prepared by the Postal Department to show how many persons are to be given employment during the Christmas holiday season as a result of an executive order waiving civil service qualifications for bread-winners. This is expected to be announced either today or tomorrow.

Auto Top on Freight Car Reveals Woman's Death

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—When a Michigan Central freight train pulled into Peoria today part of a wrecked automobile was discovered atop one of the box cars.

A phone call to Chicago, 50 miles distant and starting point of the train, revealed that a woman motorist, Mrs. Beatrice Boyle, 23, had driven her machine against the car thers and had been killed. So terrific was the collision that part of the automobile burst into flames and part landed on the roof of the car. The crew had been unaware of the accident.

Fireman Injured At Clarendon Fire

Joseph Baillie's Ankle Is Broken When Truck Hits Him.

Joseph Baillie, member of the Clarendon Fire Department, suffered a broken ankle when struck by the Ballston engine as he was in the act of removing ladders to fight the fire that partly destroyed the home of Mrs. Martha B. Croson, at Clarendon, yesterday. Baillie was rushed to Georgetown Hospital by M. B. Stoneburner, member of the Ballston department.

The fire, which appeared to have started in the attic, was discovered by Claughteon Ball, who turned in the alarm.

Firemen of both the Clarendon and Ballston departments were making much progress and were about to have the fire under control when the hose line of the Clarendon department was reported to have broken twice, which poured water into the house and is claimed to have added much to the damage. The damage was estimated at $3,000.

Harrison Points Out Fess and Others Were Told Tariff Would Hurt U. S.

GLOATING CLAIM DENIED

(Associated Press.)

Senator Harrison, Democrat, of Mississippi, said last night a recent statement by Chairman Fess, of the Republican national committee, that the Democrats "are unable to conceal their actual pleasure over the country's depression" is "unjustified by the facts."

"Throughout this crisis," Senator Harrison said in a statement through the Democratic national committee, "the Democratic minorities in Congress have cooperated in the fullest measure, first, in trying to prevent it and then in trying to restore confidence.

"If it were harmful for Democratic leadership in the beginning to warn the President, Senator Fess and his colleagues of the inevitable consequences of the passage of the tariff law, then we are guilty.

"The pitiable picture is that the President and Senator Fess and other Republican leaders in the Congress refused to accept our advice or be influenced by our action. But in every attempt to revive business confidence, restore economic stability, whether instituted by the President or not, we unreservedly and unstintedly cooperated."

ROYAL BRIDE WEEPS UPON LEAVING ITALY

King Boris and Giovanna Sail for Bulgaria as 60,000 Cheer.

CRUISERS ESCORT YACHT

Brindisi, Italy, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—King Boris, of Bulgaria, and his queen, the former Princess Giovanna, of Italy, departed today aboard the Bulgarian royal yacht Chear Ferdinand for the Bulgarian port of Varna to the farewell cheers of 60,000 persons.

Giovanna appeared deeply affected as she bade good-by to her sister, the Princess Mafalda, and her brother, Prince Humbert of Piedmont. The bride, who cried during her marriage ceremony yesterday, again broke into tears, her sister's eyes were moist and her brother was visibly moved. The princess threw her arms time after time around both of them before she tore herself away.

As the ship pulled away from shore, however, she smiled just as she smiled yesterday after her tears. She gave the madly cheering crowds lining the docks the Roman salute, while King Boris doffed his cap.

A few minutes after the king and queen sailed, the crown prince and Princess Piedmont and the Prince and Princess of Hesse, the latter the former Princess Mafalda, departed aboard the Italian yacht Quarto to escort the bridal couple part of the distance toward Varna.

The populace continued cheering and the ships in the harbor continued saluting until the two ships with their escort of four Italian scout cruisers passed out of sight.

Seven German Fascists Hurt in Row With Reds

Leipsic, Germany, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Seven Fascists were injured, two seriously, in a clash with Communists in the suburb of Leutzsch today. The Fascists, who were distributing pamphlets, were suddenly surrounded by an overwhelming force fo Communists.

They took refuge in nearby villas, but the Communists stormed the houses smashing windows and damaging doorways. The Fascists were severely beaten. The police arrived too late to make arrests.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Good Preferred Stocks
Buy Now for Income and Safety

FOLLOWING the stock market collapse of last autumn, it has been difficult to arouse public interest in anything with the name "stock" attached to it. Preferred stocks have suffered with common stocks in public disfavor . . . Accordingly, numerous issues of high-grade preferred stocks have been—and are still—selling at a very low price in comparison to their intrinsic value.

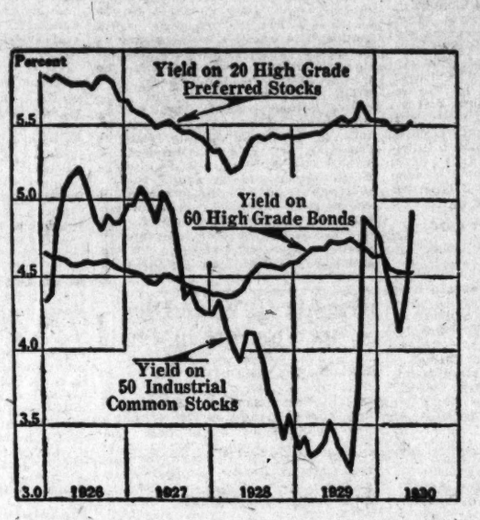

Recognizing this fact, some of the nation's most astute investors are today turning to the field of preferred stocks for opportunities to buy assured income at an attractive price.

In the normal course of recovery in the securities markets, fixed-income bearing securities are first to reflect rising prices. But since bonds are better known and better understood than preferred stocks, this process of recovery comes first in the bond market. Later, it will inevitably spread to high-grade preferred stocks.

We have already seen this typical course of recovery in the market for high-grade bonds . . . these have shown a rising tendency for several months. Well informed observers believe that this tendency will continue—and that it must surely include, before very long, the market for good preferred stocks.

NOW—before this rise begins—is the time for the shrewd investor to take advantage of the preferred stock opportunities that are now available.

In addition to the special and temporary situation that makes preferred stocks particularly attractive at this time, the intelligent investor will not overlook the factors that make high-grade preferred stocks a good investment at any time. The table printed on this page shows the yield on twenty high-grade preferred stocks over a period of five years, as compared to the yield on high-grade bonds and on common stocks. It will be noted that the yield on preferred stocks is almost as stable as that on bonds . . . that the preferred stock yield averages practically a full one per cent higher than that of the high-grade bonds.

TREND OF INVESTMENT YIELDS

The adjoining chart, reprinted through the courtesy of Standard Statistics Company, shows the yield on 20 high-grade preferred stocks, compared to that on 60 high-grade bonds and 50 common stocks.

Expressed in terms of percentage of income return, this one per cent difference in yield means a difference of about twenty per cent in the income received by the investor.

This differential in income return should receive the most careful attention from the investor who is buying income. High-grade bonds, of course, have their place in every investment list. They are the safest of investments. But the investor who is seeking maximum income may profitably and properly place a certain part of his funds in securities that pay a higher rate.

Let it be remembered, therefore, that high-grade preferred stocks are an investment medium worthy of careful consideration on their intrinsic merits—and that today, because of a temporary market situation, you can buy good preferred stocks at an especially attractive price level. This price level cannot prevail for long . . . the far-sighted investor will take advantage of it today.

Dance Season Opened With First Nights

Election of Committees Is Complete With Few Changes.

THE first meeting of Washington's several dancing classes and clubs took place last Monday evening when the younger members of society met at the first of a series of dances to be given every opening night of the Professional Players' performances at the Willard. Dates for the dances to follow are not to be announced until the dates of the plays have been decided upon.

The dancing class, which originally met at Mrs. Joseph E. Leiter's, and now meets at the Montgomery Country Club, has not yet announced its dates.

The third of the well-known series of dancing classes, the Friday Evening Dancing Class, has issued invitations for the season. The first of the series will take place December 19 at the Willard. The class is one of Washington's most delightful institutions and was originally founded by Mrs. Thomas F. Walsh, when she was in residence at her home on Massachusetts avenue.

The election of the officers of the committee has just been completed, with a few changes from last year.

Mme. Alfaro, wife of the Minister of Panama, is among the members of the committee, as are Mrs. Morris Sheppard, wife of Senator Sheppard; Mrs. Tasker L. Oddie, wife of Senator Oddie; Mrs. Henry J. Allen, wife of Senator Allen; Mrs. Peyton Gordon, wife of Justice Gordon; Mrs. John McKay Palmer, Mrs. Frank W. Mondell and Mrs. Parker West.

The first dance, in December, will be the only one held in 1930. The first one of the new year will take place on January 16, with the others following on February 6, February 22, March 20 and April 10. The closing event will, this season, as in the past, be a dinner dance and will take place on May 1. Every dance might be called a dinner dance, however, as innumerable parties are entertained at the Willard or elsewhere before each meeting.

Tenth Annual Victory Ball Committees Named.

Miss Grace Green Roosevelt daughter of the Governor of Porto Rico, and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, and Miss Mary Parker Corning are members of the committee for the tenth annual Victory ball to be held in New York Monday, November 10. The ball is given as usual for the benefit of the American Legion welfare committee of New York, and always draws a distinguished gathering. Brig. Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt is chairman of the ball.

Mrs. Charles Macon Wallingsford will leave Washington tomorrow for Los Angeles to attend the wedding of her niece, Miss Mildred Hopkins, and Mr. Everett Anthony Hackett, of San Antonio, Texas, which will take place on November 15. Before returning to Washington Mrs. Wallingsford will make a series of visits in California and will also stop in Kansas City.

The Massachusetts State Society of Washington will hold its first monthly dance of the 1930-31 season Tuesday evening, November 18, in the gold room at Wardman Park Hotel at 9 o'clock.

A short program has been arranged by the entertainment committee.

Judging from the steady increase of new members and many inquiries received by the various officers of the society, this promises to be the biggest and best opening dance of the season in the history of the society. Full details will be announced later.

President Sanford Bates and other officers of the society extend to all members and their friends a most cordial welcome.

Mrs. Hamilton Fish At Atlantic City.

Mrs. Hamilton Fish, wife of Representative Fish, is passing some time at the Seaside Hotel in Atlantic City.

Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. John H. Magruder entertained a company at the supper dance at the Club Chantecler on Saturday evening.

Others entertaining at Chantecler included Mr. Bishop Hill and Mr. Edward Burke 3d.

Miss L. C. Dodd, of Bloomfield, N. J., has arrived in Washington for a short stay and is stopping at the Potomac Park Apartments.

Mrs. William Wolff Smith will inaugurate her sixth season of book talks at the Willard Hotel on Thursday, November 6, using the Pulitzer prize books of the year as her material.

The talk will be followed by a small luncheon for which Mrs. Smith has sent out invitations, at which Mrs. Edward Everett Gann and Mrs. Frank T. Hines will be ranking guests.

Tuxedo Club Ball Attracts Capital Folk

Annual Autumn Affair (at Tuxedo Park, N. Y., Held for 500 Guests.

The ball to which New Yorkers are most anxious to be invited is the annual autumn ball at Tuxedo Park, N. Y., which took place Saturday night in the Tuxedo Club. More than 500 guests attended and the dance was one of the largest and most colorful held there.

A few Washingtonians attended, among them being Miss Mary Parker Corning, who was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Barbey, and Mr. Rushmore Patterson, who was in the party of Miss Edith Betts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wyllys Rossester Betts, and one of the guests of honor of the ball.

Many dinners preceded the ball, and the other debutantes especially honored on the occasion were Miss Lydia Blagden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. Meredith Blagden; Miss Sally Comly, daughter of Mrs. Garrard Comly, and Miss Elizabeth de Rham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick F. de Rham.

There were cardrooms set aside for those who did not wish to dance. The decorations, always a feature of the ball, were very beautiful; the usual autumn foliage formed the background and the entrance arch was festooned with clematis. One wall was covered with hemlock and maple and apple trees, the latter covered with fruit. Two other walls were paneled with tall cedars, and the fourth wall was covered with oak leaves and clematis. The bay windows of the room were ablaze with the color of leaves and chrysanthemums, brightened by indirect lighting.

The festivities continued yesterday with a miniature golf tournament in the morning and numerous teas in the afternoon.

Miss Corning will come to Washington later in the season with her parents, Representative and Mrs. S. Parker Corning, and will be presented to Washington society.

Mr. C. Bascom Slemp has taken an apartment for the winter at 2101 Connecticut avenue.

Girl Who Made Capital Debut Will Wed Soon

Engagement Announced of Miss Goldsborough and Mr. Carroll.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Mary Galt Goldsborough, daughter of Mr. and Mr. William Fitzhugh Goldsborough, of Baltimore, to Mr. J. B. Randol Carroll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll, of Homewood, near Baltimore, is of interest to Washington, uniting as the marriage will, two well-known old Maryland families.

Miss Goldsborough made her debut a few seasons ago at the Bachelors' Cotillion.

Mr. Carroll, who is a member of the Bachelors' Cotillion, is a student of law at the University of Maryland. He is a descendant of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, a signer of the Declaration of Independence. The date for the wedding has not yet been arranged.

Mrs. Walter Tuckerman entertained at tea yesterday afternoon for her niece, Miss Alice de Peyster, daughter of Mrs. Frederic Ashton de Peyster, of New York, who has visited in Washington frequently. The guests were mostly friends Miss de Peyster has made on former visits here and of Mr. and Mrs. Tuckerman's daughters.

Following the tea, Mrs. Tuckerman entertained about twenty young guests at a buffet supper.

Miss Laura Tuckerman spent a part of the summer at Newport with her aunt, Mrs. de Peyster, and Miss de Peyster.

Reports That Duchess Wants Divorce Denied

Muenster, Germany, Oct. 26 (A.P.). A spokesman for the Duke and Duchess of Croy today categorically denied reports published in a Berlin newspaper yesterday that the duchess, formerly Helen Lewis, of New York City and Albany, N. Y., was seeking a divorce.

The duke and duchess were married at Munich on October 22, 1924. The duke had previously been married to Nancy Louis Leishman, of Pittsburgh, but was divorced in 1922.

Ownership Remains the Same.

Where ownership is minutely divided the wealth and property rights to that wealth become so dissociated in our minds that we are apt to lose entirely their connection. For instance, when railway shares are sold in Wall Street the investor rarely thinks of those shares as connected with actual wealth. All he sees are the engraved certificates of his property rights; he has no visual picture of the actual railroad.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"SCORPIO."

IF October 27 is your bithday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a. m. to 9 a. m., from noon to 1:30 p. m., and from 5 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from 10:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., and from 3 p. m. to 4 p. m.

The merit of your work and character will be tested on this date, but your name will stand clear and triumph. A possible business setback—concentration on work is necessary. Domestic "incidents" of a tantalizing nature.

The child born on this October 27 will be ardent and rather petulant but will seldom bear malice. It should be ingenious and versatile, and be able to master many branches of learning. It will readily assimilate new ideas and new modes of living.

You are by nature highly strung, critical, sensitive and inclined to chafe. Your sojourn through life will not be a restful one, nor are you a restful companion, for you are too tensely organized. You have very quick perception, which enables you to seize opportunities, but you are too impatient to develop them properly, and a promising harvest is often a scanty one because of your poor cultivation of fertile seed. You could not be called indolent, but you are not willing to drudge, when only drudgery will bear fruits. You cling to old customs and view anything in the nature of change or innovation with disfavor. You are not willing to be "told" anything and experience is an expensive teacher, albeit, a thorough one.

You have a very discreet tongue and seldom air your own affairs in public, and you do not dip into the affairs of others. It irritates you to be questioned, and you can cleverly evade direct answers. In some ways you are a mystery man or woman to both your family and the outside world, and although there are few people who have less to hide, you are extremely secretive.

You do not enjoy reading in fields alien to your every day interests, and you do not have any serious hobbies. You are very fond of music and have a good sense of time and rhythm. You will not fall easily, but you will fall hard, when you do fall in love, and you will be both faithful and loyal to your mate.

The ensemble sketched is particularly wearable. The dress is so smart when the jacket is removed. The scalloped closing is accented by huge buttons. The cap sleeves are youthful. Inverted plaits that are held by stitching to secure snug hips and attractive flare to the hem.

The jacket is in popular hip length.

Pink pique is medium used for the dress. The jacket shows smart contrast in a printed pique in pink to coral-red tones.

Style No. 564 may be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

White shantung with vivid green jacket, yellow linen with brown linen, printed batiste in red and white with matching red pique jacket and dusty-pink flat washable crepe silk are splendid ideas for its development.

The Growth of Confidence Rests With Business

No business is better than the public's confidence in that business.

The growth of confidence rests with business itself, with each business unit and with each individual in business.

The burden of keeping advertising and selling methods free from abuses that destroy confidence and impair good-will cannot be thrown entirely upon the law and its administration.

Business itself, through the Better Business Bureau, has accepted its share of responsibility and is systematically weeding out the advertising of misleading statements and inaccuracies that challenge the public's belief.

Case by case—trade by trade—the Bureau system of fact-finding gets practical results.

In the furniture trade, the naming of woods used in furniture construction has become the usual practice in Washington. Furs are accurately described by the true name of the pelt. Silk means silk in Washington.

With minimum resort to law or punitive publicity, the Bureau is intent upon advancing the sound ideals of legitimate business by helping business itself remove the things that destroy belief.

The appearance of this announcement in these columns is evidence that this newspaper supports and cooperates with the Better Business Bureau for your protection.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

TOKYO to Washington to London—and a world-wide hook-up—is the aim of the NBC and CBS, if weather conditions are favorable, this morning. Premier Hamaguchi, of Japan, will address the international radio audience at 9:50 a. m., our time, speaking for ten minutes in connection with the signing of the London naval treaty. President Hoover, from the White House, will speak for another ten minutes, followed by Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, from London.

Hardly less ambitious will be the effort to lasso Bernard Shaw for a radio talk tomorrow afternoon. Einstein may be heard at the same time, with the Prince of Wales on deck for Thursday.

Can any one beat that for a trio to draw to?

Again the Federal Radio Commission is threatening stations with removal from the air for such violations as wobbling from their wavelengths, and failing to announce phonograph records. The commission has been doing this now for about four years, but we are still waiting to see the first station thrown off.

With Congress always ready to go to the rescue of the transgressing stations, it is our belief that few, if any, will ever be permanently deprived of their broadcasting licenses.

"HELLO Andy—shut up Ruby.' I mean 'Shut up Andy—hello Ruby.' Andy, won't you please let me alone when I'm telephoning Ruby."

The acid test for the Amos n' Andy fans last week was hearing their daily broadcasts, tuning in on their special broadcast Friday night, seeing their pictures, and still wanting more.

In the Friday broadcast Amos told the audience that the rain in their picture was the real thing as far as wetness was concerned and they didn't get dry "for a week." It took them an hour and a half each day to put their make-up on and exactly that length of time to get it off.

"If you think it was hot where you were this summer," Amos moaned at the thought of the experience," you ought to have been with us under those klieg lights." The photographic process was so slow that they dubbed the effort their "first all-waiting" picture. There were parties for them galore in Hollywood with Bebe Daniels, Charley Chaplin, Leon Errol, Louis Wolheim, and everybody. One was a tea given by Gloria Swanson, who, upon being taken ill held it in her boudoir. "And wasn't I rebarrassed," Andy added.

Andy's best remark of the week, however, was during his troubles Saturday night when to escape the ire of Madam Queen he resorted to a subterfuge to dash to the drug store to get some "acrobatic" spirits of ammonia. Bill Hay also came through with one when he predicted if Andy got into one or two more jams he would have a hard time preserving himself.

A LARGE portion of the revenue for its maintenance is now derived by the British Broadcasting Corporation from two magazines which it publishes, Florence V. Kaiser, of this department, said discussing the British broadcasting situation over Station WMAL Saturday.

The man who coined the word "raddio" will be heard in a campaign speech over WMAL tonight at 8:30 o'clock. Can you guess who he is?

The Sherlock Holmes episode tonight will be "the Scandal in Bohemia." (WRC, 10 o'clock.)

Coming! Willie Hoppe, retired champion balkline billiard player (WRC, 10:30 p. m., Wednesday).

The talk of Harry C. Butcher, Washington, representative of Columbia, before the Washington Ad Club tomorrow will be broadcast (WMAL, 1 p. m.).

WHEN memorizing a new song, Wee Willie Robyn, radio tenor, frequently sleeps with the music beneath his pillow. Whenever he awakens in the night he turns on the light and continues the task.

With Joseph Littau accepting the leadership of the Omaha Symphony Orchestra, Erno Rapee will again assume musical directorship of the Roxy Theater in New York. Mr. Littau was formerly assistant to Mr. Rapee at the Roxy.

One of them, the Radio Times, a weekly, is devoted almost entirely to programs and has a circulation of 1,200,000. The other, The Listener, a monthly, carries the text of every important timely address delivered over a B. B. C. station.

The shades of T. R., whose birthday this is, will doubtless mingle with the ethereal Navy Day celebrations today (WMAL, 5 p. m.; WRC, 11 p. m.).

Engineers have discovered that sopranos are capable of producing greater volume than any other variety of singers on the air.

Ozzie Nelson's orchestra musicians have hte habit of beating time by tapping one foot upon the floor. Ozzie tried to break them of this and finally solved the problem by making the boys remove their shoes while broadcasting.

FROM Capper's Magazine: "The radio fiend who uses the loud pedal after 11 o'clock at night, may be fined $200 in Atlanta, or may be sent to the city stockade for 30 days. Other American cities please copy."

Dare Interprets the Mode

Heavy, rosy beige satin forms this stately evening gown, and the matching satin coat is lavishly trimmed with fur dyed in the same rosy beige. (Courtesy of Dupouy-Magnin, Paris.)

New York, Oct. 26.

I TELL you, it's personality in clothes that counts these days. If any one tells you that this or that or the other is the "style" don't fall for it. There is no style today, nothing is more stylish than anything else. That is, as to details. There are style trends, to be sure, such as the trend of the higher waistline, the longer skirt, the velvet hat. But the longer skirt is a different length in each Maison du Couture, in each Fifth avenue window, on each elegante. And the normal waistline is never so many fixed inches from the neck line—it's where it makes the wearer's figure seem the most harmoniously balanced and proportioned. "Tuck your blouse in," says I to the tall, white lady who has a radio voice. And she did. And it looked better. That's because it's a style trend, not a fixed style, to wear a blouse that way with a separate skirt. But had her waistline been nothing to boast of (which it was, something to boast of, I mean) it would have been quite as stylish to wear the blouse outside the skirt.

"Oh, no, you musn't have a dress made with that kind of a waistline," says I to the nice lady with a grown son of 35. "But natural waistlines are stylish!" she wailed. "Nothing is stylish that is unbecoming, my dear—there are other dresses with moderately low waistlines, that are quite as stylish, and better for your figure."

And that's how it goes. Don't let anybody or anything trick you into wearing a rag, a single stitch, that is not becoming to you just because it claims to be stylish. It won't be stylish if it doesn't do its best for your figure. There are other things that will, that's why!

• • • •

Velvet berets, for instance, are the style trend in hats for the coming winter. If you are the type that can wear berets, or the type of hats that are derived from the beret foundation, then send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dare, The Washington Post, for her illustrated leaflet that tells you several ways to make these velvet berets—and variations. If you aren't, send for it anyhow, because some one in your family will surely appreciate it. Berets are simply "It" for the children, you know. But don't wear one unless you are the type!

• • • •

If you are a queen or a millyunaire or something, wear a white antelope blouse with your sports ensemble, and match it with antelope gloves. Of course, there are washable antelope skins, but who cares? This is an idea offered by one of Paris' leading couturiers, and is, of course, delightful when worn with suits of dark material. But I can't say a word for its practical side. Ah, well, it must be heavenly never to have to think of the practical side of anything.

• • • •

Dupouy-Magnin's heavy rosy beige satin ensemble was so simply gorilicious that I had to sketch it for you today! The coat was trimmed with fur dyed the same peachy pink beige, and it just was too heavenly!

• • • •

Hankies are getting larger and larger. Honestly, the newest evening handkerchiefs are ruffled or pleated or whatever handwork matches the dress that they must be carried with, and are large enough to be worn as a wee scarf if you are a bit chilly between dances! That's an idea, now isn't it?

• • • •

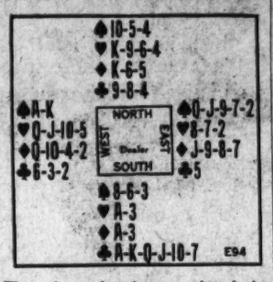

Another good idea is to look for Dare's weekly fashion letter in the big Sunday Washington Post each week.

Au Revoir!

WORK ON BRIDGE

INTERESTING HANDS I HAVE MET.

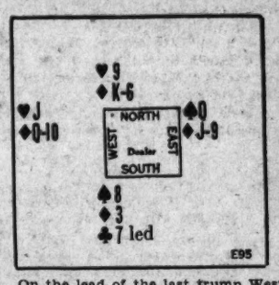

The above hand was played by Henry Jaeger, of Cleveland, one of America's outstanding experts, in a game of duplicate Auction. South bid three Clubs and obtained the contract. Had North bid three No Trumps, South would have rebid Clubs.

At Contract South would have bid three Clubs, North either three No Trumps or Clubs, and South would then have bid five.

A remarkable feature of the hand is that if North had bid No Trump and obtained the contract, five-odd would be made, the cards being played in the same order at either declaration except that at No Trump East would have made the opening lead with the Queen of Spades. It is worth while to get out a deck of cards and play the hand. At either Auction or Contract the better score would be made at Clubs on account of the five honors in one hand.

With Clubs the trump, West's first two leads were the Ace and King of Spades, those two cards played in that order showing no more Spades and a desire to ruff the third round. To trick 3 West led the Queen of Hearts; South won with the Ace and led three rounds of Clubs, exhausting the adversaries. South then led the Trey of Hearts, winning with dummy's King; and next a low Diamond from dummy, won with South's Ace. South then applied the "squeeze" by leading three rounds of trumps for the ninth, tenth and eleventh tricks; and with normal discarding, this situation developed at trick 11:

On the lead of the last trump West could not discard the Jack of Hearts as that would make North's Nine a winner, so he had to discard the Ten of Diamonds, whereupon North discarded his now worthless Nine of Hearts. East did not dare to throw away his Queen of Spades as that would make South's Eight good, so he discarded a Diamond. South led the Trey of Diamonds and North's King and Six took the last two tricks which made five-odd and game.

OCTOBER HEALTHY MONTH.

THE month of October ranks high among the healthful months. A decade ago it was about the most healthful month in the year measured by the death rate, but the great improvement in the standing of the hot months has robbed it of this honor. On the other hand, the great reduction of the autumn typhoid, and in malignant malaria—diseases which were once very much in evidence in October—has worked to improve the reputation for healthfulness of this month.

All summer the sunshine has been operating to kill off the world's available supply of harmful germs. Smallpox has progressively declined, as has diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles and others of the group. As was expected, infantile paralysis has been threatening, but toward the end of September this disease bgins its annual decrease and by mid-October we feel that it no longer menaces, at least for the year.

Studies of efficiency of workmen at the bench, and of students at their desks, show the labor output of October ranking high as to quantity and quality. The football industry is going good and the baseball plutocrats split up the dough and get away to the woods for a month of sport.

Now comes the other side of the picture. While the death rate of October is low, its sickness rate is fairly higher. The winter march of illness toward the March peak has begun. Some studies have shown that the sickness rate from ordinary common colds is quite high during October. The great increase in sore throats does not come until November, according to these figures. The colds are mostly head colds; the wave of bronchitis and chest colds is not yet due. With the opening of schools measles and diphtheria can always be expected to increase. Some of the extra bodily vigor stored up during the summer months is being drawn on. In fact, some physiques become bankrupt of treasure during October.

It is in order to advise all—old and young—to stay in the open as much as possible during this month; to get all the sunshine the short hours and the clouds allow; to indulge in as many hikes and other outings as time and weather permit.

GALL BLADDER TROUBLE.

Mrs. G. K. writes:

1. What causes gall bladder trouble?
2. What can any one do to get rid of it?
3. What is a good diet for a person with gall bladder trouble?

REPLY:

1. Among the causes are infection and gall stones.
2. Some cases require operation. Some are benefited by dieting, living a more active life, losing weight, and obeying the rules of health.
3. Eat no condiments, sauces, or spices. Eat sparingly of eggs, fats and oils. Do not eat much meat. Eat a very light supper.

TUBERCULOSIS IS SUSPECTED.

Mrs. F. W. A. writes: I have adopted three children. Two I raised. One was healthy until she was 5 years old. She then began to droop, became anemic, developed dropsy, and died. The doctor said that it was due to the fact that her mother, when expectant, ate improperly.

REPLY:

I think it probable that the child contracted heart disease or tuberculosis. It may be possible for the bad effects of the mother's wrong diet to hold off five years, but the chance is against that explanation.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

MANY people fail to realize the importance of proper soil, having the impression that any soil will do. Florists devote much time to the preparation of their soil and it is largely due to this care that they raise such perfect specimens. With only a minimum amount of labor you can readily change the soil you have so that it will meet the requirements of most plans.

For example, should your soil be rather heavy, with more clay than loam in it, you can change it by adding sand. Thus you will have converted an almost impossible soil for some kinds of plants into a light, friable one that will furnish the necessary elements for the development of all varieties with strong roots. Any kind of sand available will do, but coarse, sharp sand is best.

By experimenting with the soil you will be able to determine the quantity needed. A good test is to mix some sand and soil together, then take it up in the hand and squeeze it firmly together. If, when pressure is relaxed, the soil crumbles and falls apart, or even shows a tendency to do so, it is safe to conclude that you have used enough sand.

This will make an ideal soil for most strong-rooted plants. Plants having finer roots, like begonias or heliotropes, do better in a soil composed of more loam than clay. In fact, leaf mold usually suits them better.

Finely ground bonemeal is a welcome addition to most soils used for house plants. This is a safe form of nourishment, but be sure that it is finely ground.

Leaf mold, you know, has a large percentage of vegetable matter, which is essential to many of our soft wooded plants. This soil is fine and mellow, almost black in color and very rich in fertilizing elements. Always use sand in combination with leaf mold, to keep the loam porous. Not so much sand, however, as when clay or garden loam is the basis of your soil. Leaf mold is springy and will not pack and become hard, as does clay when it is watered.

Florists usually use a large percentage of well rotted manure in their soil combinations, but as this is becoming hard to obtain the home gardener will do well to learn to use bonemeal and leaf mold, which can both be purchased from any seedsman or florist.

Whites Are Barred From Unhappy Hunt Ground

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 26.—White men can not hunt on Indian reservations in the State, E. J. Koelzer, assistant United States district attorney, replied to a query from W. R. Beyer, Indian agent at the Menominee reservation.

Mr. Beyer recently confiscated the gun of a white man found hunting on the reservation, and there was a big stir about the confiscation around Shawano. Mr. Koelzer says that the reservation lands have the same status in law that they had before Wisconsin was a State.

Guiding Your Child

Posture.

Never does nagging fail more conspicuously than as a means of correcting bad posture.

The child who is constantly reminded to stand or sit straight seldom improves. He perhaps dutifully straightens up when he is told, only to slump automatically the moment his conscious attention is directed to something else.

Bad posture is, of course, often due to bad nutrition, faulty structure and improper distribution of weight. In such cases, of course, the remedy is in the hands of the physician, and the mother carries out his orders.

Most often, however, the cause of bad posture is not simply physical. It is even not physical at all. It is a response to emotional attitudes and conflicts. A child crushed by harsh treatment or who feels himself to be inadequate often unconsciously expresses these feelings in his dejected carriage.

Although all of us unconsciously take into account a man's posture in making our estimate of his personality, we have perhaps not thought of posture as expression of personality when we meet it as a problem in our children.

When we think of posture as an expression of personality we at once see the futility of nagging and are ready to deal with the problem for what it is, and as a part of the entire adjustment of the individual.

Given incentive for exercise and play with others, interest in games and sports, a feeling of success in the world of his fellows and security in his home a child will, unless he is limitating the bad example of someone he loves, develop the physical poise which we all desire for him.

IT WAS LOCKED

By JOHN HAWK.

READ THIS FIRST.

The Earl of Winston's body is found in the room of Robin Smith, young poet, at a house party at Alston Manor. Robin has attended so he may see Lady Gwendolen Winston, with whom he is desperately in love. In a fit of anger the poet locks his door and jumps out of the window, returning to his nifle room. The next day he is arrested and the various members of the party testify at the coroner's inquest. Bruce Armstrong, big game hunter, is on the stand and believes the poet innocent. Robin Smith is called to the stand. He denies that he had anything to do with the murder, but is held for the crime. After the inquest Lady Dorothy Alston prevails upon Gwendolen to stay at Alston Manor while Scotland Yard detectives work on the murder case.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXII.

If Lady Dorothy had only known, nothing could help Lady Gwendolen to take her mind off her trouble at that moment. It loomed as the only thing of consequence in her life. In the three days since her brother's murder had been discovered she had become transformed from a state of complete grief and prostration to one of vital energy in which the desire to avenge Lord Winston was uppermost. From the moment when there awakened in her this desire for vengeance, she had been fired with the scarcely less ardent desire to clear and restore to freedom the man she felt was unjustly accused. Could Robin have known the generous impulse which was moving this girl he loved, he would have felt at least partly compensated for his present humiliation and hardship. But it was a secret locked in Lady Gwendolen's bosom whose significance she hardly realized herself. If she had fully understood its import she might have hesitated; but as it was, she was moved by the confidence of youth and lived only in the present.

The loss of the brother she adored had shocked her into a sense of the real values of life. It was a sense which she had never lost since those childhood days in the Canadian woods, but which had been obscured by the popularity and flattery which had been hers daily, since her debut two years before. Considering the extent of her popularity she had kept her head very clear, but the advent of Donald Flint into her life had blinded her. He so obviously admired her from the first; and later from this initial admiration grew a stronger passion, until at last on the fatal night she had yielded to his often repeated pleadings, yielded in a moment of great temptation. For it was a temptation to marry a man who loved her, and who proved so consistently tender and considerate. And this man, without a doubt, was the most courted and desired in her set. She had yielded to that temptation, and if it had not been for the intrusion of misfortune later that evening she would probably never have lived to regret it. But her brother's death had been so great a shock as to throw her suddenly on bed rock. She saw money and position, power and fame, for what they were worth; very desirable in themselves, but not worth the sacrifice of that finer self which was loath to make compromises with life.

So even while Bruce Armstrong was seeking Lady Dorothy's permission to remain longer at Alston Manor, Lady Gwendolen was asking Donald Flint to give her back her promise.

"You see, Donald," she pleaded, "I do admire you immensely and I know any girl would be fortunate to marry you, but I don't love you as I know a girl ought to love a man to marry him. * * *"

"But I don't understand, Gwen, dear," he had protested. "Only three nights ago you did care. * * * I am sure you did. * * * It's just that you're awfully upset now. * * *"

"No, Donald, it isn't only that * * * It's that I feel I couldn't live with you in a backwoods hut, scrub and cook for you, and wear old clothes, and * * *"

"But, my dear, no one ever asked you to! It will always be my privilege and pleasure to fulfill your slightest wish. * * *"

"Oh, I know how kind you are! Don't make it harder, please. * * *"

"You love some one else * * *?" He looked searchingly and unbelievingly into the black eyes which were misty with unshed tears. Lady Gwendolen was finding it very hard.

"Of course not! How can you think that?" Her pale face reddened.

"I didn't think so. But I can't understand. * * *"

"Oh, dear, Donald, don't try. I don't really understand myself. I only know that I'm terribly unhappy, and I can never be happy again until * * *" She hesitated.

"I'd do anything on earth to make you happy, dearest. Anything. If you'd * * *"

"Then let me go now," she interrupted. "I can't think of love or marriage for years, if ever. I'm so miserable. Really, I'm not at all the same girl who promised to marry you three days ago, Donald. That's the real reason I must break our engagement. I'm not the same girl you asked in the garden that night. * * *"

"Then I ask this girl, too. It's you I want, Gwen, whoever you are or however you change. It can never matter!"

Tears began to run down the pale cheeks; her lips trembled pitifully. "I can't bear it!" she sobbed.

All the chivalry in a chivalrous nature immediately rose to the surface. Donald Flint put his arm tenderly about the shaking shoulders.

"I release you, dearest," he said in a husky voice. "We will put these last days out of our lives and begin again at the beginning. Some day I'll get your promise again, but now I give it back * * * freely."

Lady Gwendolen continued to weep. She was completely unstrung. It had been the hardest day of her easy life. First, that interminable frightful farce, for such she considered the inquest; then, seeing the brother she loved taken to his last resting-place. And now the shame and misery of hurting the man who had honored her so and who had been so tender to her. She felt as if she could never stop sobbing. The world had never seemed so black, the future so hopeless. Yet, however hard it proved, she resolved to be faithful to the best in herself. Edward would expect that. It was all she could do for him.

While the other four members of the depleted household were engaged as related, the two police inspectors were smoking and talking in the library, which had been cleared since the inquest and had resumed its customary aspect. They had been talking ever since lunch. During the hour or more that the others had spent attending the funeral the inspectors had spent going over the findings of the case to date.

As soon as the coroner's inquest had been adjourned Lady Dorothy had drawn Inspector Linscott aside and had several minutes' private conversation with him, the import of which he had conveyed to Inspector Deemer as soon as they were alone together after lunch.

"My holiday is overdue," he explained. "So I've wired for it. When the permission arrives, I shall stay on here with Lady Dorothy. She has begged me to help her. * * *"

"But you have a conviction!" interrupted Deemer.

"Quite." Linscott struck a match vigorously and began to puff at a cigar. "It's to reverse that verdict that I'm staying on."

"Then you think it was the prince? So do I! Shake!"

Linscott shook his head. "There's undoubtedly more to the Russian gentleman * * * and to the explorer, too * * * than meets the eyes. Still, I don't think it was the prince who committed the crime. No, Deemer. Find the mysterious stranger and you will put your finger on the heart of the affair."

"I don't agree with you at all!" returned Deemer emphatically. "One of the guests in this house is guilty! I'll stake my reputation on that!"

"Facts * * *?" drawled his colleague, smiling lazily.

"The cigarette case and watch!" was the quick retort.

"Thrown from above * * *?"

"Absolutely certain of it?"

"Well, the mysterious stranger had arms, I presume, as well as the guests!"

"Don't get swanky, Linscott. I'm deadly serious. Call it presentiment or what you will * * *"

"I don't say you're wrong. The stranger may prove only a link in a chain. But in that case he's the link that holds the rest together. I'm sure of it!"

Inspector Deemer looked thoughtfully at his colleague. He was wishing from the bottom of his heart that he could have found some pretext for remaining on the case. Lucky fellow, Linscott! It was certainly a mighty interesting affair and one that needed acute handling. He hated to think of "the post chap," as he called Robin, locked up in a cell. But locked up he would certainly remain until the grand jury was ready for the case, unless another man to take his place was found.

"There's more to this than meets the eye," Inspector Linscott was continuing as he chewed the burned-out end of his cigar. "That was the trouble this morning. The jury saw only as far as their noses, and there on the end of them sat Mr. Smith! It's mighty tough on the young fellow, but I still don't believe the tale he told. Whether he's keeping something back—he's undoubtedly quixotic enough—or whether he's so accustomed to spinning fantastic yarns that he just couldn't break the habit, I'm not prepared to say. But of all the outrageous fabrications I've heard accused men tell, his takes the prizes!"

"I agree!" said Deemer, rising and holding out his hand. "And I wish you all the luck in the world! Keep in touch with me and let me know if I can help. I must get the afternoon train, so I must move on and pack."

"Right-o! You may count on my letting you know if I can use you. For the present I want to go quietly over my facts and see if I can get hold of a loose thread somewhere. * * *"

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

High Points of Kitchen Planning.
(U. S. Department of Agriculture.)

First, last and all the time, in planning and equipping a kitchen, think about the work to be done in it.

If building or remodeling a kitchen, make it oblong and with no more floor space than actually needed. A kitchen is a workshop. Spaciousness is paid for in miles or extra steps.

Study the relation of the kitchen to the rest of the house. Make a direct connection from the kitchen to dining room in the common wall between them. See to it also that there is easy access to front and back doors, to the telephone, to the stairs, to the cellar and to the second floor.

Arrange for adequate ventilation in all weathers and for good lighting at all work centers at night as well as during the day.

Choose finishes for floor, walls and woodwork that are durable, suitable in color and can be kept easily clean.

Select furnishings that fit the needs, suit the wall and floor space and will pay for themselves in usefulness. Weigh the pros and cons of built-in, of movable furnishings for your own kitchen and compare prices carefully.

Decide on the most comfortable height of working surfaces.

Group all equipment, large and small, into compact work centers for preparation of raw food, cooking, serving, clearing away and dishwashing, and any other activities done regularly and often in the kitchen.

Arrange these groups from left to right, following the order in which the various jobs are done.

The kitchen is above all else a place to prepare and serve food. Limit it to this use if possible, and arrange for laundering and such work to be done in another place.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Persistence or Dignity."

DEAR Miss McDonald: I am a more or less successful business man at a loss to know how to proceed in a domestic crisis. My wife, whom I positively adored, has left me. So far as I know there is no one else, although I know there usually is when that happens. She says not. Says in fact that she might even come back some time.

I have tried every way in my power to get her to see me or even let me take her out occasionally, as before our marriage. She will not listen. I call her on the 'phone and she has her mother answer. I have always liked her mother and she likes me, but she can not get her daughter to see me, and suggests that I let her come to her decision without pressure. But that seems a weak program for a man who really loves a woman. We parted in anger, on my part, and I regret all that I did and said on that occasion and I want her back. Will she not think me very weak and supine to just accept the present situation? I feel that persistence is needed, and it is my instinct to persist. Am I not right in believing that to be the man's part?

FELIX.

Persistence in itself is no indication of strength and is usually an evidence of weakness, as in your case. The girl left you without provocation or so you believe, yet you pursue her to the point of becoming in her eyes just a poor pest. Why do you do it? Do you know nothing of women? Do you know that the thing that piques a woman is indifference? Devotion she takes as her due. Adoration she accepts as the goddess she believes herself to be. But indifference. She resents it with her whole soul. Invariably a woman begins to think about a man when he stops thinking about her. So long as she knows that sometime every morning the 'phone will ring and it will be Felix begging for a word, Felix means nothing to her. But the second or third day that the 'phone does not ring and Felix does not beg, she will wonder what Felix is doing. She may not care what he is doing, but she will wonder about it.

Your wife is probably merely tired of you. Tired of your devotion perhaps. Why not give the girl a rest? Even devotion can be terribly boring. Give her a little variation in a bit of healthy indifference. Women adore dignity in a man. They may pity a pleading lover but they can not get very excited over him. But the man who knows when to put a touch of dignity to work, wins every time. It is the note on which to say "finis." It leaves her somehow thinking that she has been put in her place, instead of feeling that she has put him in his place. Most men have considerable dignity if they care to use it, and they do not use it enough. Instead they say a dramatic "good-by," and call up in the morning. How can a woman preserve any enthusiasm over a man who is constantly saying good-bys that mean nothing? He becomes as devastatingly uncertain as the milkman who has never missed a day in 20 years.

If you want this girl back on your terms and not hers, summon a little dignity to your aid. You may feel like calling her or writing her, or in some manner crawling to her, but resist the impulse. When you cease being supplicating and boring you may become a man to her. At present you are being weak and uninteresting, both fatal for a man in your predicament. Just try dignity and see how that works.

This column is for you! Your experiences, opinions and suggestions will help those who read this page. Express your views and help those in need of advice. You need not sign your name.

British Aviatrix Cuts Mark Across Nation Four Hours

New Women's Record for Continental Flight Is Established.

Valley Stream, N. Y., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—With a smile on her wind-burned face, Mrs. Keith Miller, of Australia, set her Bullet plane down at Curtiss-Wright Airport at 3:02 p. m. today, thereby establishing a new women's speed record for west-east transcontinental flight. It was her second record in a few days, for she recently flew to the Pacific Coast faster than any other woman ever did.

Her total flying time from Los Angeles to New York was 21 hours and 47 minutes, almost 4 hours better than the record of 25 hours 35 minutes recently set by Miss Laura Ingalls. It was, however, far behind Capt. Frank Hawks' best time of 12 hours 25 minutes.

Recently the Australian aviatrix flew to Los Angeles in 25 hours 44 minutes.

In her record-smashing flight to the East Coast, she made several stops, the last being at Columbus, Ohio, where she stayed last night. Taking off at 10:53 a. m. today without having had any breakfast, she conquered cross winds which blew her far to the north of her scheduled course and arrived here 4 hours and 9 minutes after the take-off. That meant an average speed of about 190 miles an hour.

Greeted by a small but enthusiastic crowd, she smiled and said:

"I'm very glad to be here. I'm happy to have set records both ways. My plane behaved beautifully."

Among those waiting to congratulate her was Capt. William Lancaster, with whom she once made a difficult flight from London to Australia.

BOND PRICES TREAD DOWNWARD COURSE

Weak Share Market Proves of More Influence Than Easy Tone of Money.

FOREIGN ISSUES SCORE

New York, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—A sagging share market proved a more potent influence on the course of bonds than the very easy tone of money last week.

Selling of stocks was accompanied by liquidation in bonds throughout most of the week, and while prime bonds with the exception of those which due to special circumstances receded only slightly, second and third grade issues dipped into their low ground of the year.

Since September domestic bonds have receded with few interruptions until the average price is comparable with the lowest of 1930, and industrials have established new minimums.

The reaction has been in the face of very easy money conditions, which influence greater interest in bond buying. Although call money held at 2 per cent on the stock exchange, funds were available outside at 1¼ and time money remained stationary at levels unprecedented in recent years.

Investments of Banks.

Banks are still active in adding investment issues to their portfolios, the increase for the week totaling $28,000,000, and there has been some accumulation by other institutions. Despite these factors the dominant trend has been downward. Observers who found the reversal somewhat inexplicable have been forced to turn elsewhere in seeking an explanation.

Much of the liquidation in bonds appeared to be a repetition of former experiences when good investments have been sacrificed to protect poor ones. At least that appears to bond men to be the logical explanation for the heavy selling on days when stocks were reactionary. Speculators forced to raise additional margin for their share holdings were content to dispose of their bonds considerably under the previous price.

Upturn Expected Soon.

Although prices are down from the year's peak, confidence is expressed in many quarters that bonds will resume their advance as soon as there are definite signs that liquidation in stocks has run its course.

United States Governments have been firm, selling close to their highs. Most of the changes in foreign dollar issues have been advances. The upward trend of Latin Americans was helped by the fall of the Brazilian government, an event which apparently foreshadows a return of stable conditions in the South American republic. Reports from Germany concerning the economic situation were somewhat confused and the movement of German bonds was highly irregular.

Although considerable new financing is said to be in prospect, there was no great activity during the week, and the volume was considerably under the previous week. New York City marketed $50,000,000 in bonds, at a rate of interest providing the smallest yield in several years, and this issue was the principal offering of the week.

Liberty Limited

The Golden Arrow

and SEVEN other convenient trains

Luxurious New Equipment for the CONGRESSIONAL LIMITED (to New York)

KNOWN for many years as one of the world's most famous trains, the Congressional Limited now adds fresh laurels to its crown.

Luxurious new equipment has been designed for its exclusive use. This equipment includes remarkably comfortable new drawing-room parlor cars, buffet-lounge cars beautifully decorated in light green and cream, and an entirely new kind of observation car as comfortable as your own living room.

Try the Congressional Limited on your next trip to New York. Leaves Washington at 4:25 P. M. —leaves Baltimore at 5:17 P. M.— arrives New York at 8:50 P. M.

ON your next trip to Chicago take your choice of the Pennsylvania fleet of nine trains daily.

Leave when you choose . . . arrive in Chicago at the most convenient hour—the flexible Pennsylvania schedule meets business and social plans to perfection.

If it is not convenient to leave in the middle of the afternoon on the famous Liberty Limited, take The Golden Arrow. Leaving after business hours it still reaches Chicago at noon the following day. Or select any one of the seven other Chicago trains scheduled at convenient hours.

Each travels over one of the smoothest roadbeds in America. Each offers luxurious equipment, courteous service. Each has the famous Pennsylvania dining-car service.

To St. Louis the Pennsylvania offers six trains daily, led by The American and the "Spirit of St. Louis."

STEPMOTHER'S ALIBI SHATTERED, IS CLAIM

Discrepancies in Story of Slaying Bared by Witness, Denver Police Hold.

FOLLOWS LONG GRILLING

Denver, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Police today said a written statement by Mrs. Ethel Sparr contradicted an alibi claimed by Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, who yesterday pleaded not guilty to the first degree murder of her 10-year-old step-daughter, Leona.

Mrs. Sparr's statement, according to A. T. Clark, captain of detectives, recited that previous stories of events on the night of Tuesday, Oct. 14, were constructed by her and Mrs. O'Loughlin. On that night Leona was beaten over the head and her body thrown into Berkeley Park Lake.

Mrs. O'Loughlin had previously stated and Mrs. Sparr had confirmed that Mrs. O'Loughlin twice visited the Sparr home on that night and that Mrs. O'Loughlin had arrived about 8:30 p. m., left, and then returned about a half hour later.

Today, police said Mrs. Sparr recited that Mrs. O'Loughlin did not arrive until about 10:30 o'clock and she was disheveled and muddy and in a state of great excitement. The refuted statement was quoted as saying Mrs. O'Loughlin's shoes were muddy and her dress wet above the knees.

The alleged break in Mrs. O'Loughlin's alibi which police have been seeking since the woman's arrest a week ago, came after Mrs. Sparr had been questioned for more than seven hours Saturday by District Attorney Earl Wettengel and further interrogated by Chief of Police Robert F. Reed.

Mrs. Sparr's quoted statement today confirms statements previously taken from two men roomers at Mrs. Sparr's house. Robert Terrill told police he was certain Mrs. O'Loughlin had not reached the Sparr house before 10 o'clock. Another roomer said the woman had not been there to his knowledge when he went to sleep about 9:30 o'clock.

Frank O'Loughlin, uncle of the slain child, also pleaded not guilty to murder charges upon arraignment yesterday.

Auto Strikes, Kills Man On Highway, Overturns

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Oct. 26.—Philip H. Baldwin, 30, formerly of Lewisburg, W. Va., who, with his wife, came here last week from Dillsburg, Pa., was killed last night when struck by an automobile near here. The machine, occupied by Harry Stange and his wife and daughter, of Baltimore, overturned after striking Baldwin. Occupants of the machine escaped serious injury.

street. When he had not returned at 9 o'clock she called the police.

The Yocum girls, questioned later, said a dark small sedan containing two men had been parked in the shadows near the Yocum estate as their father drove them into the town.

"Although Yocum's family has not yet received a ransom note, it looks like the work of a kidnap gang," Sheriff Nash said. "For the time being we will work on the theory that Yocum was seized by members of a kidnap gang that has headquarters in Chicago or St. Louis and has engineered several extortion plots in the Midwest recently."

Yocum, who was 50 years old, was president of the Yocum State Bank, of Galva, and had extensive property holdings in Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska.

Business associates said he had no enemies and they could ascribe no reason for his disappearance other than abduction. No one could be found who could provide a good working description of the men who approached Yocum.

JEALOUSY BLAMED IN YOUTH'S SHOOTING

girl did not love him any more and shot himself.

O'Meara was saved from probable instantaneous death by the fact that the bullet, making a straight course for his heart, was deflected by a rib, physicians said last night. The bullet lodged in the pit of the arm on the left side, and in doing so severed several nerves. Paralysis of the left arm and hand will probably result, physicians said.

He was taken to the hospital by Ruby Crist, a sister of Anna, and a friend, Charles Cleveland, who was visiting at the home, and State Officer Wayne Carr. O'Meara had been courting the Crist girl for two years, her mother said.

O'Meara lives on Preston avenue, Cherrydale.

Sheriff Howard B. Fields, with Officers William E. Thompson and Hugh Jones, rushed to the scene. The pistol was turned over to Fields by the girl's mother.

Following a typhoid epidemic at Oviedo, in Spain, drinking fountains were closed and people ordered to drink only cider. In a week the epidemic vanished. Spaniards believe that apple juice kills disease germs.

Someone should make a little cider press that could be used at the family table to squeeze out the cider and give it to children with their noon meal fresh from the apples.

New Diesel Engine Patented by Robey

Motor, Designed to Abolish Nonessentials, Undergoing Tests in College Park.

Capt. E. Blanchard Robey, a native Washingtonian, has obtained a patent from the Patent Bureau and from similar agencies in 22 foreign countries for a new four-cylinder engine of the Diesel type, now undergoing tests at the College Park Airport in nearby Maryland.

The motor was designed to eliminate many of the so-called nonessentials used on other engines. It is claimed that the engine uses only the crudest form of oil; that it eliminates the fire hazard, even when operated at its maximum speed; that it eliminates all radio interference, due to its absence of electrical appliances, and that it can be operated for one-fifth the cost of the average motor.

Capt. John J. Devert, United States Army, in making the announcement yesterday, said that the simplified construction has eliminated 1,400 parts ordinarily used in engines, among other features.

$483 Found on Pauper Pays Funeral Expenses

Blackshear, Ga., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—John McMahon, listed for a number of years by Pierce County Commissioners as a pauper, was buried today, but not in a pauper's grave. McMahon, native of Ireland, was killed yesterday by a train. Without relatives the man's funeral was arranged by county officials, and plans made for a pauper's burial.

Coroner W. K. Sutlive discovered two secret pockets in McMahon's trousers. In the pockets he found $483 in currency, a part of which was used to buy a cemetery lot, nice casket and burial clothes.

GERMAN MINE TOLL NOW BELIEVED 100

90 Bodies Recovered and Hope Is Abandoned for 11 Still Under Ground.

THIRD RECENT DISASTER

Saarbrucken, Germany, Oct. 26 (A. P.).—The coal mine disaster at Maybach colliery yesterday appeared tonight to have taken at least 100 lives. Ninety bodies lay in mortuaries, while all hope was given up for eleven men known to be still under ground.

Coming before Germany's flags were hauled up from half-mast mourning for the 262 victims of the recent Alsdorf mine explosion, the Maybach disaster fell upon the nation as a stunning blow. The Saarbrucken disaster was not only the second major casualty to hit the German coal fields within a week. It was also the third within four months.

The July disaster at Neurode, last Tuesday's at Alsdorf and yesterday's at Maybach have between them snuffed out the lives of well over 500 miners.

The cause of yesterday's explosion was still undetermined tonight. It was the first thought that a benzol engine on the fourth level had exploded, igniting gases from the coal seams, but it later developed that only compressed air engines were used. Now officials believe a coal damp explosion may have touched off coal dust stirred up by a blast in another part of the mine.

The force of the explosion was felt chiefly in section 9, where 90 men were working, but miners in the adjoining section, No. 3, also were caught. The Maybach mine, which the Versailles treaty placed under French control until 1935, was known not to be immune from coal damp, but safeguarding precautions were elaborate and it was looked upon as a model mine.

All rescue work was abandned tonight when heat in the mine galleries became unbearable.

The funerals of the victims were set for next Wednesday. Telegrams of sympathy arrived from representatives of the French and German governments. One from the French government was signed "Aristide Briand."

Water Supply Aided By Rain at Lynchburg

Lynchburg, Va., Oct. 26.—After a light rain over the Pedlar River watershed Thursday night the level of the water in the city's lake on that river has commenced to rise slowly, having shown a gain of an inch yesterday. No report was received from the dam today. The last report showed the water down 308 inches, the lowest on record.

Records of the water department show a saving of 29,000,000 gallons of water the first 21 days of this month as compared with the same period in 1926, the last previous serious drought. This, officials hold, is due to 100 per cent installation of meters in the city and to location of several large leaks.

who won't write letters
Surprise them with a Parker Duofold
GUARANTEED FOR LIFE
And they will surprise you

You know some youngster you would like to hear from occasionally—a son or daughter, a nephew or niece. But it's like pulling teeth to get youth to write.

Yet for reasons known to themselves (and to us), giving them the Parker Duofold also is giving them the writing habit.

For one thing, its flashing beauty reminds them to write.

For another, they're proud to pull out this streamlined style-leader in any surroundings. They like its low non-bulging set in the pocket. And its smooth-tipped Pressureless Point takes the chore out of correspondence, and produces a more attractive, more legible hand.

There's nothing else like Parker's Duofold point. It's produced by the aces of point-smiths. It must pass 11 merciless tests before we accept it. Then we pay its maker a bonus in cash.

Guaranteed for Life

Go and balance this streamlined non-breakable classic in your hand. And write with this bonus point beside any other pen you can find.

That will explain why a person can't own a Parker Duofold without feeling the urge to use it early and often.

One caution—look for the imprint, "Geo. S. Parker—DUOFOLD." That guarantees it for life. The Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wisconsin. Sales and service station: Singer Building, New York City.

Good Performance at Low Cost

MANY SEVERE TESTS SHOW THE SUBSTANTIAL WORTH THAT HAS BEEN BUILT INTO THE FORD CAR

Ford

THE STURDINESS and reliability of the new Ford, so evident in the every-day uses of a motor car, are revealed also in many unusual tests of stamina and endurance. Over deeply rutted roads, through desert sands and deep snow, it has gone forward to new conquests of time and distance. From every corner of the world come reports of its good performance.

In England, the new Ford won three gold medals, one silver medal, and one bronze medal in the run from London to Exeter. In Peru it won first and third places in the reliability run over the tortuous Amanceas Road.

A Mexican general tells how one of the first of the new Fords in that country was driven from Acapulco to Atoyac "over a difficult country where there are no roads at all and the land is strewn with rocks and soft sand. Natives along the way saw their first automobile with positive wonder."

In Java, a new Ford was driven to the top of the Dieng Plateau, one of the highest mountains in Java. Previously the ascent to the old Hindu statues at the summit had been made only by horseback to the rest-house, thence on foot. In Poland, a new Ford won the 2000-mile international race from Warsaw to Lemberg to Warsaw.

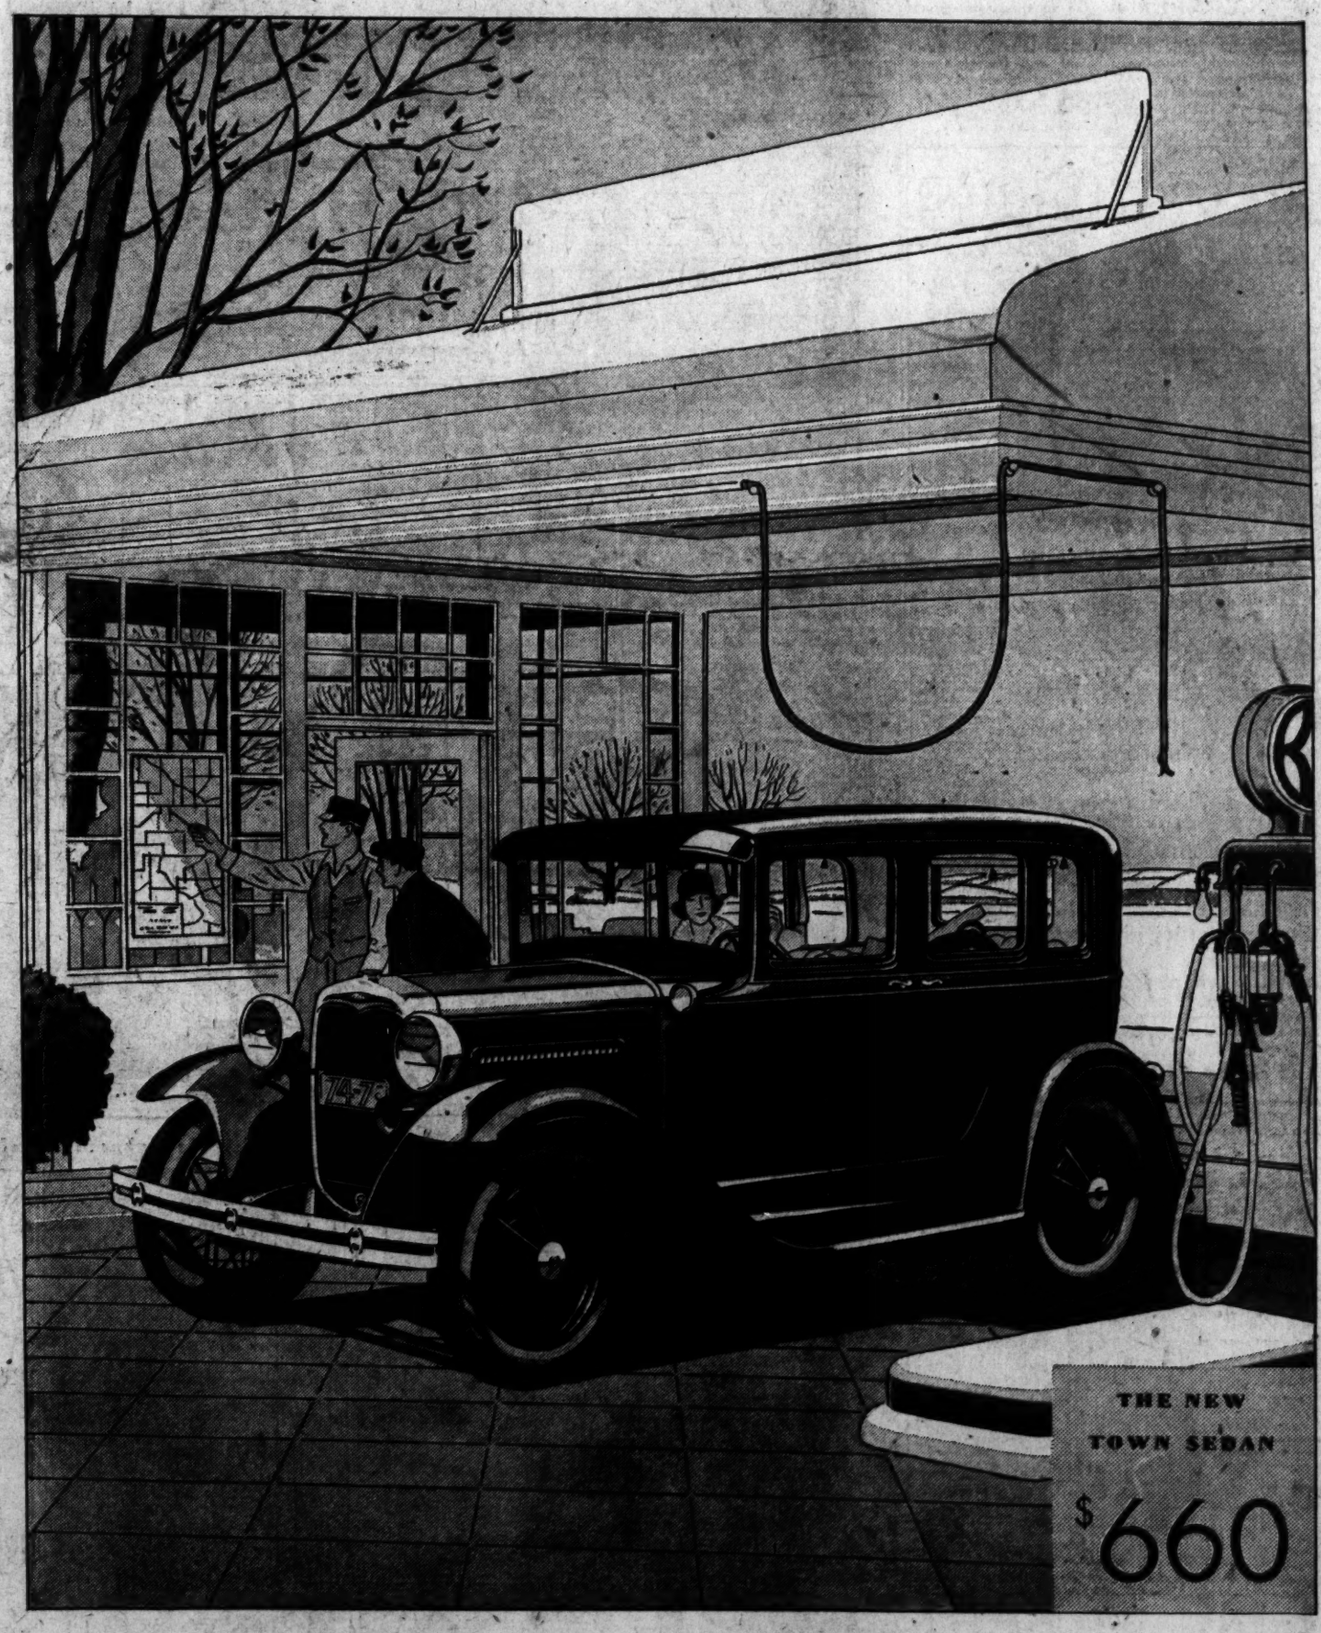

Two years ago, a new Ford fought its way along rough wagon trails to become the first car in history to cross the Peace River Block from Fort St. John to Hudson Hope, from the Alberta boundary to the western border of the block.

In 1930, the new Ford won the winter race arranged by the Royal Automobile Club of Sweden. This race was over slippery mountain roads. At times the car was half hidden by snow. Frequently the temperature was 20 degrees below zero.

These severe tests show the enduring quality that has been built into the new Ford and its ability to stand up under gruelling driving conditions. Long, hard service will confirm your first impression of quality and increase your pride in its capable performance. The value of simplicity of design, good materials and accuracy in manufacturing is especially apparent after the first twenty-five thousand miles.

See the nearest dealer and have him give you a demonstration ride in the new Ford. Check up every point that goes to make a good automobile and you will know that it is a value far above the price you pay.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

Several delegations of Indians, in full regalia, arrived from Western and Northern points to discuss various matters with the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

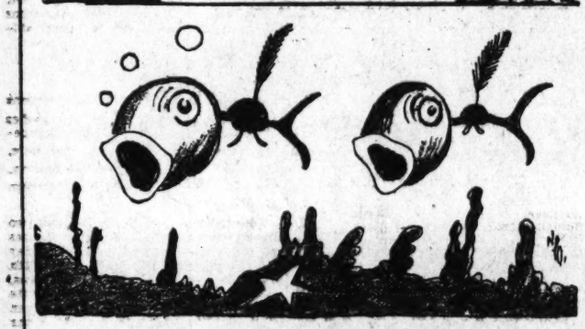

Hughie Tate, Nats' fielder, and Miss Sadie Gorman, of Cumberland, Md., were wed at St. Patrick's Church there.

The advisability of a law making it a crime to throw brickbats or other missiles at automobiles was discussed at length by Commissioner West and Police Court Judge Kimball. Commissioner West also advocated a $500 fine for joyriding, but Judge Kimball held such a regulation unnecessary.

G. U. TO DISCONTINUE NIGHT FOOTBALL NEXT YEAR

Westbrook Pegler Says

Special to The Washington Post.

New York, Oct. 26.—It was George Lott who said he was withdrawing from the big tennis tournaments to go to work rather than become a tennis bum, and at this time of the year the idea suggests itself that a number of young college football players are contemplating a line of work which may make football bums of them. There will be something almost impious to some people about the suggestion that a football hero could become a bum, even a genteel bum, but the facts of the situation are such that this seems quite possible. In fact, if I were pressed to do so, I believe I could cite, off-hand, the careers of half a dozen men, some of them no longer young men, who have ruined their careers either by hanging around the campuses beyond their time, coaching football teams, when they might better have been working at the professions which they learned in the academic halls, or by accepting nominal employment in which they were able to sell their athletic distinction in lieu of services. The annual output of star athletes is increasing, and among these momentary heroes of the sport page and the stadium there is a proportionate increase in the number of youths who intend to become football coaches.

50 Good Jobs For Grid Coaches.

At a guess, there are about 500 jobs for football coaches in the United States, not including high school jobs, and the vast majority of these jobs are not good jobs. In fact, the good jobs for football coaches probably do not exceed 50, and of these 50 virtually all are subject to sudden recall, the only exceptions that I can think of being Knute Rockne's job at Notre Dame, A. A. Stagg's job at the University of Chicago and, possibly, Robert Zuppke's job at the University of Illinois.

Perhaps I exaggerate the security of Mr. Zuppke's job, considering his football team lost handsomely to Northwestern University last week, but, anyway, it looks secure. Nor would I be suspected of intimating that Mr. Zuppke, if he were to lose his job, would become a bum, as some other university would be glad to fire some other coach, making a bum of him, and hire Mr. Zuppke, who has a national reputation. And, failing that, he would still have his newspaper comic strip to live on or off of, and comic strip artists are among the leading scorers in the income tax lists.

Only a Few Can Go to Army.

The parties who are likely to become football bums are the young football stars who are graduated from college still full of vigor and not yet willing to realize that the time for playing is over. Only a few can go to the United States Military Academy to extend their football careers, which Red Cagle frankly confessed was his reason for going there; only a few can play professional football and the remainder undertake to earn their living as coaches. With newspaper clippings less than a year old in their scrapbooks, calling them Thunderbolts, Tornadoes, Tearing Tigers, Red Scourges and all such fearsome, if bromidic, names, they can not make themsleves believe what hundreds of other football players before them have learned with good-natured resignation, that a football reputation fades quickly. Former congressmen know how it is.

The most famous of them are likely to have received and accepted offers of jobs as head coaches at obscure schools or assistant coaches at big ones before graduation time. Each such offer probably signifies that some other coach or assistant coach who was graduated somewhere else some years before and with equally bright momentary reputation has been fired or has resigned to follow the brokerage, bond or insurance profession, or, maybe, merely to attend to his financial interests, which generally amounts to the same thing.

Few Are Earning Big Money.

Moreover, the resigning party, by this time, will have been widely forgotten in the hubbub of ensuing reputations, will have married some optimistic co-ed of his undergraduate years, and, more than likely, will have something in the way of a start toward a family. I do not know what becomes of the coaches who are put out of the jobs that are thrown open to the annual class of new coaches, many of whom, in turn, are certain to be eased out in time to make room for fresher reputations, but I do know that very few coaches make big reputations and big money.

It would be most unkind to name the names of football players of yesteryear who were famous in their time, but have settled down to con-

Apaches Rout Richmond Club, 21-6

Champions Exhibit Drive in Rout of Arrow A. C.

McCann and Hudak Star; Northerns Next Foes.

THE Apaches displayed some of the football with which they hope to defend the District independent championship yesterday in breaking the epidemic of the games to defeat the Arrow Athletic Club Eleven, of Richmond, by a margin of 21 to 6. Although the Apaches outclassed their opponents, they were forced to yield a touchdown to the Virginians, marking the first time the Indians have been scored on this year.

The Arrows' score came in the closing minutes of the game and provided a thrill for the 2,000 fans present. The Virginians, who made only two first downs on rushing during the game, tried out their passing attack throughout the contest, but it was only in the fourth quarter that it was productive.

A 40-yard heave that Half Back Lankford caught on the Apache 8-yard line, gave the Virginians their chance. Three tries gained 4 yards and the Apaches might have held but for an offside penalty which gave the Arrows only a half yard to go. Hasse went over for the touchdown. He failed to kick the goal.

Apaches Are Greatly Improved.

Despite that score, the Apaches looked 100 per cent stronger than two weeks ago against the Tacony Aces when those teams tied. Hudak and McCann, two former Georgetown backs, proved consistent hitting off the tackles. Birthright gave a good kicking performance, while the interfering and defensive play of the entire team showed a decided improvement.

The Apaches had a touchdown registered before the game was four plays old. Hudak broke through the line, tossed off a couple of tacklers, cut for the sidelines and sprinted the remainder of the 60 yards to the goal line while his teammates cleared the way. Birthright missed the try for the point.

A fumble and a stubborn Virginia defense kept the Apaches from making another touchdown in the first period, but a safety brought the score to 8-0 at the half.

Indians Show Best Form.

In the third quarter the Apaches demonstrated their best form, making a drive of 60 yards which terminated in Dugan going over for the touchdown. He also kicked the extra point to make it 15-0. The Apaches duplicated the stunt after the next kick-off, marching down the field with "China" Boyd scoring. Dugan missed the try for point.

The Apaches will face their first test in defense of their title on Wednesday night, when they meet the Northern A. C. Eleven under the lights at Griffith Stadium. The Northerns, as well as the Mohawks and St. Mary's Celtics, watched the Apaches do their stuff yesterday.

Rockne Nears Another U.S. Grid Title

Upsets Are Rare in Major Games of Week-End.

Furman's Defeat of Florida Surprise in the South.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Upsets were exceedingly rare in the important football games throughout the Nation yesterday unless some surprisingly big scores by favored teams can be placed in this classification. The Ramblers of Notre Dame, again rambling toward a claim for a national championship, gave a great example of this kind of upset when they gave the powerful Pittsburgh Eleven a sound trouncing by a score of 35 to 19.

The triumph of the Rockne men in the only important East-West battle was the only victory for the Westerners over Eastern teams. In lesser clashes, Carnegie trounced Western Reserve, 40-6; Boston College defeated Dayton, 15-6; Allegheny swamped little Adrian, 31 to 0, and Rochester beat Kenyon, 13-6.

Two Intersectional Wins by Midwest.

Two other Midwestern teams were victorious in intersectional games. Nebraska went into the Rocky Mountain Conference to defeat Montana State, 53 to 7, and Northwestern beat Centre, 45 to 7. Chicago and Mississippi battled to a scoreless tie, while Indiana received a severe setback when it went into the Southwest to suffer a 27-to-0 setback at the hands of Southern Methodist. Centenary made it even against the Southwest Conference by defeating Baylor, 7-2.

In the East, the big games in general were close. Yale and Army tied at 7 to 7 as Albie Booth was lost to the Yale cause by an injury on his first play. Dartmouth fought over a rain-soaked field to defeat Harvard, 7 to 2. Undefeated Fordham capitalized a break to beat New York University 7 to 0 while Navy showed unexpected strength in trouncing Princeton, 31 to 0.

Purdue Causes Jolt In Big Ten.

Purdue caused the great disturbance in the Big Ten by gaining a 7-to-6 triumph over Wisconsin, a favored title contender. Michigan easily kept its place in the race by defeating Illinois by a 15-to-7 count.

The South saw one big upset as Little Furman defeated Florida, 14 to 13, in a game that was supposed to be a "breather." Alabama's Crimson Tide was triumphant over Vanderbilt, 12 to 7, in the struggle of the undefeated leaders. Georgia stayed in the running for the title by whipping Auburn, 39 to 7, and Kentucky trounced Virginia, 47 to 0. Tulane won its first conference game from Georgia Tech by a 28-to-0 score. Tennessee had a close call against North Carolina, winning 9 to 7.

Out where the war clouds roll over the Big Six Conference, Kansas continued to show the way even without "Jarring Jim" Bausch, winning an easy 20-to-6 decision over Iowa State. Oklahoma inserted a 49-yard run by Mills into a defensive battle and beat Kansas Aggies, 7 to 0. Missouri went out of the conference to win its first game of the year, beating Drake, 14 to 13.

Rice Beats Texas In Conference.

Rice caused a serious disturbance in the Southwest Conference by defeating Texas, 6 to 0, while Arkansas beat out Texas Aggies, 13 to 0. Texas Christian rested while beating Texas Tech, 26 to 0.

Utah rolled up another big score to show the way in the Rocky Mountain Conference, defeating Denver by a 59-to-0 score. Colorado beat Colorado Aggies, 7 to 0; Colorado Teachers downed Colorado Mines by the same score; Utah Aggies defeated Wyoming, 13 to 8, and Brigham Young trounced Western State, 25 to 0.

The slackening of the upset season failed to affect the Pacific Coast Conference when Southern California threw the standing still more into a turmoil by scoring a smashing 41 to 12 victory over Stanford. Starting in the first three minutes, the Trojans turned the big game into a rout. Washington scored another triumph for the northern section over the south by handing California another setback, 13 to 0. Oregon defeated Idaho, 20 to 6, and Washington State, the leading title contender, through its two major victories, routed Montana, 61 to 0, in other cnference games.

Kansas and Oklahoma Set Pace in Big Six

Kansas City, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—The Big Six football leaders, Kansas and Oklahoma, kept pace through another week-end in which the biggest development, from a conference standpoint, was Missouri's first season victory. The Tigers eked out a win from Drake, the Missouri Valley Conference champion, in the Missourian's fourth and last nonconference fray of the fall. Development, which has been gradual in a month of contests without titular bearing, now has made of the Missourians a team not to be trifled with. Five games, all with conference members, remain on the Tiger schedule.

Kansas turned back Iowa State, 20 to 6, but except for intervals in the first and last periods, did not exhibit its real power. The Jayhawkers eased up after a touchdwon early in the game and not until Iowa State scored early in the fourth quarter did Kansas race and twice more cross the goal line. Jim Bausch, whose gridiron proclivities have earned him the nickname of "Jarring Jim," did not play, coaches announcing they wished to take no chances with an old knee injury with an important intersectional game with Pennsylvania coming next Saturday in Philadelphia.

TECH SLIGHT CHOICE OVER CENTRAL

Winner in Struggle Tomorrow Likely to Take Title.

STANDINGS IN THE SERIES.

	W.	L.	Pct.

TOMORROW'S GAME.

Tech vs. Central at Central Stdaium, 3:45 o'clock.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

"AS Tech and Central go—so goes the high school series," has been the accepted reasoning in the scholastic football world since shortly after the two schools joined hands in athletic relationship in 1902. This holds true in 1930 despite the fact that the two great rivals meet this year comparatively early in the series, the game being but the fourth scheduled event in a league due to run until November 18.

But there is little doubt that the winner of tomorrow's annual epic, which is carded for Central Stadium at 3:45, has the high school situation well in hand.

Just how much of a pregram favorite Tech, the defending champion is, it seems problematical. The Tech of the Tech-Business game looked two touchdowns better than the Central of the Central-Western game, but then again Business' squad is no fit test against as smooth a smashing combination as Tech, while Western is showing unprecedented power this year.

Rivals Are Even In Veterans.

Central and Tech are about even so far as veterans in the line-up are concerned. Up until recently Tech had the superior line of the two, but under the rip-snorting coaching tactics of Gene Driscoll, former Hilltop luminary, the forward wall of the Blue and White has improved to approximately Tech's caliber.

In the back field Central has three veterans, Colella, Pinckney and Hinkel. Tech, on the other hand, has retained Nelson, Reichman and Yznaga, who made names for them-

D. C. Champions' Tourney At Woodmont November 9

Date Shifted to Assure Complete Representation; Lacey and Miller Tie at Manor; Capt. Clear Extended to Win.

THE champion-of-champions tournament, announced yesterday as scheduled to be played on the course of the Woodmont Club next Sunday afternoon, eighteen holes, medal play, has been postponed to Sunday afternoon, November 9. This change has been made in order to allow at least two of the contestants, who would otherwise be unable to play, an opportunity to compete.

Harry G. Pitt, who won the Chevy Chase Club invitation tournament, and George F. Miller, champion of the Manor Club, will play in the Brightwood Ex-Caddies' tournament arranged for next Sunday, on the Indian Spring course, in which event George J. Voigt will participate. John C. Shorey, who is eligible in the Woodmont competition by reason of his victory at Woodmont and Bannockburn in the club invitation tournaments, will also be unable to play next Sunday, as he will be engaged in the final round of the Bannockburn Club championship. Contestants in the champion-of-champions tournament who have been notified to play next Sunday will be expected to lunch at the Woodmont Club on Sunday, November 9, after which the medal round will be played.

Lacey and Miller Tie For Medal.

In the qualification round for the club championship at the Manor Club there was a tie for low medal between H. L. Lacey and George F. Miller, the latter eventually winning the title. The tie was played off yesterday and was won by Lacey with a score of 38—36—74, Miller's card being 40—40—80.

In the competition for the Tatum Cup at the Congressional Country Club yesterday, eighteen holes, medal play, handicap allowance, the winner was H. A. Walker ,with a card of 86—18—68. L. G. Goode finished second, with 95—26—69, while F. G. Awalt was third, with 97—26—71.

At the Woodmont Club yesterday the program included a mixed Scotch foursome, nine holes. The winners were Mrs. E. R. Nordlinger and Howard Nordlinger, with 43—7—36. Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Shapiro were second, with 51—13—38, and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney W. Strauss were third, with 49—10—39.

Assistant Pros Stage Tourney.

The assistant professionals in the Middle Atlantic Golf Association will hold their annual championship tournament next Thursday on the course of the Rodgers Forge Club, near Baltimore.

The final round in the club championship at the Bannockburn Club will be played next Sunday afternoon betwen John C. Shorey and J. T. McCarthy. In the semifinal round, played yesterday, Shorey defeated R. L. Burgdorf, 3 and 2, and McCarthy defeated Norman J. Hall, 2 and 1. J. L. Pherigo yesterday won the championship in class C by defeating A. H. Deibert, 3 and 2, in the final round.

Capt. W. J. Clear, Infantry, was forced to fight an uphill battle to escape elimination in the Army, Navy, Marine Club tournament yesterday, winning over Maj. P. L. Moundford, Army War College, by virtue of a birdie on the nineteenth hole. Maj. Moundford had Capt. Clear five down with eight holes to play.

IRISH FACE NORTHWESTERN.

Northwestern is the highest hurdle in Notre Dame's path to an undefeated season. Indiana, Penn, Drake and Army also will face the Ramblers. Northwestern is as yet unbeaten.

LOU LITTLE HANDICAPPED.

Only 37 football players reported to Coach Lou Little at the start of the season at Columbia. The Lions, after knocking over some easy opponents, were crushed by Dartmouth, 52-0, and last Saturday was extended to beat little Williams by a field goal, 3-0.

Booth Is "Doing Well," Report From Hospital

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 26 (A. P.):—Yale's most important hospital patient, little Albie Booth, is "doing well," his physicians reported tonight. The midget quarter back, who was smeared on the first play after he entered the Yale-Army game yesterday, will remain in the college infirmary tonight and possibly until Tuesday. No one seems willing to say when he will leave.

His injuries are described as "blows on the head, mouth and back."

Serious and painful as they must be, Yale officials state that Booth will be able to play against Dartmouth next Saturday.

COOPER WINS $5,000 GOLF TOURNEY

Von Elm Ties for 3d in Pro Debut to Gain $500.

SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 26 (A.P.)—Harry Cooper, Los Angeles professional, won the $5,000 Salt Lake City open golf tournament here today with a 72-hole score of 283. He toured the last two eighteen-hole rounds in par 72s today.

Olin Dutra, Del Monte, Calif., won second place with a score of 285. He smashed par figures on both rounds today, going around the first eighteen in 68 and the second in 71.

George Von Elm, Detroit "business man" professional, and Craig Wood, professional, of Bloomfield, N. J., tied for third place with 290 each. Von Elm, making his debut in his new classification, finished the last eighteen holes in 68, low for the afternoon round. Wood made the last round in 71.

Cooper, who has led the field since the start of the tournament, won the $1,500 first prize, and Dutra received $1,000 second money.

Von Elm and Wood Receive $500.

Vol Elm and Wood received $500 each; Al Espinosa, $250; Abe Espinosa, $150; Mangrum and McSpadden, $100

Games Under Lights Will Cease

Post Learns Hilltop Will Not Play at Night in 1931.

G. U. and G. W. Face Unbeaten Foes in Next Tests.

NIGHT football will be abandoned by the Georgetown University at the close of the present season, The Post has learned.

The innovation of games under lights which the Hilltop authorities introduced this season will be abandoned and no night games will be scheduled for next season despite the popularity of the nocturnal contests, which have attracted greater early season crowds than Georgetown has ever drawn.

Although no official confirmation of the report that the night games will be discontinued next year has been made by Hilltop officials, The Post has been informed that the interruption of the college program is the reason for the decision. Loyola College, of Baltimore, in the same Jesuit diocese as Georgetown, also has been notified to abandon night play, it was reported.

Georgetown officials who were approached early last week concerning the report, asserted that no decision has as yet been made on playing at night next year, and that there were no indications that the games at night would not be resumed in 1931.

Georgetown has played two night games thus far this season and has one more scheduled. The contests with West Virginia Wesleyan and West Virginia University, which attracted crowds of 15,000 and 17,000, respectively, far outdrew the same attractions played on Saturday afternoons in 1929.

D. C. Colleges Face Hard Games.

All of the Capital college elevens excepting Gallaudet have hard games on their hands this week. Georgetown and Catholic U. will play here, while Maryland, George Washington, American and Gallaudet will perform on foreign soil.

Georgetown, beaten in its last two starts, but still full of fight, figures in an intersectional clash Friday night with Michigan State in Griffith Stadium. Although the Spartans, coached by Jimmy Crowley, of Notre Dame fame, are undefeated and loom as one of the strongest elevens in the Middle West, Coach Tommy Mills thinks his Hoyas have a good chance of winning. It is Georgetown's final home game of the season.

Mills saw some pleasing features about the West Virginia defeat last Friday night, being especially pleased with Georgetown's spirit. For some time previously he had been almost disgusted with the lack of fire shown by his charges.

The performance of Ray Hudson, a converted back, at the left end position, won the praise of the Hilltop mentor, and this lad probably will remain a regular. Excepting Emile Bozek, right half back, the Hoyas escaped without injury, so Mills expects to be able to pit his full strength against Michigan State. Bozek hurt his shoulder but not seriously.

Catholic Prepares For New River.

Catholic U., back from a creditable showing against Duquesne in Pittsburgh, today begins preparation for its Saturday afternoon meetings with New River State in Brookland Stadium. The Cardinals doubtless acquired additional confidence through holding the powerful "Dukes" to a 13-0 score. They had been expected to take a bad lacing.

New River State, coached by Ken Shroyer, former Western Maryland mentor, is reported to be a capable team, one much more capable than might be expected of a team in the more or less obscure class of small West Virginia colleges. Dutch Bergman, Catholic U. coach, anticipates a strenuous afternoon for his team.

According to written accounts of the Duquesne contest, Catholic showed a fine forward passing attack with DeMello, Whelan, Blasi and Oliver figuring in the feature roles. Since the Cards managed to trouble

Four Sandlotters Injured In Game, Taken to Hospital

FOUR sandlot football players engaged in the Northern-Prep-Petworth Pennants game in the Capital City League suffered injuries that caused their removal to Walter Reed Hospital. Two others were treated at home.

Hurt most seriously were Peter Dawson, tackle, and John Casey, center, both of the Petworth Team. Dawson sustained a spine injury, while Casey suffered torn ligaments in his back. Paul Lawson, Northern half back, broke his right wrist and Ted Marshall, his teammate, received a cut lip, which required three stitches to close. The other players hurt were "Shorty" Harris, end, who suffered a bruised hip, and George White, whose lip was cut. Both played with the Northerns.

POWERFUL NEW YORK STABLES FAIL IN MARYLAND

Home-Breds Triumph in Stakes

Two Rich Purses at Laurel to Burch-Trained Entries.

Three More Attractive Stakes Mark Final Week.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.
Special to The Washington Post.

LAUREL, MD., Oct. 26.—The powerful stables of New York which cast their lot as a rule with Maryland racing with the beginning of Havre de Grace's meeting in late September, have failed to hold up their traditional custom of getting the lion's share of the rich stakes offered at the mile tracks in the Old Line State, but on the other hand, after Spinach's victories at the Harford course, Maryland and Western horses have taken most of the large prizes.

W. R. Coe's filly Conclave won the Laurel Stakes of a week ago, but when it came to the $15,000 Maryland Handicap, the chief spoils went to Maryland. It was won by Ral Parr's filly, Her Grace, almost last in consideration, for she paid $40.80 for $2. It was thought this would decide between Questionnaire and Spinach, generally regarded the leaders among the 3-year-olds since the retirement of Gallant Fox. But they never figured much in the race. Spinach did meet interference. The Baltimore filly, Her Grace, was chased home by the Western filly, Valenciennes, and Conclave was third.

Invaders Trail Tambour In $31,000 Selima.

It was in the $31,000 Selima for 2-year-old fillies that Preston Burch's Tambour showed her heels to New York and the West. Tambour won $26,070. Mrs. John D. Hertz's filly, Risque, winner at Saratoga, was second and J. E. Widener's Buckup third. Tambour paid $23.10, again showing a disregard in the parimutuel appraisement of the local horses. Aside from these stakes, Maryland horses to score Saturday were Willie Travers' Kensington; Mrs. Charles Amory's Balko; John Pat McGovern's Ruby Keller.

Earlier in the Laurel season Tarpaulin, trained by Preston Burch, owner of Tambour, won the Johnson $10,000 stakes for the Nevada Stock Farm and Siskin from the same stable last week galloped six furlongs in 1:12. Tarpaulin and Siskin both fell in the $20,000 Eastern Shore at Havre de Grace. Her Grace fell in the Laurel Stakes, injuring Adams. Incidentally, five fillies won at Laurel Saturday.

New York and Philadelphia horses may redeem themselves in the big prizes yet to be decided in Maryland. With the Laurel meeting closing next Saturday, including in its program the $25,000 Washington Handicap and the $10,000 added Spalding Lowe Jenkins Stakes, and the $10,000 Governor Ogle steeplechase in the middle of the week there may be a reversal of the sweep of the middle section racers. Mr. Sponge, Questionnaire Gone Away, Sun Beau and other stars will have a chance for a comeback.

The most impressive race by a 2-year-old at Laurel, or during the Maryland season, was turned in by the Epinard colt Siskin last week.

G. P. O. FEDS TRIUMPH.

The Government Printing Office Federals displayed some fast football in routing the Palisade Eleven yesterday, 33 to 0, before a large crowd on Fairlawn Field. Munroe, Jackson, Potts and Flynn led the winning attack. The Federals want to play the Mercury Juniors next Sunday. Call Manager Eddie Canter, at Lincoln 1571-W.

Boots and Saddle's
(Reg U S Patent Office)
—Laurel Selections—
By J B SNODGRASS

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 26.—The Maryland State Fair, Inc., enters on its last week of racing, a meeting of 23 days' duration, singularly marked by bright and bracing autumn weather, large attendance from day to day, and ending next Saturday in a wealth of prizes, including the $25,000 added Washington Handicap and the $1,000 added Spalding-Lowe-Jenkins Stakes for 2-year-olds.

While the $26,000 Selima Stakes and the $16,000 Maryland Handicap Saturday topped the racing for last week, Laurel comes back tomorrow with another attractive program, including the Tuscarora Purse as the feature, supported by a steeplechase, each of which has a $2,000 purse.

FEATURE RACE—MR. SPONGE, withdrawn from the Maryland Handicap Saturday, appears best in the Tuscarora, a mile and a sixteenth, with the reasonable impost of 110 pounds. MR. SPONGE, a fast Luke McLuke gelding, won his last start here from Ned O., going a mile and a sixteenth in 1:44 2-5. He may duplicate this effort, and do even better in this race, by cutting off the fractions. PETEE WRACK is expected to improve. He is a powerful horse, and appears to be approaching best form. His last race was at Havre de Grace, when he was fourth to WILLIAM T. He carries top weight of 120 pounds. He should be the contender. HOT TODDY will have BOOT TO BOOT to beat for third money, and should do so.

FIRST RACE—Maiden fillies, 2-year-olds go in the first race. PHANTASIME has speed, but has been quitting. She may last for the 5½ furlongs of this race. She was second to CANTER STONE in her last start. HIGHLAND BELL, beaten a head by Bright Comet last week, will be the contender in this dash. DARK RAY, second to Dark Ayress last out, should hold GREEN LIGHT and CRIMSAL safe.

SECOND RACE—Mr. Widener has a chance to win both features, for LORENZO is well placed in the steeplechase, second on the program, with MISTENFLUTE the chief contender. KING'S OWN seems to have third money well fastened down. LORENZO, now approaching his tenth year, has been quite a valuable jumper in his time, then was rested up two years, making his season debut at Belmont Park. In his last race here he fell when showing a good rush of speed. Previously he was third to STONEY LONESOME. MISTENFLUTE, winner at Saratoga, has shown no improvement at Laurel, but his class should insure his place prospects over KING'S OWN.

THIRD RACE—This race seems to have been fashined for LAMP BLACK, which takes off weight. The only thing that can jeopardize his chances is another listless ride. CRAZY COOT beat him a half-length in his last out when he was an even-money choice. FRENCH LASS is the chief danger. Her last race was a good one, in which she beat Lady Capulet. She picks up weight, but should hold the place. VOLTEAR is best of the others. He needs a longer route and less weight. He can not concede 16 pounds to LAMP BLACK.

FOURTH RACE—The Sagamore Stable has the best of it in the fourth race with the entry of BACKGAMMON and RIP VAN WINKLE. Either of these has a chance alone, and coupled it appears one will survive any challenge. GLASTONBURY is the dangerous rival. He was third to Priory and Ra Horus last out. BACKGAMMON won his two last starts, beating Magnifico in his last race, and this entitles him to be the top horse in this race.

SIXTH RACE—The Brookmeade Stable's RACCOON has beaten two stronger fields than the one he will meet in the sixth race. He should repeat easily. OUTPOST won his race of a mile and a half over African and will doubtless be the contender. FANTAD showed improvement and may beat the others.

SEVENTH—DRUGGIST, poorly ridden last out, but second to John Robert, should earn brackets in the seventh race. SATISFY, close up in her last two starts, in one of which she was second to Madder, has qualified for contender. TALL GRASS, although showing a dull performance in his start last week, may be best of the others. DADDY NELSON was backed in his last start, but something evidently happened to him, for he finished tenth. He may improve.

Gaithersburg Soccer Team Defeats Fashion Shop, 1-0

Rockville Wins; Rosedale Tied; British United Defeats Gaelic-Americans, 5 to 0; Marlboro Scores.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

FASHION Shop covered itself with glory although it was defeated by Gaithersburg 1 to 0 in one of five soccer tilts yesterday. The Ninth street boys, last in the league with three defeats and no victories, played the Marylanders, league leaders, on even terms throughout the ninety minutes to play. The deciding goal was scored twenty minutes before the final whistle by a spectacular shot.

Fashion Shop and Gaithersburg were competing in Capital City League games and teams of the same circuit bore out the opinion of critics that the junior soccer circuit is a well-balanced organization when the two other contests scheduled resulted in a 5 to 0 decision for Rockville over Army, and Rosedale played Silver Spring to a 2 to 2 tie.

Washington Soccer league games turned out as expected when Marlboro whitewashed D. C. Kickers, 4 to 0, and British United ran up a 5-to-0 score against Gaelic-Americans. Even these decisive victories were not gained easily as the defeated clubs in each instance fought valliantly to the final minutes of play.

Cooper Stars in Battle.

Bernard Copper, of Fashion Shop, was the outstanding player of the Gaithersburg-Fashion Shop match. This youngster, just out of junior high competition, defended in great style when he was called on and was a tower of strength in the attack. The Stuart Junior High boys not only fed the Ninth Street forward line, but displayed his true ability by directing his shots in such a way that the forward only could be blamed for the failure to convert his shots into goals.

British United did the expected when it triumphed over Gaelic-Americans, but the later team was not disgraced, although shut out. The Irish booters had the same difficulty yesterday that has caused its other defeats in the Washington Soccer League. In the first half, the boys from the Emerald Isle apparently could not get started, but in the last 45 minutes of play they played the kind of soccer that their faithful manager, Barney Ferry, considered them capable of when he entered them in the senior soccer circuit of the District. In this period, the United scored two goals, but with considerably more effort than in the first.

"Spud" Coleman was injured in the final fifteen minutes of play, and his absence had a noticeable effect on the play of the Silver Spring kickers in their tie with Rosedale. Sam Hook and Irving took advantage of the absence of the brilliant Maryland player in persistent drives on the opposing goal and succeeded in equalizing late in the game.

Rockville, smarting under a defeat by Gaithersburg a wek ago, came back yesterday with all of the vim and spirit that characterized its play early in the year. Had the Marylanders been more cautious on their shots at goal the Army Eleven no doubt would have been defeated by a greater score, but the general rule for the victors was wild shots far past the goal. Bill Heim, Rockville's full back, was the main factor in his team's victory.

New York Giants Rout Steamrollers, 25 to 0

New York, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—The New York Giants remained in the running for the National Professional Football League pennant today by trouncing the Providence Steamrollers, 25 to 0, at the Polo Grounds.

With Bennie Friedman, former Michigan star, on the sending end, the Giants scored all four of their touchdowns by passes.

HARD GAMES FOR LOCAL COLLEGES

G. U. Host to Westerners; Maryland Invades Virginia.

the strong Dukes with aerial weapons, it may be assumed that they can do the same against New River State.

Maryland hopes to score its second successive Southern Conference triumph when it meets its traditional foe, Virginia, at Charlottesville. The Old Line Team made a fine showing in its conference campaign last Saturday by defeating V. M. I., 20 to 0, thus avenging a one-point loss suffered at the Cadets' hands last fall.

Considering that Virginia defeated V. M. I. the Saturday previous by 13 to 0, the forthcoming clash should prove rather evenly contested. Maryland, however, probably will rule the favorite.

Colonials Encounter Unbeaten Foe.

George Washington faces a new opponent in Tulsa University, 1929 Oklahoma "Big Four" champion. The game will be played Friday night in the Golden Hurricane's new $300,000 stadium in Tulsa. Coach Jim Pixlee, who scouted the Westerners last Saturday—making his trip by both air and rail—will lead the Colonials away Wednesday night.

Tulsa so far is undefeated, having downed Arkansas, 26 to 6; Hendrix, 27 to 0, and Phillips, 25 to 0. It owns several versatile backs.

American U. struck a Tartar in Atlantic U. at Virginia Beach, and has nothing easy in its task listed this Saturday, when it engages St. John's at Annapolis. The Johnnies upset Washington and Lee, 7 to 0, thus establishing themselves top-heavy favorites to beat Coach Young's players.

Dick Jarvis, right end, joined the A. U. hospital crew after suffering a broken collar bone in the Atlantic game.

Gallaudet is to tackle the Army Medical Field Service Eleven at Carlisle, Pa., and if the dope holds true, should ring up its fourth victory of the season.

Michigan State Regains Injured Stars for G. U.

Special to The Washington Post.

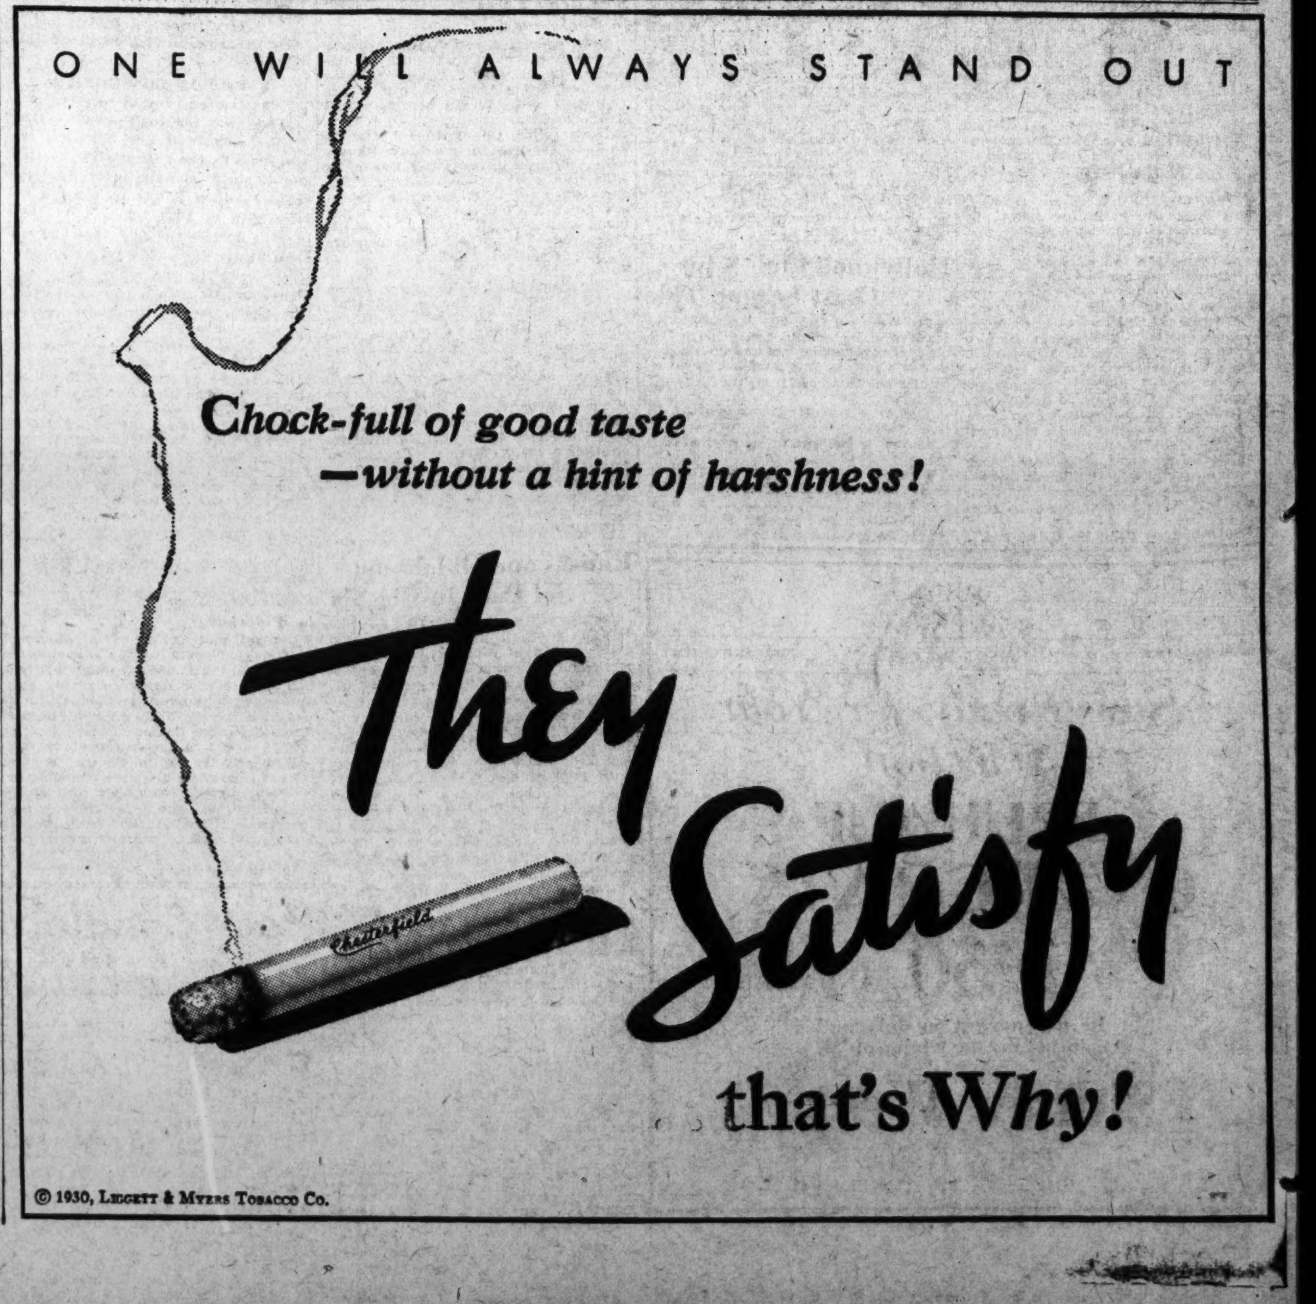

East Lansing, Mich., Oct. 26.—Michigan State's rampaging Spartans victorious over unbeaten Case by a 45 to 0 score, Monday turned their attention to active preparation for the game with Georgetown at Washington Friday night. Coach Jimmy (Sleepy) Crowley marshaled his forces for practice under the floodlights. In view of the light workout that his regulars had against Case, he planned scrimmages for both days. Freshmen teams, equipped with Georgetown plays, will provide the opposition.

State emerged from the Case game in good condition. Only two players were taken from the game because of injuries and these two had only minor bumps. Cecil Fogg, the left end whom Crowley calls one of the best defensive men he ever saw, suffered a cleat wound on his forehead and Joe Kowatch, full back, was kicked in the head by a fellow player.

Just by way of cheering Coach Crowley, Jerry Breen, the senior half back who has not played since the game with Michigan three weeks ago, reported for active duty Monday, fully recovered from his injuries. Breen's experience and speed add materially to the Spartan strength. Now if Abe Eliowitz, swarthy sophomore full back, rounds into shape this week, Crowley will go to Washington with all his gridiron guns well primed.

State will have a special train of eleven coaches going to Washington for the game. The 45-piece R. O. T. C. Band, recognized as one of the best-drilled musical organizations in the Middle West, will accompany the team. There will be eight Pullmans, two diners and an observation car.

President Hoover has agreed to hear the band play Friday noon and will receive members of the football team at the same hour.

MERCURY, NORTHERN PREPS WIN LEAGUE FEATURES

SAINT AND PENNANT ELEVENS DEFEATED BY SCORES OF 7 TO 0

Seat Pleasant Noses Out Quintens; Frats Tie Marions.

By JOHN V. HINKEL.

MERCURY atoned for a 6-0 defeat last year at the hands of St. Stephen's by hanging up a 7-0 decision over the Saints yesterday afternoon on the Gonzaga field in the feature contest of the trio of battles listed in the unlimited section of The Post's Capital City Football League.

Seat Pleasant nosed out the Quentins, 7-6, and the Alpha Delta Omega Fraternity Eleven, of Alexandria, played the Marions to a 6-6 tie in the two other attractions on the day's card.

St. Stephen's kept a determined Mercury Eleven at bay for three quarters, only to weaken in the final period and allow the Southwest eleven to shove across the winning touchdown. Almost a thousand partisans of both teams watched the Mercs keep their goal line invincible for the third consecutive time.

With the contest rapidly drawing to a close and neither club having scored, the Mercurys opened up with a baffling pass attack. On a reverse play Wiltshire dropped back and flipped the oval 10 yards to Self, who caught it on the dead run, shook off several would-be tacklers, and outsprinted the Saint safetyman to cross the "Foggy Bottom" goal line. Handiboe booted the extra point from placement.

Limerick's Punting

Big Asset.

St. Stephen's at no time during the struggle was in a position to score. Both teams played a very conservative, kicking game, with G. Limerick, of the Mercs, continually keeping the Saints in their own territory with his long spirals. Wiltshire, Self, Kelliher and Goodenough featured for the Mercuries. Jones and Flannigan, of St. Stephen's, were two big reasons why the powerful Merc attack was kept in check most ofthe contest.

Alcova and Iroquois Battle to 6-6 Draw

Alcova Motor Co. and Iroquois elevens battled to a 6-6 tie yesterday afternoon on the Arlington field. Sauls took a 20-yard pass from Hall early in the first period to score the Alcova touchdown. The Indians counted the tying six-pointer in the third period, when Nugent went around end for 12 yards and a touchdown. Floyd, Hall and H. Walker bore the brunt of the Alcova play, while Nugent and Brown were outstanding for the Iroquois.

Brookland Boys Win From Stantons, 13-0

Before a crowd closely approaching 1,000 persons, the Brookland Boys Club defeated the Stantons on Brookland field, 13-0. Both teams are title contenders of the Sportmart League. The game was featured by the brilliant running of "Squint" McNally and "Fats" Farran, coupled with the stellar defensive work of Dufficy. The Stantons, lacking the services of Cinnotti, presented a stubborn defense. Cornell starred for the Stantons.

Centennials Win and Top; Hawks Down Mardfeldts.

THREE neighborhood gridiron feuds were settled in clean-cut fashion in the feature attractions of yesterday afternoon's 150-pound section card of The Post's Capital City Football League, when the Northern Preps defeated the Petworth Pennants, 7-0, the Centennials walloped the Columbias, 20-6, and the Brentwood Hawks trounced the Mardfeldts, 6-0. Wolverine and Del Rays battled to a no-decision, 0-0, score in the fourth league game.

Counting the only touchdown of the contest in the last few minutes of the opening quarter, a smooth-working Northern Prep machine rolled over a fighting Petworth Pennant eleven on the Silver Spring field in the first triumph one team has been able to score over the other in the last four years, each of the other games having resulted in a tie. The lone touchdown margin just about expresses the superiority of the Redbirds over their greatest rivals.

Poor kicking handicapped the Pennants throughout, especially in the first quarter, when Connell's poor punt went outside on Petworth's 20-yard line. Reed, hard-plunging Prep full back, smashed his way across the Pet goal in three tries, off-tackle. He also converted the extra point on a dive through center.

Battle Was See-Saw Affair.

The battle was a see-saw affair the whole route. Uncorking a flashy passing attack in the third period, the Pennants were stopped once on the Preps' 3-yard mark and a second time when they were within 12 yards of a touchdown. In the waning minutes of the contest the Northerns blocked and recovered a Petworth kick on the Pennants' 24-yard strip. Ward, Pet back, squelched the threat, however, by covering a Prep fumble on his own 10-yard line.

The playing of Grant, Kessler and Reed featured for the winners. Casey, G. Mehlor, P. Edmonds and Ward were the outstanding luminaries for the Pennants.

Centennials scored their second straight league triumph by downing the Columbias on the Seat Pleasant Field in an exceptionally well-played contest. Led by Buddy Russink, the Cents displayed one of the finest offenses seen in a league game so far this season.

The winners opened up early in the first quarter and on a 50-yard march took the ball over for their first touchdown. Foley's fumble on the 8-yard strip bounded behind the Columbia goal, where Fitzgerald, his teammate, fell on the ball for a 6-pointer. Bussink tossed 14 yards to Foley for the second Cent touchdown, and Aquilino dashed 33 yards with an intercepted Columbia pass for the last. Bussink passed to Histon for one extra point, and the Centennials were given another on an offside penalty against the Columbias.

Assisted greatly by two 15-yard penalties, the Columbias registered their touchdown last in the game when Piefer plunged across from the 2-yard strip. Healey and Piefer starred for the losing outfit, while Histon, Finnegan, Bussink and Whaley were the main cogs in the Centennial victory.

Mardfeldts Put Up Fight.

The Mardfeldts were outclassed in everything except fight in their contest with the Brentwood Hawks on the Mount Rainier Field. Play was in Mardfeldt territory most of the four quarters.

W. Feiner went over from the 5-yard strip in the first period for the only touchdown of the battle, after the Marylanders had rushed the ball within scoring distance on straight football varied with a few short passes. His drop-kick for the extra point went wide of the posts. At the end of the half and at the final whistle the Hawks were within their opponents' 4-yard strip.

Capt. Williams and Abbott bore the brunt of the Hawks' offensive operations, while S. Feiner, Traver and Finch featured in the line. The playing of Phelps, Lay and Kleiner stood out for the Mardfeldts.

Evenly matched practically in every department of play, the Del Rays and Wolverines fought it out on the Del Ray gridiron, with neither team gaining the advantage. Each team failed to take advantage of several opportunities to score.

Babe Clark, Del Ray half back, caught a short pass from Nixon and ran 62 yards before he was pulled down on the Wolverines' 6-yard line early in the second period. The Washington eleven then broke up another passing attack to avert the threat. Snellings, of the Wolverines, snagged a Del Ray pass on his own 16-yard strip in the third period and was not brought down until he reached the Virginians' 18-yard mark. The Del Rays then took the ball on downs.

Marshall Prinks, as usual, was the backbone of the Del Ray play. Raum, Gerdom and Minor played heads-up football for the Wolverines.

Ribas, Billiard Star, Performs Wednesday

Isidro Ribas, internationally known Spanish fancy shot billiard player, will perform in a specially arranged exhibition match Wednesday night at the billiard parlors of Lewis & Krauss.

Ribas, who first gained fame on the Continent, has been on an extensive tour through South and Central America. His American tour is in conjunction with Albert G. Cutler, of New York, noted player and official, who will appear with him Wednesday night.

Chicago Bears Defeat Yellow Jackets, 13-7

Chicago, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—With Brumbaugh leading the attack by his long end runs, the Chicago Bears beat the Philadelphia Yellow Jackets in a National League football game today, 13 to 7.

Nagursky went through tackle for 22 yards to score the Bears' first touchdown in the opening period, and Sternaman drop-kicked for the extra point. Philadelphia scored in the second quarter, when Crabtree took a long pass from Rengel on the 30-yard line and raced the ball over. Halieka place-kicked for point.

The final Bear touchdown came in the third period after a steady march down field to the 6-yard line. The Yellow Jackets held for three downs and then Brumbach crossed the goal on a wide end run. Chicago almost scored again in the closing quarter, but Brumbaugh fumbled on Philadelphia's 2-yard line.

Alexandria Firemen Beat Stanleys, 2 to 0

Alexandria, Oct. 26.—Engine Co. No. 5 gridders eked out a 2 to 0 victory over the Stanley A. C., of Washington here this afternoon on Haydon's Gield before a large gathering of football fans.

Murphy's safety in the second period, when he tackled Baker, Stanley's guard, back of his own goal line gave the Smoke Eaters the well-earned victory.

Entwisle, previous to this play, had charged over with the leather on what appeared to be a six-pointer, but he fumbled when tackled and Baker retrieved the leather. He made a gallant effort to reach the playing field but was brought to earth in back of his own goal line by Murphy.

Manager Cleveland Shaw, of the Firefighters, is trying to schedule a game with some fast Washington club for his tean in the Virginia city next Sunday. He can be reached by telephoning Alexandria 331 after 6 o'clock.

V. M. I. PLAYS DAVIDSON ELEVEN

Game Next Saturday Shifted to Morning; Old Series.

Special to The Washington Post.

LEXINGTON, VA., Oct. 26.—The last home game of the season for Virginia Military Institute will be played Saturday, when the Cadets face the Wildcats of Davidson College on Alumni Field.

Though originally scheduled for the afternoon, the game will be called at 11 o'clock in the morning so that players and spectators may see the home-coming clash at 2:30 p. m. between V. P. I. and Washington and Lee. Classes at V. M. I. will be suspended at 10 a. m.

The Cadet-Wildcat tilt will be the twelfth in a football series inaugurated in 1904 and uninterrupted since 1926. V. M. I. has been the winner seven times, with Davidson triumphant on four occasions. The Cadets took the openr, 6 to 0, and Davidson retaliated, 8 to 6, in 1905. The Wildcats won in both 1906, 6 to 0, and 1909, 8 to 0.

1911 Game Ended By 5-0 Score.

V. M. I. won one of the hardest fought games of the series in 1911 by a score of 5 to 0, and the teams did not meet again until 1917, when Davidson won for the last time, running up a score of 23 to 7. In 1919 the Cadets took a 14 to 7 game, and in the last four years the Flying Squadron has triumphed by scores of 12 to 7, 20 to 0, 13 to 0 and 12 to 6.

Davidson's chances to break back into the win column at the expense of the Cadets are brighter this season than they have been for years. The Wildcats have been traveling at a fast gait this season, turning in victories over N. C. State, Erskine and the Citadel and losing a close game to Duke. The Wildcats downed the Citadel by a single touchdown after the Bull Dogs had outscored the Cadets by a lone point after touchdown.

The Cadets are encouraged by the fact that Capt. Roy Dunn will be able to lead his team into action. Last year the star full back was prevented by injuries from getting into the game at Davidson.

firmed mediocrity or failure as coaches, but there are many such and some of the cases are quite tragic. They left school believing they would always be famous and in some instances they did command temporary success and further space in the newspapers. But, in time, their style of coaching became passe or there were some years when the players could not win for them and so the alumni got them. Naturally, when a coach is fired or asks permission to resign, which is another way of saying the same thing, his reputation suffers and his pay in his next job, which may not come until he has spent a year out of work, is likely to be somewhat less.

Coaching is a seasonal occupation at most colleges, but most colleges are situated in college towns where there is no off-season market for the kind of work the young coach studied for when he was going to college. So he embarrasses himself in the career of his original selection, divides himself between two ambitions, makes a botch of both and, in many cases, becomes a football bum at from $2,000 to $4,500 a year, some years.

Rice Provides Surprise In Southwest's Race

Dallas, Tex., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—When bigger and better football upsets are devised, the Southwest Conference probably will be responsible. There seems to be no end to the section's cleverness along that line.

The week's medal for the outstanding jolt to the forecasters goes to doughty Rice University, who rose in their sophomore might yesterday to turn back the University of Texas, 6 to 0.

Natural favorites as a result of their smashing win over the University of Oklahoma, the previous week, the Texas Longhorns received the surprise of their collective lives when the scrapping Rice Team staved off their power attack for three periods and then broke up the game with a lucky touchdown in the final quarter.

While Rice was delivering a blow to Texas hopes for a championship, the Southern Methodist Mustangs brought their conference stock back up to par by crushing a weighty but not alert Indiana University Eleven, 27 to 0. Gov. Dan Moody and some 25,000 assorted fans saw the Texans completely outclass their intersectional rivals.

Baron Long Obtains Jockey Johns' Services

Special to The Washington Post.

Agua Caliente, Mexico, Oct. 26.—Baron Long, California's leading breeder and noted Western horseman has obtained first call on the sevices of the sensational apprentice, jockey, Willie Johns, who has been cleaning up on the Chicago tracks.

Dr. George O'Connell, developer and contract employer of the boy, wires that he had given first call on the lad's services to the Long Stable for the first three months of 1931.

Johns, a 21-year-old youth, came into the limelight during the Agua Caliente summer meeting, when he lifted the jockey title for the fifty-two day session by amassing a total of more than sixty-five winners. From Augua Caliente, Johns was taken to Lincoln Fields and Hawthorne, where he became an outstanding performer. Recently he rode four winners at Hawthorne in one day.

Johns hails from the "Jockey State," Idaho, whence came so many expert reinsmen. Earl Sande, Laverne Fator, George Ellis, Melvin Knight, Lou Schaefer, Ivan Parke, and a dozen other top notchers were born in Idaho, while Albert Johnson was reared a few miles across the State line of Washington, and Johnny Maiben near the Idaho-Utah boundary line.

VA. PREPARES FOR MD. CLASH

Seek First Victory Over Old Liners Since 1927.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Oct. 26. Virginia's football team will return today from Lexington, Ky., and will resume training tomorrow for the game with Maryland—the first contest scheduled for Lambeth Field since late in September. On four successive Saturdays the eleven has appeared on foreign fields.

Virginia has not won from Maryland since the last time they played on Lambath Field, three years ago. The Old Liners took the first of the last two games in College Park. The second, a year ago, ended in a 13 to 13 tie.

The next week-end is going to be a big one in Charlottesville. In addition to the football game, the major attraction, the fall dances, will be in full swing, and the Virginia Players will be presenting Goldoni's comedy, "The Fan," for three nights in Cabell Hall.

Cavalier sport records show that seven games have been played with Maryland, dating back to the days before the College Park institution was a university. Virginia has won three of these, Maryland two, and two have been tied.

Maryland Strong In November.

Virginia has high hopes of capturing the 1930 contest, but the Cavalier coaches know it can not be done without the stiffest sort of struggle. Maryland is notably in fine form during November, and the Old Liners are stronger this season than they have been for several years.

Next Saturady's game may be a real battle of backs, with Bill Thomas, Frank Sippley, Herbert Bryant, Jim Beury, Ward Brewer, Henry Sackett and others preforming for the Cavaliers, while Evans, Chalmers, Miller, Woods, Berger, Poppelman and others carry on for the Terrapins.

Scores of past Maryland games fol low:

1897—Virginia, 6; Maryland, 0.
1919—Maryland, 19; Virginia, 0.
1925—Virginia, 6; Maryland, 0.
1926—Virginia, 6; Maryland, 6.
1927—Virginia, 21; Maryland, 0.
1928—Maryland, 18; Virginia, 2.
1929—Maryland, 13; Virginia, 13.

St. John's-Maryland Harriers Will Clash

The cross-country squad of St. John's College, of Annapolis, has completed preliminary arrangements with the University of Maryland for a meet to be held next month. Both colleges will run their freshmen and varsity squads.

Joey Novak, coach of the Johnnie harriers, has not yet decided on his line-up. The varsity squad will be entirely different from last year's. Joey Russell and Jimmie Dunleavy, who were two of Novak's best men last year, will probably be the leaders of the Johnnie string.

Utah Eleven Stand-Out In Mountain Conference

Denver, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—There was every reason today to believe Utah University has another sure-fire championship football team, with the rest of the field in the race for the Rocky Mountain Conference title just so many contenders, and ordinary ones at that.

Those who saw Ike Armstrong's Utes bowl over Denver University Saturday at Salt Lake, 59 to 0, were convinced the Indians have a machine even stronger than the one which went through the 1929 season undefeated and untied to annex its second straight championship.

Utah used its second and third string players during much of the game and the reserves showed up almost as well as the regulars.

While Utah was defeating Denver, the University of Colorado, heralded as the best bet of the Eastern division teams to halt Utah's march, was exerting all the pressure at its command to score a 7-to-0 win over the Colorado Aggies. Colorado showed nothing more than a dangerous passing attack and kept at it long enough to put across the only touchdown in the third quarter.

FURMAN WINS UPSET.

One of the true upsets of last Saturday was the defeat of Florida by Furman a week after the Alligators had invaded the North to deal a stunning setback to Stagg's Chicago University Team.

Junius G. Quarles, 58, Expires in Petersburg

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., Oct. 26.—Junius G. Quarles, 58, son of Walter E. Quarles, of this city, died late yesterday afternoon in a hospital in Richmond after a protracted illness of pneumonia. The deceased was one of the best known residents of Petersburg and for 10 years or more was a member of the city council having served both as a councilman and as a member of the board of aldermen.

At the time of his death he was engaged in the real estate business here.

Quantico Eleven Plays Baltimore Firemen Nov.

Quantico, Va., Oct. 26.—A game which is expected to outshine any grid battle in the vicinity of Baltimore in point of color and interest will be staged at the Baltimore Stadium on November 1, when the Quantico Post Team takes the field against the crack Baltimore Firemen. A crowd of 40,000 is expected to witness the game and mammoth military spectacle which is to precede it.

Twelve hundred Leathernecks from the Quantico encampment, with their fiery leader, Gen. Butler, in command, will take part on this occasion. The Quantico Post Band, numbering 150 pieces, will furnish the music.

This will mark the first invasion of the Quantico Post Team in the vicinity of Baltimore since last year, when the Marines showed the Firemen how to play ball.

Virginia U. Rifle Club Joins National Body

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 26.—The University of Virginia Rifle Club, organized within the past month by student marksmen at that institution, has been chartered by the National Rifle Association. The national body, which has its headquarters in Washington, is composed of over 2,000 clubs, many of which are college and university units.

Sam Holloway, jr., of this city, is secretary of the club; Walter McIlhaney, of the university, executive secretary, and Stanley Dinwiddie, also of the university, treasurer. The organization already has a membership of over 50 students.

The local military company, the Monticello Guards, has granted the university marksmen the privilege of using both their indoor range in the city armory and their outdoor range on the old Lynchburg road. Practice on these two ranges will begin soon and a schedule of matches will be arranged with other college rifle units in the association.

Navy Grid Followers Jubilant Over Victory

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 26.—Navy football fans and local followers of the team generally, are jubilant over the smashing victory registered by the Midshipmen over Princeton in their fracas in Palmer Stadium Saturday.

The players measured up to full expectations of the staff of mentors, and it is believed there will be no recurrence of the slump such as marked the game against Duke when the Tars were outplayed and outsmarted all way bowed in defeat, 18 to 0. Local fans who saw the game say the Middies showed vast improvement in team play and speed and were full of the old-time Navy fight that has pulled many a victory out of the fire.

The team came out of the game without serious injuries, but they will be taken along at a comparative easy gait this week in preparation for the game with West Virginia Wesleyan on Saturday. The near future objective is the battle with Ohio State to be staged in Baltimore Stadium November 8 and Head Coach Bill Ingram's one idea will be to have his charges at their peak for that struggle which it is realized will be a hard one.

PALACE GRID TEAM BOWS BY 7 TO 6

Ft. Washington Mars 3-Year Record of D. G. S. Club.

PALACE-DISTRICT GROCERY STORES ELEVEN dropped its first contest in three years when the Fort Washington Team eked out a 7-to-6 triumph over the Southwest team on the post gridiron. The local club was heavily outweighed. In spite of this disadvantage, the Palace carried the fight all the way to their hosts.

The Soldiers counted their touchdown late in the second period, when Boyd romped through center for 30 yards and a score. Ackerman dropkicked the extra point. The District outfitt hung up its touchdown in the third quarter when a sustained march down the field for 64 yards resulted in J. Scanlon going over for the 6-pointer. L. Reagen's attempt to place kick for the extra point was wide.

Ackerman and Lytell were the Fort Washington stars, while Healey, L. Reagen and Tonker looked best for the losers.

each, and Thompson and Long, $50 each.

Cooper won an additional $100 for the two low eighteen-hole scores Friday and Saturday, while Dutra won $50 for the low score this morning and Von Elm gained an added $50 for the low afternoon score.

Dutra fairly burned up the course today, but a slump near the end of the final round cost him first money. He finished with a 68, four under par, on the third round, and on the fourth was five under par through the thirteenth, birding the tenth, eleventh and twelfth holes in a row. He slipped one over on the fourteenth and fifteenth and took a fatal seven on the eighteenth.

Cooper had trouble with his driver on both rounds, yet he managed to birdie enough holes to counteract his mistakes.

selves last year under the colors of the maroon and gray.

Central could well use Whitey Cumberland, flashy quarter back and stellar pass flinger, who has been out with a bad ankle for three weeks. Coach Rauber worked Cumberland last Friday with the rest of the squad at Griffith Stadium, but was undecided whether to risk putting the chubby blond star in the Tech fracas.

Tech will certainly use more aerial work than is usually its wont. Central showed up poorly against Western's passes, but has been concentrating on a sky defense of late.

FRESH MONEY IN CIRCULATION NEED AS CURE FOR DEPRESSION

Over-Saving in "Borrowers' Strike" Is Seen by Fisher

Business Should Step Ahead in Fresh Expansion; Various Means Discussed to Overcome "Dead Center" in Balance Wheel.

By IRVING FISHER,
Professor of Economics, Yale University.

Special to The Washington Post.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 26.—Abundant money at cheap rates is at the service of business. Almost everybody has agreed that fresh volumes of money in circulation are what business needs to check the fall in the level of prices. An upward turn in prices is now needed to revive lagging industries. Rising prices would help purchasers as well as sellers. Many manufacturers and merchants have contracted for goods at high prices and have had to accept and pay for the goods after prices had fallen. All this injustice worked by a falling price level would be remedied by an expansion of loans which would stimulate buying, stiffen prices, revive production, increase pay rolls and enhance buying power.

The price level has dipped so far that business has become stagnant. Enterprisers are discouraged. They meet the lenders of money and credit with cheap rates that amount to a borrowers' strike. A powerful shove is needed to start the business drivewheel off this "dead center" of stagnation which exists because potential borrowers do not borrow, because potential buyers do not buy, because their buying power is lowered by lowered production which cuts down wages, reduces borrowing and so on round the vicious circle.

Moving From "Dead Center."

Signs, any one of which might not be significant, when taken together indicate that the big drivewheel is being slowly moved off its "dead center."

Commercial loans since the November, 1929, stock crash fell steadily to September, 1930, by $1,350,000,000 to the lowest level in several years. But the rise of the bond market has helped put new money into circulation through large issues which have been well absorbed. During the first week in September, also, there was an actual expansion of $79,000,000 in commercial loans. Important savings institutions have lowered their rates to depositors because of the difficulty of investing their increasing funds for satisfactory returns. That discourages individuals and corporations from converting their idle funds into "savings deposits" at high rates. Withdrawals of savings deposits have followed. But it is found that these withdrawals are going largely into long-term mortgages, largely for increased residential building.

As I have pointed out in my last article, the rise in residential building is a major sign of promise. It means that the house-constructing and house-furnishing industries will be revived, thus stimulating the demand for building materials and home furnishings. Aid in this process comes from deferred-payment finance companies to industries making furniture and furnishings, radios and musical instruments, electric washing machines, refrigerators and sweepers and motor cars for the home garages.

Old Installments Expiring.

This is all the more likely because the old installment-sale contracts, made on the higher level of prices a year ago, are rapidly expiring. During the twelvemonth numbers of installment buyers have had to cut down their expenses for comforts and even necessaries, in order to meet the payments on articles bought last year at high prices. When those debts disappear, the volume of consumer buying power which had been absorbed during the past twelve or fourteen months of lowering prices will be set free to flow into the stagnant markets.

This tendency is receiving wholesome encouragement through the exhortations of President Hoover and the example of business and financial leaders. The Governments and heads of utilities have this year increased their expenditures on public works and utilities substantially over 1929. Railroad executives during the first half of 1930 spent one-third more for equipment, roadway and structures than for the corresponding period of 1929. Electric railways are maintaining their construction programs and the Bell Telephone System during the first eight months of 1930 has increased by 10 per cent its building program over the same period of 1929. New construction by electric power companies should total a billion dollars this year—well above last year's construction. The principle in these expenditures is that expressed by Samuel Insull, that "in a time when materials are cheap we should not be afraid to make extensions and investments in plants, on which we will get a return just as soon as business turns."

These programs proclaim the virtue of new borrowing and spending—not of intensified saving.

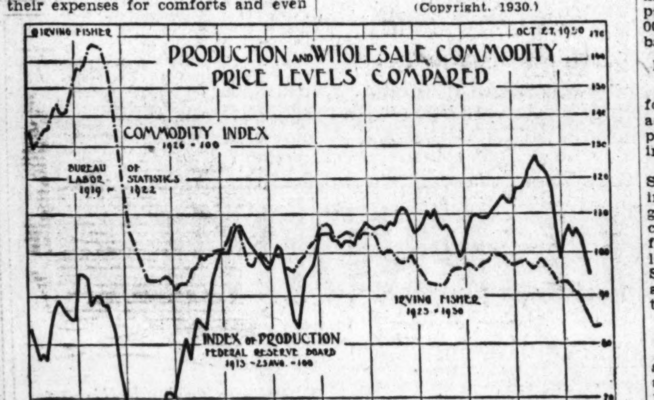

Hooverian Viewpoint Right.

It is true that Gov. Black, of the Atlanta Federal Reserve Bank, in his recent address to the Investment Bankers Association, declared his disagreement with "those men who say that in America there must be no retrogression from the present high grade of living." Gov. Black seems to be an apostle of the doctrine of "slave and save." It would have been good doctrine at the height of the boom period last year, when everybody was spending and borrowing extravagantly with sanguine expectations of the future, but it is the worst possible doctrine now. It would mean increasing shut-downs and unemployment.

President Hoover is right in his sturdy statement that any retreat from our American philosophy of constantly increasing standards of living becomes a retreat into "perpetual unemployment and the acceptance of a cesspool of poverty for some large part of our people."

There is a time to save and a time to spend. That this is a time to spend is manifest from the low record of industrial production. The accompanying chart shows production is at its lowest in many years. It means that all industry is running in low gear. It means that expensive plants are held idle and depreciating. It means that this vast American community, with ample means and men to produce everything that it needs and most of what it wants, has been pinching, scrimping, saving and denying itself in the midst of plenty. Now is not the time to save, but to consume our surpluses. We should use our banking facilities to the utmost to take the brakes off the wheels of industry so that progress may be resumed.

(Copyright, 1930.)

Since June, 1929, industrial production in the United States has dropped off more deeply than during the business recession of 1923-1924. Slumps in production, including the most severe fall of 1921-1922, have been accompanied by falling commodity price levels.

STOCKS HAVE RALLY, SHOWING NET GAIN

Industrials Rise 4 Per Cent From Low of October 22; Trading Is Off.

FOREIGN INDEXES ARE UP

By E. W. DIEFENDORF,
(Irving Fisher Service.)

Common industrial stocks on the New York Stock Exchange rose by nearly 4 per cent from the year's low of 104.2 on October 22 to close the week with a net gain of 0.9 per cent. The weekly average continued to show a downward trend, although the rate of decline shows marked improvement over that of the preceding week.

The group indexes moved in line with the all-industrials indexes in all of the twenty groups except building supplies, making the year's low last week. But they staged a sharp rally to the close.

The sharpest rise was found in the radio and theaters group, which bounded back by 10 per cent from the low of 106.8 on October 18. Electrical equipment stocks dropped to 200.8 on October 22, but rallied by 8 per cent, and closed the week at 216.0. The motors group staged a similar recovery, gaining by 8 per cent over its low of 101.4 on October 22. The foods and farm machinery groups rallied by 5 per cent each to the close, as building supplies and chemicals advanced by 4 per cent. Office equipment, oils, coppers, auto accessories, steels, stores, tobaccos, and miscellaneous groups rose by 2 per cent each. The household products and machinery groups were less responsive, closing the week up by less than one per cent from the week's low.

All Stocks Drop Off.

Average daily value of tradings on the New York Stock Exchange in all stocks dropped by 25 per cent last week to $125,500,000. Common industrial stocks were off by 23 per cent, with the average daily value of tradings for the week at $97,400,000.

The oils group alone showed an increase last week as public utilities tradings dropped by $10,700,000; steels by $9,400,000; radios and amusements by $6,100,000; chemicals, coppers and foods and sugars, by $2,000,000; and motors, stores and tobaccos by $1,000,000.

Foreign Stock Price Levels Advance.

With trading small in the leading foreign markets, stock price levels advanced by 8 per cent in Berlin, 2.8 per cent in London and 2.3 per cent in Paris.

Last week was the first week since September 5 when all three foreign indexes of stock prices advanced together. The advance follows the recent break of 17 per cent in Paris from September 19 to the October 17 low; of 13 per cent in London from September 5 to their October 10 low and of 15 per cent in Berlin during the same period.

Graded Stocks Make 1930 Lows.

The investment group of industrial stocks succeeded in holding its level above the November 13 low of last year until October 17, when the index dropped to 145.7. This group continued to show weakness through Tuesday when the index was 143.3 or 4.4 per cent below the November 13 low.

The gains of 4 per cent in investment stocks and 3.5 per cent in semi-investment and speculative stocks during the closing session last week, caused the investment group to close the week up 1.2 per cent from the preceding week's close. This was in spite of Tuesday's low.

The semiinvestment group closed the week up by 0.8 per cent.

The speculative group was less active and closed the week off by 0.9 per cent.

All three groups made their record 1930 lows last week, going below the preceding week's low by about 3 per cent.

Below are shown index numbers of prices of common industrials on the New York Stock Exchange, arranged in classes derived from Moody's ratings:

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

U. S. Dept of Agriculture, Weather Bureau.
Washington, D. C., Sunday—8 p. m.

Forecast for the District of Columbia—Fair and warmer Monday; Tuesday partly cloudy; moderate south winds.

For Maryland and Virginia—Fair and warmer Monday; Tuesday partly cloudy and warmer, possibly light showers in extreme west portions; variable winds, becoming moderate south.

The North Atlantic Coast disturbance is moving slowly northeastward apparently with two centers, one near the Nova Scotia Coast, Sable Island, 29.40 inches, and the second near Cape Race, Newfoundland, 29.38 inches. A disturbance of moderate intensity is moving east-northeastward over Iowa and Minnesota, Minneapolis, 29.64 inches, with a trough extending southwestward to the Rio Grande Valley. Pressure is also low over northern Saskatchewan and northern Manitoba, Prince Albert, 29.50 inches. The high pressure area that was over the lower lake region Saturday night has moved southeastward to the Carolinas, Wilmington, 30.20 inches, and an offshoot from the Pacific high-pressure area is over western Nebraska, North Platte, 30.06 inches, and pressure continues high over the middle Plateau and Oregon, Winnemucca, 30.18 inches. During the last 24 hours rains have occurred in the North Pacific States, over the middle Rocky Mountain region, and in portions of New England. Temperatures have risen in the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys and the middle and upper lake region, while they have fallen over the middle and southern Rocky Mountain region and the middle plains States.

The outlook is for scattered light showers Monday afternoon or night in the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley and Tennessee, and for light showers on Tuesday in northern New England, central and northern New York, central Pennsylvania and possibly in the mountains of Virginia and Maryland. Elsewhere the weather will be fair Monday and Tuesday in the Washington forecast district. Temperatures will rise on Monday in the Ohio Valley, the lower lake region and the Middle Atlantic States, and on Tuesday in the Middle Atlantic States and New England. It will be slightly colder Monday night in the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region.

River Bulletin.

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., Oct. 26.—Potomac and Shenandoah Rivers clear.

Equality of Wealth Discussed.

The causes which have produced the present inequalities of wealth are largely historical; it usually takes more than one generation to affect greatly the economic standing of a family. For this reason some people have imagined that if we could once correct the inequalities of wealth handed down to us from other days, the problem would be solved, and we should be forever free from the spectacle of great wealth by the side of great poverty. Economics teaches us, however, that if wealth were evenly divided it would not remain so for very long.

BOULDER DAM BOOM FOR LAS VEGAS NEAR

Material for 32-Mile Rail Line to Canyon Is Now Arriving.

MANY ARE AWAITING JOBS

Las Vegas, Nev., Oct. 26 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The boom for which this town of desert subdivisions has been preparing for two years is apparently near at hand as the United States Reclamation Bureau makes strides toward actual work on what is reputed as the greatest construction project of the century—Hoover Dam, in the Black Canyon of the Colorado River, 32 miles east of here.

Since Secretary Ray Lyman Wilbur, of the Department of the Interior, drove a silver spike in a tie on the desert at Boulder Junction, 7 miles south of here, on September 17, activity has been on the increase and the program which Secretary Wilbur declared will not cease until the huge dam has been completed is now well mapped out, according to Government officials.

Already 75 men, mostly engineers, are at work surveying the vicinity of the river and making other preparations for the preliminary construction projects, and experts have recently decided upon the site for the model town which Uncle Sam proposes to build near the river.

Material Is Arriving.

The Union Pacific Railroad, which crosses the desert here between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City, is daily unloading material for the 32-mile track that will penetrate the mountain passes from Boulder Junction to the Colorado. Contract for construction of the railroad has been let to Merritt, Chapman & Scott Construction Co., of San Diego, Calif., and six camps have been established in the desert east of here.

The contract calls for completion of the road within 90 days from September 15, and it is expected the first material will be rolling by rail into the scene of activity not later than Christmas.

The short line railroad will be one of scenic beauty and a tribute to modern engineering, since nearly 30 bridges and tunnels will mark its path, and the last eight miles will win a tortuous route through the barren mountains and down a steep incline to the model Government town, which has been christened Boulder City.

No Activity at Canyon Yet.

At present there is no activity at the canyon where the dam will be built, and only a footpath leads down the river a mile from the road's end to the rock walls where a barrier more than 600 feet will be thrown across the narrow and swift stream.

Three enterprising rivermen have inaugurated boat trips down the river from the nearest approach by automobile to the dam site, and the journey is one of thrills, as the gasoline launches wend their way between the sheer cliffs, hundreds of feet high, on either side.

The magnitude of the $165,000,000 project and the attendant publicity given it for two years have tended to draw an excess of workers to this town, and ever since 1928 Las Vegas has been facing a serious problem of unemployment. It is estimated that there are now more than 500 men here without work and with little hope of obtaining jobs for some time.

At the most only about 150 men are employed in connection with the dam project, including those on Federal, railroad and other work.

The Government town of Boulder City will be a modern one, unlike any other in the country, according to S. E. De Boer, of Denver, consulting townsite planner, who has selected a site about 6 miles from the dam for the community.

Midshipmen Returned Safely; Train Derailed

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 26 (A.P.).—The two rear coaches of a twelve-car Pennsylvania Railroad special train which had returned the regiment of midshipmen from the Navy-Princeton game, jumped the rails here late last night and plowed into an embankment. The accident occurred as the train was backing out of the yards after the midshipmen had alighted. No one was hurt.

The derailment occurred in the West street yards of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis electric line, over whose line the train ran after leaving Washington. The trolley poles were splintered and several sections of rail torn up. The cause of the accident was not determined.

COMMODITY LEVEL IS HOLDING STEADY

Wholesale Price Changes Among Individual Lines Are Active.

FLUCTUATE IN EUROPE

The wholesale commodity price level continued its steadying process last week when the Irving Fisher all-commodities index held at the preceding week's level of 82.7 (1926 equals 100). Price changes among individual commodities were active, and in this respect there was improvement, inasmuch as 56 per cent of the changes were rises as compared with 40 per cent increases the preceding week. At the present level wholesale commodity prices are 0.5 per cent above the year's low established for the week of October 4.

The nature of the movements of wholesale commodity prices since late in August indicates that conditions are improving, with the level definitely steadying to show a slight upward tendency rather than the sharp rate of decline that was maintained during the first seven months of this year.

The purchasing power of the dollar was stable last week at 120.9, or 20.9 cents above its 1926 average value.

	Price index (1926 equals 100)	Index of buying power of $ (1926 equals 100 cents)
Week ended—
October 25	82.7	120.9

Finished Goods Group Gains.

The movement of the group indexes of wholesale commodities last week confirmed the opinion that commodity price levels are steadying. The groups have shown diverse movements during the past two months, causing the all-commodities index to fluctuate between 83.6 and 82.3.

Raw materials and semimanufactured goods were the weak spots in last week's market. The index of raw materials dropped by 0.36 per cent, a decline 0.12 per cent in excess of the preceding week's drop. The movement of semimanufactured goods was less acute than it was the preceding week, the index dropping by 0.27 per cent, compared with 0.40 per cent a week back. Finished goods broke the continuous downward trend that has been maintained since the week ended September 6 to rise by 0.36 per cent.

The purchasing power of farm products was steady at 103.4, indicating that agricultural and nonagricultural products moved in line last week.

Foreign Levels Satisfactory.

There are no definite indications of rising commodity price levels in Europe in the immediate future, but the rate of decline is decreasing and price levels are fluctuating, even to register periodic gains.

The index for England rose by 0.55 per cent last week, the first rise in several months. Commodity price levels in France and Germany dropped by 0.26 and 0.33 per cent, respectively, with the French level at the low of 77.6, that was reached previous to the 0.26 per cent gain of a week ago.

The German level dropped to the year's low of 90.1, breaking through the previous low of 90.2 in the week ended October 3.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM

Figures on Standard Brands.

R. M. B.—Will you kindly give me a little advice on Standard Brands' financial standing, and also is it possible that Studebaker will declare their regular dividend?

Answer—Standard Brands reported for quarter ended June 30 last net income of $4,211,692, sufficient to cover preferred dividend requirements by a substantial margin and equal to 31 cents per share on common. Net income for first six months of 1930 totaled $7,707,918, equivalent to 57 cents per common share. Balance sheet dated December 31, 1929, showed total current assets $51,497,723, including cash of $12,399,646; total current liabilities of $5,038,003, leaving net working capital of $46,459,726. This indicates very strong financial condition. Can not venture a prediction regarding future dividends on Studebaker. However, same are not being earned at present. Net income for first half of 1930 equaled only $1.03 a common share, with dividend requirement for the period $1.50 a share. Now estimated earnings for full year 1930 will equal only $1.75 a share, or considerably less than the year's dividend requirement of $3. Assuming such estimates work out, company will have to meet full year's dividend out of surplus.

Liggett & Myers Good.

R. C. C., Washington, D. C.—I am writing for information on Liggett & Myers.

Answer.—The stock is selling to yield about 6 per cent and is considered an attractive investment. Earnings for 1930 are estimated at $8 a share, so that the price earnings ratio of about 11 to 1 is a conservative figure. Liggett & Myers Tobacco rnaks third among domestic manufacturers as to cigarette production and earnings. Common dividends are $4 annually, in addition to which $1 extras have been paid on March 1 of each year, 1928 to 1930, inclusive. Financial position has been improved since 1929. Last December cash and securities aggregated $21,058,000. Net income has shown a consecutive yearly increase since 1924, which places the stock in the category of a suitable investment.

BOND PRICE LEVELS IN DOWNWARD TREND

Quotations Close Last Week at Lowest Reached Since July 2.

(Irving Fisher Service.)

The break in the decline in bond price levels on the New York Stock Exchange a week ago lasted but a few days, when the bond price index resumed a downward trend. Bond prices closed last week at 100.7, the low since July 2. The fact that the total of commercial loans had risen for three weeks consecutively indicates, perhaps, that banks have begun to unload their bond holdings in favor of loans to business at higher rates.

At last week's close the Irving Fisher index of 70 leading bonds showed a loss of 1.5 per cent since the year's high on September 30, having dropped at an average daily rate of 0.08 per cent per day for twenty sessions. This decline, which has virtually wiped out all the gains made by these bond issues from July 1 to September 30 has shown an average daily trend four times as acute as that in the summer advance. Last week's weakness in bond prices caused the index definitely to break through the average since March 1, but at the low point the index is nearly 1 per cent above the year's low of 99.83 on January 2.

Interest in bonds waned last week, while the value of bond tradings on the New York Stock Exchange dropped by 21 per cent.

All of the six bond groups followed the trend of the market, with the railroad groups largely responsible for the severeness of the break; first grade rails dropped by 1 per cent following the firmness of the preceding week, to close the week at the low since August 22, having dropped below the October 11 low. The level in this group is still high at 104.1, being over 1 per cent above the March 21 high. Second grade rail bonds were outstandingly weak closing last week at the year's low of 99.3, with a net loss last week of 1.8 per cent.

The utility group showed increasing weakness, closing the week off by 0.5 per cent with a comparatively small loss since the September 30 high of 0.9 per cent.

Industrial bonds dropped to the 1929-1930 low of 97.5 at last week's close with a week's decline of 0.6 per cent.

Both government groups were steady, with foreign bonds off by 0.13 per cent and United States Government bonds off by 0.05 per cent.

The weekly rate of decline as shown by the weekly index, indicates a less severe drop last week than in the preceding week in all groups except utilities.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 6—
THOS. J. OWEN & SON, Auctioneers.
1431 Eye Street Northwest.

TRUSTEE SALE OF VALUABLE UNIMPROVED REAL ESTATE FRONTING ON ALBEMARLE STREET AND AUDUBON TERRACE NORTHWEST, JUST EAST OF CONNECTICUT AVENUE.
By virtue of a decree of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia passed in Equity Cause No. 51444, I will sell at public auction, in front of the premises, on THURSDAY, THE SIXTH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1930, AT FOUR O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described land and premises, situate in the District of Columbia and being part of a tract of land known as "Azadia," described in two parcels as follows: Parcel 1—Beginning for the same on the south line of Albemarle street, 90 feet wide, at a point 493.14 feet east from the intersection of the center line of Audubon terrace, as dedicated and shown on plat recorded in liber 38, folio 28 of the records of the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia, with the south line of said Albemarle street, said point of beginning being also the northeast corner of the land conveyed to Willett by deed recorded in liber 5669 folio 495 among the land records of the District of Columbia, and running thence east along said south line of Albemarle street, 114.38 feet to the northwest corner of the land conveyed to Hugo Worch by deed recorded in liber 5595 folio 276 among the aforesaid land records, thence south along the west line of the land conveyed to Worch as aforesaid, 207 feet to the southwest corner thereof; thence east along the south line of said land conveyed to Worch aforesaid, 200 feet to the southeast corner thereof, thence south 200.70 feet to the north line of Audubon terrace, 324.74 feet to the southeast corner of the land conveyed to Buchanan by deed recorded in liber 5216 folio 283 among the aforesaid land records, thence north along the east line of the land conveyed to Buchanan aforesaid, and continuing along the east line of the land conveyed to Willett, aforesaid, 328.93 feet to the place of beginning. Parcel 2—Beginning for the same on the north line of Audubon terrace (60 feet wide) at the southwest corner of the land conveyed to Rhodes by deed recorded in liber 5251, folio 362 among the land records aforesaid, and running thence north along the west line of the land conveyed to Rhodes, aforesaid, 195.26 feet to the northwest corner thereof; thence east along the north line of said conveyance, 50 feet; thence south parallel with the west line of said conveyance, to the north line of Audubon terrace, thence northwesterly along the said north line of said Audubon terrace, on the arch of a circle, the radius of which is 1,625 feet to the place of beginning. Subject to the building restriction line as shown on plat recorded in liber 38 folio 28 of the records of the office of the surveyor of the District of Columbia, and also as shown on plat recorded in liber 42 folio 9 of the aforesaid surveyor's office records. Parcel 1, subject to the covenants that no building for residence purposes shall be constructed upon said property or any part thereof to cost less than $3,500.00, that no manufacturing, mechanical or business establishments shall be established or exist upon said property, that no sale of same or any part thereof shall be valid if made to any Negro or colored person, or persons of African descent, nor shall said property be conveyed to, or in trust for any Negro or colored person or persons of Negro extraction. Said covenants to run with the land and be binding upon any owner of said property or any part thereof. Parcel 2, subject to the covenants running with the land that no building for residential purposes shall be constructed upon said land costing less than $3,000.00. Note—At the date hereof, the above-described land is designated on the books of the assessor of the District of Columbia for taxation purposes as lot 802 in square 2042 and lots 809 and 810 in square 2043.
TERMS OF SALE: Sold subject to a prior deed of trust for $20,000.00, further particulars of which will be announced at time of sale; the purchase price above said trust to be paid in cash. A deposit of $500.00 required. Conveyancing, recording, etc., at purchaser's cost. Terms to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise the trustee reserves the right to resell the property at the risk and cost of defaulting purchaser after five days advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

HAVE YOU $25,000?
We are desirous of securing the financial interest of a man capable of heading and directing a nation-wide organization presenting tremendous possibilities for the wielding of social, economic, and political influence in every State of the Union. The man selected by the trustees of this association to direct its activities and further development must be an individual of the very highest character who will bear the closest investigation and capable of directing such an association, during the development of which he will be occasioned to come in contact with the outstanding figures of the various sections of the Nation. He must be in a position to invest now at least $25,000 and devote a part of his time to the association's work. Investment will secure controlling interest in association and the financial returns therefrom should prove entirely satisfactory. The association to which we refer is now in operation and a proven success. Substantial capital is needed for the broadening of the scope of its operations. Particulars only by personal appointment. MONDAY MORNING — The Washington Post. — OCTOBER 27, 1930

WASHINGTON TODAY OBSERVES NAVY DAY ON LAND, WATER, AIR

Crowded Program Marks Celebration in Nation's Capital City.

PUBLIC WILL BE GIVEN VIEWS BEHIND SCENES

Numerous Special Events Planned for Benefit of Sightseers.

Ashore, afloat and in the air, Navy Day will be celebrated here from early morning until late tonight with an ambitious program that will be duplicated wherever the Stars and Stripes are hoisted.

While the occasion does not rank as a holiday, custom during the last few years has heightened its importance to make it a day to take the public figuratively "behind the scenes" at naval sites and on Navy craft, with the Navy Yard in Southeast Washington the center of the observance here.

Aside from the thousands who will flock there to view the numerous attractions, foremost of which will be the light cruisers Raleigh and Marblehead, the Washington area will be treated to an air spectacle that will serve to impress the mission of Navy Day on countless others.

Dirigible Los Angeles to Come.

Cruising throughout this region on a special flight, the dirigible Los Angeles is due to fly over the city between 1:30 and 4 o'clock this afternoon to pass over the Capitol and the White House and thence to the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, where it will dip in salute. About the same time the metal airship ZMC-1 will float over the city.

As part of the air spectacle, an aerial show will be staged in the vicinity of the navy yard and Anacostia Naval Air Station, beginning about 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, by both Marine and Navy planes. Multiple parachute leaps will be made by five or more jumpers from a Navy transport plane and jumps will be made by six others from other planes. About the same time formation acrobatics will be presented by six Marine Corps planes from Quantico under command of Lieut. L. H. Sanderson, followed by the bombing of the navy yard with paper balls hurled from a Navy plane.

At 3 o'clock the famous "outside loop" trio of Navy fliers, composed of Lieuts. M. B. Gardner, A. P. Storrs and F. M. Trapnell, will thrill the crowds in that section of the city with variations of loops, upside-down flying and other stunts. Aerial smoke screens will be laid down at 3:05 and at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Program Opens at 8:20 A. M.

With the opening of the navy yard at 8:20 o'clock this morning, the city's program officially will get under way with the opening of the gates and the forging of two elevating arc rings in the forge shop before the 45-minute band concert to begin at 8:30 o'clock. Guard mount begins at 9:15 o'clock, the first of hourly diving exhibitions from the diving boat Crilley begins at 9:20 o'clock, and at 9:45 o'clock an airplane will be catapulted from the cruiser Raleigh.

Two parades of sailors and marines will be held in the neighborhood of the navy Yard, one at 10:15 o'clock and the other at 4 o'clock. Other events there include fire drills ashore and on the cruisers, guard mount by marines at 2:15 o'clock, catapulting an airplane from the cruiser Marblehead at 3:20 o'clock and firing of 21-inch torpedo from the cruiser Raleigh at 5 o'clock. Both cruisers will be open for inspection from 9 o'clock this morning until 5 o'clock.

A staff of 350 Navy men, marines and Boy Scouts will act as guides for the 100,000 persons expected to visit the yard throughout the day. The attendance figure was estimated on the basis of the crowd of 75,000 persons recorded there last year and the numerous requests from organizations and schools whose members desire to attend in parties. Parking space has been provided for 2,600 machines inside the yard.

Naval Air Station to Be Open.

The Anacostia Naval Air Station also will hold "open house" during the day, while the Naval Observatory, with its telescopes and numerous other instruments, will be open from 9 o'clock this morning until 4:30 o'clock this afternoon and tonight from 7:30 to 10 o'clock.

In line with the policy of the Navy Department to have many of its highest ranking officers speak at Navy Day functions throughout the Nation, and many of its vessels to hold "open house" at numerous ports, three of its best known personages will deliver radio addresses here over Nation-wide networks. Secretary of the Navy Adams and Admiral William V. Pratt, chief of naval operations, will speak over a National Broadcasting Co. hook-up from 11 to 11:30 o'clock tonight, while Rear Admiral William Ledyard Rogers, retired, will speak over a Columbia Broadcasting chain at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Three ceremonies of importance will be held by patriotic and veterans organizations during the day. The John Paul Jones monument at the foot of Seventeenth street in Potomac Park will be the scene of exercises at noon by the National Sojourners, the Military Order of the World War and Robert E. Peary Ship, Veterans of Foreign Wars, presided over by Capt. Yancey William, U. S. N. Wreaths will be laid by representatives of the three participating organizations and an address will be made by Commander F. C. Sherman, U. S. N. The U. S. Marine Band will render music.

Knights Plan Ceremonies.

Ceremonies will be held at 10 o'clock this morning by the Knights of Columbus at the John Barry monument in Franklin Park, with William G. Feely, State deputy of the order, officiating. Daniel A. Edwards, of the Columbian Correspondence College, will make an address and a prayer will be said by the Rev. Francis X. Cavanagh, State chaplain, Knights of Columbus.

Dames of the Loyal Legion will meet at 11 o'clock this morning at Dupont Circle to be addressed by Lieut. Comdr. Richard W. Gruelick, U. S. N. The National Patriotic Council in a meeting at the Willard Hotel at 8 o'clock by Maj. Gen. Amos A. Fries, Col. J. Edward Cassidy, Lieut. L. S. Perry, U. S. N.; Mrs. David D. Caldwell, representing the Daughters of the American Revolution, and Miss Helen Cummings, of Alexandria. At the same hour at the Roosevelt Hotel, Capt. Robert A. Dawes, U. S. N., will address the Fleet Naval Reserve Association.

SCENE FROM TONIGHT'S PLAY

GROUND IS BROKEN FOR $74,000 CHURCH

Veteran Christ Lutheran Pastor Traces History of Institution.

JUVE LEADS CEREMONY

Ceremonies were held yesterday afternoon at the northeast corner of Sixteenth and Gallatin streets northwest by the congregation of Christ Lutheran Church in breaking ground for a new $74,000 edifice.

The Rev. Dr. J. Frederic Wenchel, pastor of the church during 22 years of its 38 years of existence, made a short talk in which he spoke of the growth of the congregation from small beginnings. Through his influence, the congregation built the church at New Jersey avenue and Morgan street northwest, which it sold in January to the Israel A. M. E. Church, and opened services in the Colony Theater, Georgia avenue and Farragut street, until the new building is completed next May. It will be a Norman Gothic structure of stone, both inside and outside, with a seating capacity of 350.

The ceremonies were conducted by Oscar Juve, president of the congregation, which is connected with the Lutheran Synod of Missouri and Wisconsin. William Scott, chairman of the building committee, tendered spades to two charter members, Henry Germann and Mrs. Elizabeth Albers, who broke ground.

Publisher Addresses Forum on Positivism

Positivism in France and the humanist movement in this country were discussed by Chester C. Platt, Batavia, N. Y., newspaper publisher, in a talk yesterday afternoon before the Washington Open Forum, 808 I street northwest. Talks also were made by Henry W. Selah, Earl W. Howe, Julius Davidson, Samuel Salomon and Miss Mary Henaugaan.

Linn A. E. Gale, president of the organization, announced that the Forum next Sunday will conduct a debate on the topic, "Is It Morally Justifiable to Patronize Bootleggers?"

CHILD HEALTH DATA WORK IS COMPLETE

White House Conference, to Convene November 18, Will Get Reports.

BRIEFS ARE PREPARED

Studies and recommendations of 1,200 authorities engaged for the past year in gathering data for the White House conference on child health and protection, are ready to be submitted when that body convenes November 19, Secretary of the Interior Wilbur announced yesterday.

One hundred and forty reports covering the work of 140 subcommittees have been condensed into 18 summaries of 10,000 words each. The aim of the conference, as explained by Chairman Wilbur, "is to give every child in the United States equal opportunity with every other child. Our findings indicate that this can be done."

Dr. W. Sinclair Bowen, chairman of the committee on spiritual training, has mailed letters to all Washington ministers asking them to deliver sermons on some phase of child welfare work on the Sunday preceding the opening of the four-day conference.

Material received at headquarters shows that rural children have an advantage in physical development, although city children enjoy superior advantages in disease prevention and educational opportunities.

"Applying the findings so as to give the city and country child what each lacks will require a rearranged distribution of educational and social and medical services," Secretary Wilbur said. "This can be effected, but it is evident that the job must be turned over to professionals. The day of the amateur in the conservation and preservation of our child life is past. We have reached the point here in America where all of those expert forces working toward the betterment of children can be coordinated in a workable program."

President Hoover, who called the conference, will open the meeting with an address on the morning of November 19. Secretary Wilbur will deliver the closing address.

Three Boys Flee School.

Alphonzo Branch, Bernard Beasley and John Wood, colored boy prisoners at the Industrial Home School, escaped yesterday.

CURB MARKET RULED BY IRREGULAR TREND

Short Covering at Close of Week Accounts for Some Fair Gains.

BRAZILIAN SHARES RISE

New York, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Alternating declines and rallies are giving the curb market a very irregular appearance, but the movement is at least a relief from steady liquidation. Sentiment improved sufficiently late last week, after prices had made new lows, to encourage considerable short covering and some fair gains were made on this rally.

Active selling in the middle of the week converged on a few utilities and virtually all of the oils. Most of the latter made new lows, for current conditions in the industry fail to attract much of a following, earnings of producers and refiners are hardly expected to make a better appearance until crude oil and gasoline prices attain some stability.

There was a particularly severe bearish demonstration against Electric Bond & Share, which broke to 50, last November's low. Sufficient support was awaiting the stock to maintain it at that level and the rebound was strong enough to carry it 6 points from the week's minimum. Utilities profited extensively from the late covering; the gain was especially pronounced in American Gas & Electric, where the short interest evidently felt overcrowded.

The turn in Brazilian events strengthened stocks which had been disturbed by the revolutionary movement. Brazilian Traction made a strong recovery, extending the rally from the low of 20¼, touched when a dividend in stock was substituted for cash payment. American & Foreign Power, which has suffered virtually no property damage from the revolt, also recovered.

Aluminum Co. of America, whose moves run to points rather than fractions, went to the new low of 150 against the year's high of 356; but came back 15 points from the bottom. Vacuum Oil staged one of the most vigorous recoveries in its group, climbing 5 points from around 59. The market for industrials and specialties remained thin. Most of the active shares were fairly steady, considering the intensity of the pressure that was applied at times.

Investment trusts, sorely hit by the condition of the security markets, rallied moderately with the rest of the list.

Red Cross Session Opens Tomorrow

Plans on Roll Call Will Be Discussed; Payne to Give Report.

Reports on progress of relief work plans for the annual membership roll call will be discussed tomorrow at the opening sesion of a Red Cross regional conference, to be attended by representatives from Maryland, the District and northern Virginia.

Brig. Gen. F. R. Keefer, U. S. A., retired, will serve as chairman of the meeting, which will be held at national headquarters here. Judge John Barton Payne, national chairman, will report on an international meeting of the organization recently held at Brussels, and Miss Mabel T. Boardman, secretary and director of volunteer service, will discuss the chapter house as a community center.

Others on the program are Mrs. J. Ford Dorrance, of the Harford County (Md.) Chapter; Mrs. K. F. Bowman, of the Fauquier County (Va.) Chapter; Mrs. W. S. Lloyd, of the Prince William County (Va.) Chapter; Mrs. Theodore W. Richards, of the District, and Walter Davidson, of the National Red Cross staff. The afternoon session will be devoted to demonstrations of Red Cross service by the District Chapter, which carries on a complete peace-time program.

Alleged Suicide Try Laid to Unemployment

In a reported effort to end his life, John E. McKinney, 60 years old, of Merrifield, Va., grazed his scalp with a revolver bullet early yesterday morning at a hotel on Pennsylvania avenue near Sixth street northwest, Sixth Precinct police reported.

He was sent to Emergency Hospital for treatment. McKinney had been unable to find work.

STOCKS CLIMB UP DURING PAST WEEK

Prices Hit New Three-Year Low, but Later Stage Decided Rally.

BROKERS' LOANS DECLINE

New York, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—The stock market was again temperamental and contrary last week, veering abruptly from optimism to gloom and back again, ending the week in a mildly cheerful mood.

The week began with an upward spurt of nearly 5 points in the averages, but a quick reversal carried the market down more than 5 to a new low level for the past three years. The list then bounded up nearly 7 points, and slipped back nearly a point in the closing session.

Trading was only moderately active, but selling was at times heavy. It was said in brokerage circles that some of the liquidation was of a necessitous character, representing the cleaning out of weak marginal accounts and the liquidating of bank loans.

Rails Recover Substantially.

Selling pressure lifted rather suddenly toward the end of the week, however, leading to the belief in several quarters that necessitous selling had been completed. The rally on Thursday and Friday was pronounced, and was in the face of such normally unsettling developments as a sharp decline in the Van Sweringen groups of rails and omission of the Montgomery Ward dividend. The rails later recovered substantially.

Optimistic statements as to the prospects of business recovery came from important sources and helped to create a more confident feeling in financial circles, although what part these statements may have played in the late rally in the market was difficult to determine, for a technically oversold condition appeared to be developing on Wednesday, and the smart upswing of the next two days was of the proportions of a normal technical rebound.

Bonds' Rise Encouraging.

Genuinely encouraging to Wall street was an improved tone in the bond market late in the week. The impairment of the bond market by the protracted decline in stocks has caused some discouragement, although steady selling of stocks normally spreads to bonds. The improvement in bonds was helped by a sharp rally in the Brazilian issues, coincident to the apparent success of the Brazilian revolutionary party.

Brokers' loans again shrank substantially, the week's drop of $138,000,000 making a reduction of more than $6,000,000 in four weeks, and reducing the total to $2,613,000,000, the lowest in four years, and some $4,000,000,000 below the level of a year ago. Loans against security collateral, as reported by Federal Reserve member banks, however, were shown to have droppd only $10,000,000 in the previous week, against a drop of $215,000,000 in the week before that. Monetary conditions continued easy, with no signs of change.

W. E. VAN PELT RITES SET.

Services Will be Held in Clarendon and at Clover Hill.

Funeral services for W. E. Van Pelt, 41 years old, of Ballston, Va., who died at Georgetown Hospital Saturday will be conducted at the C. J. Ives funeral parlors in Clarendon this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The remains will be taken to Clover Hill, Va., where services will be conducted Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Clover Hill Methodist Church. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Besides his wife he is survived by three daughters, Nancy, Ethel and Katherine and two sons, Eugene and Ward.

THOMAS FLANAGAN, 59, DIES

Heart Attack Fatal to Washington Railway Employe.

Thomas Flanagan, 59 years old, of 112 K street northwest, died at his home yesterday from an heart attack.

He was found dying on the third floor by his son-in-law, George R. Oltman, of 3798 Henry street, Brentwood, Md. Mr. Oltman called Casualty Hospital, but Mr. Flanagan died before treatment could be administered. Mr. Flanagan was an employe of the Washington Railway & Electric Co.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

IF THAT WHIPPING POST PROPOSAL GOES THROUGH.

MICHAEL (Gat) Goonch, notorious gunman, who was sentenced to be whipped at the post by Judge Flibbett yesterday, was released today on an appeal. His lawyers are raising the contention that under the law the prisoner has the right to choose his own whip. Goonch wants one made by a friend.

• • • •

Just as Moss (Legs) McDuff, mail truck robber, was about to be given thirty lashes at the public whipping post this afternoon a stay was granted by the Governor on the ground he bruised easily.

• • • •

After carrying his fight through three courts, Emil (Scarface) Galooki, stickup man and bank robber, won the point raised by his lawyers, Rabinowitz, Rabinowitz, Gluck & Rabinowitz, when the highest court in the land ruled that he had the right wear heavy underwear and a raccoon coat when his sentence of twenty lashes at the whipping post was executed. Only one member of the court, Justice Spreech, dissented. He held the whipping would constitute unnecessary abuse of a raccoon coat.

• • • •

PIGNATZ WORTLE, public whipman, accused of merely snapping his whip in the air at the supposed whipping of Ambrose (Stiletta) Esposito, who shot his wife and two children last May in an argument over a bridge hand, confessed that he had been lenient and gave as his excuse a letter received from Timothy P. Nertle, political boss, which read:

"Dear Wortle:

"Mr. Ambrose Esposito, who is to be whipped at the post by you today, is a very good friend of mine. I don't want to have him hurt.

• • • •

It developed today that Jake (Ankles) Klotz, widely known criminal, who held up an armored car and stole $150,000 in securities in broad daylight two years ago, and who was sentenced to be whipped at the post, is still unwhipped, due to appeals. During the respite his lawyer, State Senator Weevis P. Jottle, it develops, has put a bill through the legislature stipulating that no whip used at a public whipping weigh more than 8 ounces.

Nineveh's Fate Cited As Warning to Nation

U. S. Should Recall City That Forgot God, Says Lutheran Pastor.

The Rev. R. G. Steinmeyer, pastor of Takoma Park Lutheran Church, broke the bread of life to his people yesterday on America's attitude toward God. He enlarged upon the following texts:

Nahum, 1:3-4: "The Lord is slow to anger and great in power, and will not at all acquit the wicked: the Lord hath His way in the whirlwind and in the storm, and the clouds are the dust of his feet. He rebuketh the sea, and maketh it dry, and drieth up all the rivers."

Zephaniah 11:13-15: "And He will stretch out His hand against the north, and destroy Assyria; and will make Nineveh a desolation, and dry like a wilderness. And the flocks shall lie down in the midst of her, and all the beasts of the nations: both the cormorant and the bittern shall lodge in the upper lintels of it: their voice shall sing in the windows; desolation shall be in the thresholds: for he shall uncover the cedar work. This is the rejoicing city, that dwelt carelessly, that said in her heart, I am, and there is none beside me: how is she become a desolation, a place for beasts to lie down in. Every one that passeth her by shall hiss, and wag his hand."

Ability to Foresee Needed.

"One of the ancient writers has said, 'Where there is no vision, the people perish.' The writer of this simple statement wishes to convey a simple truth.

"In the affairs of men, it is the man who can see ahead that succeeds. It is the man who possesses the happy faculty of judging the future by the present who usually comes out on top. He can meet a future emergency because he has prepared himself for it in advance.

"National success, prosperity or calamity will to a great measure depend upon the vision, or the lack of it, on the part of its national leaders.

"What is true in national and purely temporal affairs is also true in spiritual matters. The progress of the Christian Church has always been the result of the labors of men of vision. It was due to Paul's vision of a world-wide Christianity, not limited by Jewish customs and traditions, which led him to consecrate his life to the cause of the Gentiles.

Nineveh Became Ruins.

"When Jonah, commissioned of God, came to Nineveh to deliver his message of destruction. Nineveh was aroused from its spiritual lethargy. Its spiritual vision was momentarily restored. They made a halt on their journey toward destruction, and Nineveh was spared. But there came the time when this vision again became blurred. Nineveh returned to its old sins, refused to profit by the signs of the times, became indifferent to the fundamental principles of life and prosperity, and Nineveh, that beautiful city, became a ruin.

"Science tells us that the laws of nature are constant. Shall we presume that the laws of God, governing spiritual matters, are less so? Any student of sacred history will soon discover that the world is governed by an unchangeable God. Whether we live in the twentieth century after Christ or in the seventh century before Christ, we discover the moral laws of God to be constant.

"Let us briefly view Nineveh. Let us study it in the hope of discovering whether we today are living under similar conditions, governed by the same laws, subject to the same judgments, as the residents of Nineveh. In other words, 'Are we living in Nineveh today?'

City Was Prosperous.

"In our study we at once discover that Nineveh was a prosperous city. It was the capital of Assyria, a nation which could truly boast of being a world power in its day. The arts and sciences flourished within its boundaries. The population of Nineveh would resemble, to some extent at least, some of our modern cities, since it is rumored to have numbered nearly 1,000,000 inhabitants. It reveled in the luxuries of its day. It was served by its subject nations. Truly an enviable position from the worldly point of view.

"Turning the pages of history to our own time, we can discover many similarities in our own day. America today is the most envied Nation on the face of the globe, because of its national wealth. If prosperity is to be the standard by which nations are to be judged, then America would lead the field.

"Step into the average American home and you will soon be convinced that America is prosperous. Everything necessary to make life worth living may be found there. The articles in the home of the rich vary from those to be found in the homes of the poor very often in quality and adornments. We have learned to live on a far higher scale than our fathers and mothers.

Education Available for All.

"Educational advantages are within reach of all sufficiently ambitious to take advantage of them. Our boys and girls are given opportunities for advancement unheard of in days gone by.

"Everything in the form of pleasure has been provided. America has gone pleasure-mad. We crave excitement, and we only too often fail to consider the cost of our fast living. We speak the American language in dollars and cents. Money will purchase anything our hearts may desire. Violation of the country's laws, in order to indulge in certain pleasures means little in our day. It all falls in line with our conception of a good time. It all helps to advertise our prosperity.

"Prosperity, it is true, can be a blessing. No one will deny that. But as with Nineveh, so with America, there rises a danger. The danger of the prosperous city becoming a self-confident city.

Confidence Is Admired.

"We admire a man with a certain amount of self-confidence in his own ability. An athlete lacking this element in his make-up is defeated before the battle is begun. It is a reasonable self-confidence. It is the confidence in self based upon the ability to produce. However, there is a self-confidence which fails to take into consideration fundamental principles of truth. This confidence is merely a sham, and is based on weakness rather than strength.

"Nineveh, as the result of her conquests, had reached the point where she believed herself unconquerable. She began to consider herself the great I Am. She was subject to no one, not even God, and that is where she made her mistake. She ran foul of the warning of the Psalmist: 'Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help. His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish.'

"Are we facing similar conditions today? Has our national prosperity led us to the point where we glory in our own strength? Is God being considered an important factor in our national life?

"To believe in Divine Providence will demand a willingness to meet divine requirements. Are we doing this today?

Dishonesty Is Rampant.

"When has there been a time in our history when political corruption was so generally known and advertised as today? Political dishonesty, failure to live up to an oath of office, an oath, demanding the sanction of God Almighty, is more and more being taken merely as a matter of course. Public offices being employed for the advancement of self rather than public good. Political leaders violating the laws they themselves enact, and then expecting to enforce these laws among the people they represent. Is there any wonder we are confronted with the spirit of unrest in national affairs today?

"Do we have the courage to say that this is a Christian nation, when men and women, conducting our affairs, live in open violation of the fundamental principles laid down by its founders?

"America today needs men, courageous men, willing to make the supreme sacrifice, in order that our Nation may once more be turned to the pathway of righteousness, honesty, and holy living. America needs honest men, supported by God-fearing men and women everywhere, to put into operation the principles of Jesus in our national affairs. America needs men who will speak out from conviction rather than for the sake of seeking favor, that a nation, so dedicated, so constituted, shall not perish from the earth.'

Nation Depends on Churches.

"The backbone of the spiritual life of a nation must be its churches. Jesus founded the church for a definite purpose and assigned to it a definite task. Are the churches of America true to their heritage?

"Our national independence has brought with it a certain indifference in religion. We are too self-satisfied. We have reached the point where we feel we can get along without God.

"To me the signs of the times are a clear indication that God is again speaking through the voice of His prophet, to forsake the faith in temporal things and return to the eternal truths. The crash of the stock market some time ago surely was a clear illustration of the futility of wealth. A millionaire today, a pauper tomorrow. God still rules His world, and sends His messengers, whoever they may be, to demand of us an accounting of our stewardship. Fail to use what you have for the glory of God and the blessing of your fellow men, and some one else will manage it for you. Selfishness has no place in the program of Jesus.

Drought Held Warning.

"Is the drought of the past summer not another lesson to show the futility of our own efforts? How much can man, minus God, accomplish after all?

"You may say that only a cruel God would permit that. I do not think so. It is a loving Father endeavoring to bring back His children. It is the act of a loving God, endeavoring to call a halt in our mad rush to destruction. It is the Eternal endeavoring to call our attention to the eternal values. 'Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you.'

"When Nineveh repented, she was spared. When Nineveh rejected God, she passed from history and is known no more.

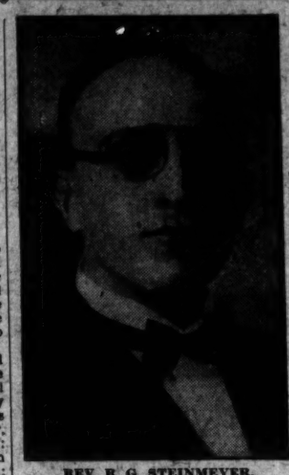

"America's fate will depend upon America's attitude. It will depend upon the place God will be given in your life, your home, your church, your nation."

BUSINESS DISPLAYS VARYING PROGRESS

Building Contracts During Past Week Show Decided Gain.

GRAINS, COTTON ADVANCE

New York, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Business reports of the past week indicated further uneven progress across the valley of depression.

Furthermore, some prominent executives believed the foothills through which the highlands of prosperity may be reached were at hand, although they acknowledged that the valley had been wide, and the highlands might not be quickly attained.

The most encouraging statistical exhibit of the week came from the building industry. F. W. Dodge Corporation reported daily average of building contracts let in the week ended October 17 was about $1,600,000 above that for the first nine business days of the month. Furthermore, the first half of October showed a deficiency of only about 10 per cent from the like period of 1929, as against a drop of 23 per cent in September. Electric power consumption also continued to gain.

In a general survey of the building situation, L. Seth Schnitman, chief statistician for F. W. Dodge Corporation, said that it is becoming increasingly clear that the depression in current new residential building has about ended, and that this branch of the construction industry, normally of largest importance, seems to be definitely on the mend. He was less cheerful about nonresidential building, however, finding that the depression in that category appears to be deepening, due to an abnormal supply of space in commercial buildings. He added, also, that the effect of record-breaking contracts for large engineering works is fast subsiding.

Steel Executives Optimistic.

The weekly steel trade reviews indicated that the industry was about holding steady. Although Iron Age estimated that operations had sagged from 56 to 53 per cent of capacity in the past week, reports from Youngstown indicated a slight acceleration was planned in schedules for the coming week. Prominent executives attending the semiannual meeting of the American Iron and Steel Institute were moderately optimistic. President Farrell, of U. S. Steel, stated that a firm stand as to prices should put the industry back "where it belongs" in 60 days. President Grace, of Bethlehem, said the industry was holding an even keel, but he did not look for improvement until after the turn of the year.

The automobile industry continued to work at about 50 per cent of capacity, although plans to increase operations and employment in various plants within the next few days were announced. John J. Raskob, a director of General Motors, and closely affiliated with the dominant interest in that company, predicted that pronounced recovery in the motor industry would appear in January. It was recalled that Mr. Raskob issued a warning some eighteen months ago that important readjustments in the industry seemed to be pending.

Auto dealers' sales this month have been slow, and although there has been a widespread effort to keep dealers from becoming overstocked, after the troubles of a year ago, some dealers in the lower priced field were reported as finding themselves heavily stocked.

Freight Car Loadings Drop.

Freight car loadings, as reported for the previous week, again turned downward, touching the lowest level for the period since 1918. Further moderate pick-up was reported in the textile industry, and various manufacturers of miscellaneous merchandise were said to be a little more active. The shoe trade, however, was quieter. The petroleum and copper industries were troubled with further price weakness.

Leading farm commodities were a little firmer, however. The grain and cotton markets in particular showed a better tone.

The Guaranty Trust Co.'s monthly survey of business conditions, published today, said the trend of business activity affords some ground for optimism, but added, "the failure of trade and industry to score decisive gains during the period of seasonal revival in September and October has once more deferred the hopes of business men for an immediate recovery.

The approach of the holiday period is now cited as a reason for the belief that next spring will bring the logical occasion for marked improvement. Although there is nothing impossible in the idea that genuine recovery may begin in the interim, the more distant expectation appears, in the present instance, to be the more reasonable."

Teacher and Daughter Slightly Hurt in Crash

Mrs. Francis C. Bell, 45 years old, of Cherrydale, Va., a teacher in the Washington Lee High School, and her daughter, Faith, 11 years old, were slightly injured yesterday when their automobile overturned after a collision with another machine at Twentieth and I streets northwest.

They were taken to Emergency Hospital for treatment. They were riding in an automobile driven by John O. Bell, 19 years old, which struck the car driven by Miss Emile M. White, 1417 Belmont street northwest, a teacher in Central High School.

This Thief Is No Liar; Expert in Opening Door

Andrews, S. C., Oct. 26.—Willie Brown, Andrews Negro, may be a thief, but he's no liar. Ask the Andrews police. And because he is as good as his word, officers would like to get their hands on him. When arrested here following the robbery of R. L. Brockington's store, Brown confessed to the burglary and tipped off Chief Johnson that he could open any door that he had even seen. The chief at once concluded that jail was the place for such persons, and thither he hied Brown.

But even jails have doors, and Brown did not except the one at the Andrews bastile when he bragged to Chief Johnson. That night he flung the prison portals wide, and with two companions walked to liberty, which he has since enjoyed, in spite of the sharp lookout of the officers.

Edinburgh, Oct. 26 (A.P.).—Foundation of the Scottish National Trust, designed to preserve objects of natural or historic interest, was announced here, with the Duke of Atholl as president.

Georgia's cotton production prior to September 16 was 598,719 bales, according to official figures.

Millions for Fertilizer.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 25 (A.P.).—Cotton growers in North Carolina last year spent more than $11,000,000 for fertilizer.
